NINE CONVICTED OF LONG ISLAND LAND SWINDLE

Government Charged 1600 Emigrant Factory Workers Were Mulcted in Slovak Manor Case.

OPERATION TOTAL PUT AT $2,000,000

Allegations Against Eleven in Case Ranged From Conspiracy to Grand Larceny.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18. — After three days' deliberation, a General Sessions jury convicted tonight nine of 11 defendants in the $2,000,000 Slovak Manor land fraud trial.

The defendants were under charges ranging from conspiracy to grand larceny in connection with a Long Island real estate promotion, in which the Government charged 1600 immigrant factory workers and laborers through the East were mulcted.

The trial, which extended through 84 days and night court sessions, was the longest in the 255-year history of the court.

Thirty-nine individuals and 12 corporations were indicted originally. The corporation indictments were dismissed. Several defendants died and disappeared. Eight pleaded guilty before trial.

All those convicted were found guilty of conspiracy. Six also were convicted of grand larceny. Judge Cornelius Collins will sentence them July 6.

Convicted and the Acquitted.

The acquitted were: Miss Ella Neufield, 33 years old, of Brooklyn, a bookkeeper, and Leonard Wilkowski, 45, of Queens, a salesman.

The convicted were: Mrs. Ethel Smolens Goldner, 42, and her husband, Sandford Goldner, 38, of Deer Park, L. I. (the Government asserted she was the "brains" of the scheme); Jacob Molitoris, 67, publisher, of Bayonne, N. J.; Samuel Pinsker, 39, real estate dealer, of Valley Stream, L. I.; Ferdinand W. Buermeyer, 62, a title reader, of Rockville Center, L. I.; John C. Sciranka, 36, Slovak newspaper editor, of Passaic, N. J.; Michael A. Davala, 51, of Passaic, N. J., salesman; Herman J. Ringel, 46, insurance salesman, of the Bronx, and Murray Miller, 44, a farmer, of Moodus, Conn.

Charles Zubal, a laborer, summarized the State's principal contention when he said, "they promised me heaven on earth." He added, "if they had given me 1 per cent of what they promised I would be the happiest man on earth."

The State charged that the promoters bought in at tax sales 15,000 lots on Long Island wastelands, paying $2.66 to $10 each for them, and sold them for $350 to $1500 apiece to gullible purchasers, usually on the installment plan.

Charwomen's Savings Taken.

Cripples, charwomen and low-paid factory workers, the State charged, were among those induced to sink their savings. Some witnesses testified they were threatened with legal action if they failed to meet payments.

Pamphlets, movies and speeches, some of which were introduced at the trial, pictured Slovak Manor as a new world paradise with self-supporting industries, modern homes and schools, amusements and trans-Atlantic liners tieing up at its docks.

Testimony and court records were produced to show that lots were sold two and four times to different purchasers and that, all the while, the promoters could not give clear titles and that the property was heavily mortgaged.

AIRPLANE SINKS IN LAKE, PILOT'S MOTHER DROWNED

Son and Father Escape From Craft, Gift of Parents, After It Capsizes in Landing.

By the Associated Press.

LAKE GENEVA, Wis., June 18.—Mrs. Jeanette Peterkin, 56 years old, of Chicago, drowned in Lake Geneva late today when an airplane newly fitted with pontoons, and piloted by her son, Daniel, 22, capsized and sank as he attempted to make a landing.

The youth and his father, Daniel Sr., president of the Morton Salt Co., extricated themselves from the plane and were rescued by two men from a cottage nearby.

Coroner William F. Best, who investigated the accident, said pontoons had been added to the cabin plane only recently and that the remodeled ship had been delivered to Peterkin today, a gift from his parents. One of the pontoons buckled as he set the plane down on the lake, the Coroner said. Peterkin Jr. is a licensed pilot.

JAPANESE BOMB BAPTIST MISSION SCHOOL AT PINGTU

Undetermined Number of Chinese Women and Children Killed—Target Marked With Six U. S. Flags.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, China, June 18. — Reliable reports received here today said two Japanese planes bombed the American Southern Baptist mission at Pingtu, in Eastern Shantung province, last Friday, killing an undetermined number of Chinese women and children. The seven Americans attached to the mission were said to have escaped unhurt.

A ton of high explosive bombs was reported dumped on the mission, which is an eighth of a mile outside the walls of Pingtu and not near any military objective.

Pingtu is about 50 miles northwest of Tsingtao, Shantung province port of the Yellow Sea, which the Japanese took on Jan. 10.

The compound of the bombed mission was marked with six American flags. The weather in the vicinity Friday was clear and visibility was good.

The planes first dropped two quarter-ton bombs on the mission boy's school, causing considerable damage to the buildings. It was believed the heaviest casualties were suffered there as 200 Chinese boys were in the buildings at the time, taking their final examinations.

One bomb fell within 15 feet of the principal's residence. Another hit 25 feet away.

Two more of the missiles then were aimed at the mission girl's school, where damage was caused by the tremendous concussion from the huge bombs.

A message received here from the American Baptist mission at Swatow, on the south China coast, said an outbreak of cholera there was spreading rapidly and that an epidemic was feared. Twenty persons died from the disease in one day.

Scott Thresher of the Baptist hospital at Swatow urgently requested that cholera vaccine for 50,000 people be rushed either from Manila or flown by Clipper plane from the United States.

"WE WILL WIN THIS WAR AGAINST INVADERS," SAYS LOYALIST PREMIER

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, June 18.

JUAN NEGRIN, Spanish Government Premier, spurned today any idea of an armistice with the insurgents and declared, "We will win this war."

"We are fighting for a Spain free from invaders and to see that Spain remains for Spanish peoples," Negrin said in a radio speech broadcast from Madrid.

He told his listeners the war would be long and hard and that Government Spain would have to undergo new sufferings and would be severely tested before the fight is won.

"The rebels (insurgents) still have more armaments, but we have improved and are not so defenseless as we were before," the Premier declared. "Never before has our army been so well-equipped as today."

BIG FRENCH PLANE TO MAKE TRIAL FLIGHT TO NEW YORK

The Lieutenant de Vaisseau Paris to Explore Trans-Atlantic Route Next Month.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 18.—Aviation authorities announced tonight that France would start the first trial flight next month to explore a route for Paris-New York air service.

Air Ministry officials decided the 64-passenger seaplane, Lieutenant de Vaisseau Paris, would leave its Bicaroose base, near Bordeaux, about July 15 over the southern route to New York. The flight was arranged after Portugal gave France permission to use the Azores Islands as a midway landing base.

The plane, rebuilt after turning over in a sudden squall at Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 15, 1936, will have as rivals in trans-Atlantic service the Pan American clippers, Imperial Airways' Caledonia and Cambria, and the German Aeolus, Zephir, Nordmeer and Nordwind. American, British and German planes already have made trial flights.

REBEL PLANES KILL 25 IN EASTERN SPAIN

66 Wounded in Alicante and Gandia, South of Valencia, and at Masamagrell.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, June 18.—Insurgent war planes caused an estimated 100 casualties today in raids along the eastern Spanish coast.

Five bombers, held to the outskirts by Government pursuit planes, killed 11 persons and wounded 27 in Alicante, 75 miles south of Valencia.

The known dead in the port of Gandia, 38 miles south of Valencia, totaled eight. Twenty-four persons were injured and the ruins of 16 houses were being searched for further possible victims. Three planes attacked the port.

Six persons were killed and 15 were injured at Masamagrell, six miles north of Valencia, when buildings along the main road between Valencia and Sagunto were struck.

Coastal March by Insurgents Continued Toward Valencia.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France, June 18.—Spanish insurgents marked the opening of the twenty-fourth month of civil warfare today by driving down the Mediterranean coast to the gates of Burriana, 32 miles north of Valencia.

The day's advance brought insurgent gains to a total of 16,600 square miles of territory since Jan. 1.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces now control 35 provinces. The Government has 11 provinces. Four others are the scene of fighting. Franco controls 131,000 square miles of Spain and the Government 48,000 square miles, while 16,000 square miles are disputed.

Insurgent columns obtained control of a strategic network of roads inland from the coast by capturing the Sierra de las Pedirzas, which, at its Eastern extremity, is about 10 miles from the Mediterranean. The range dominates the north bank of the Mijares River. The insurgents also took hastily-built Government defenses.

Northwest of Villarreal, which the insurgents said they had wrested for the second time from the Government, other columns dominated the road from Sanzara to Ribesalbes.

These forces prepared to cross the Mijares River to besiege Espadilla, nearly 20 miles from the coast. Its capture would bring the western end of the front even with the most advanced position on the Mediterranean.

INDIAN, IN PLANE, HITS WIRE; BROTHER TRIES AND HITS TREE

Osages From Oklahoma Escape With Cuts in Two Accidents in Kansas.

By the Associated Press.

SEDAN, Kan., June 18.—Bill and Logan Cottingham, Osage Indian brothers, of Pawhuska, Ok., made a forced landing on a highway south of Chautauqua, Kan., today when the motor of their airplane died. Bill, who was at the controls, suffered severe leg cuts when the plane struck a power line.

While a motorist took Bill to a doctor's office, Logan was left to guard the plane. In the doctor's office Bill heard the drone of a motor, looked out and saw his brother whiz past. Logan—on his first solo flight—headed for an emergency field on a nearby ranch but missed it and came down within 20 feet of the house, wrapping one wing around a tree. He escaped with minor cuts.

JOHN ROOSEVELT, ANNE CLARK WED; GO ON HONEYMOON

Pair Leave Nahant, Mass., for Secret Destination After Ceremony Attended by Many Notables.

PRESIDENT, WIFE AMONG THE GUESTS

Crowd Presses Against Police Lines—Cheers Chief Executive and Applauds Bridal Pair.

By the Associated Press.

NAHANT, Mass., June 18.—Mr. and Mrs. John Roosevelt slipped away to Rye Beach, N. H., to begin their honeymoon tonight after a wedding that combined solemnity and smiles, noise, color and pomp.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt helped their youngest son and the new Anne Lindsay Clark Roosevelt to make a secret departure from this sea-surrounded old town, thronged for the day with thousands of curious.

In the dusk of the 107-year-old Union Church here, contrasting with the bright noonday sunshine outside, the young pair moved through the solemnities of the Episcopal single-ring ceremony in just six minutes.

Outside, a noisy crowd of several thousand pressed against the police lines, cheering the President and his wife as they arrived and bursting into applause as the young married pair emerged.

Ceremony Performed Smoothly.

Inside, from the moment the bride stepped through the doorway at 12:02 p. m.—two minutes behind the scheduled starting time—until she emerged smiling but misty-eyed, the ritual ran as if the bridal party had rehearsed for months rather than for a few hilarious minutes yesterday evening.

With John Roosevelt joining his bride at the flower-banked, white satin-covered altar at 12:05, the two were declared man and wife at 12:11 by the Rev. Endicott Peabody, 81-year-old Groton headmaster, who married not only the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, but every one of their sons as well.

Only then did the bride, four months younger than her 22-year-old husband, relax. As she swept up the aisle on her husband's arm to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, she winked broadly at Usher James Roosevelt, oldest brother of the bridegroom.

Party at Nahant Club.

From the church the bridal party was sped to the century-old Nahant club, once the home of Frederic Tudor, who made a fortune by shipping the first ice to the West Indies.

The bride and groom were joined there by 300 other guests, and the newest member of the Roosevelt family was toasted in champagne.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, the President's mother; Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., the best man; Mrs. F. Haven Clark, mother of the bride, and the bride and bridegroom stood in the receiving line before luncheon—combining both champagne and "temperance punch" for those of prohibition views—was served.

Not until mid-afternoon did the young pair dress for their departure. She donned a two-piece traveling dress of blue crepe and a small blue hat.

The two already have selected a Brookline apartment to which to return after their wedding trip. He has arranged to enter the advertising business. The bride, a Boston debutante, will keep house.

After the Wedding.

The bride and bridegroom started their journey by automobile, with a police escort discouraging pursuit. Heading northward, they suggested by their actions that a private home in New Hampshire, or Campobello, the Roosevelt summer home in New Brunswick, might be their destination. A sea trip, from Canada, probably will follow.

"Gee, I'm glad it's all over," John Roosevelt said to his bride as they ran for their automobile, shortly after 4:30 p. m.

The President and his wife, remained at the wedding reception to hold the attention of guests until their son and new daughter-in-law had departed. Soon afterward they left. The President started for Hyde Park, N. Y., after boarding the yacht Potomac at Salem. Mrs. Roosevelt started for Hyde Park by automobile.

Several hours later John Roosevelt and his bride arrived at the Rye Beach, N. H., cottage of Dr. Harvey Cushing, father of Mrs. James Roosevelt.

WOMAN GETS 3 TO 4 YEARS FOR GOLD FRAUD

Arizona Judge Calls Her Story of Finding Guadalupe Treasure "Fantastic."

By the Associated Press.

TUCSON, Ariz., June 18. — Superior Judge William G. Hall sentenced Mrs. Laura Pearson Shepley Clark today to serve three to four years in prison for fraud.

Prosecution witnesses charged Mrs. Clark, who is 50 years old, bilked them of $30,000 to $35,000 on the pretext she needed funds to clear title to the legendary $32,000,000 "treasure of Guadalupe" which she said she had "rediscovered." As she was brought before the judge for sentence she screamed that she was being "persecuted."

Judge Hall declared the State's information was technically faulty but invoked a section of the Arizona Constitution providing that no criminal conviction be reversed because of a technical error.

When the Court asked Mrs. Clark if she had anything to say before sentence was pronounced, she quickly arose to shout: "I'm guilty only of an unfinished task, my task in the hills is not finished. I believe in my project and I intend to finish it, no matter what is the Court's sentence."

Describing her story of buried gold as an "Alice in Wonderland" tale, Judge Hall said:

"I've never heard a more fantastic story in my court than Mrs. Clark's tale of finding the buried treasure of Guadalupe in the rugged Santa Rita Mountains 45 miles south of Tucson near the Mexican border, and having it transported to the United States Treasury in Washington."

Dudley did not appeal a fine imposed for being drunk.

EX-ST. LOUISAN SHOT, KILLED AT TRANSIENT CAMP AT TROY

John W. George, 68, Loses Life in Quarrel; John Heiman Held as Assailant.

John W. George, 68 years old, a carpenter, formerly of St. Louis, was shot to death yesterday in a quarrel at a Federal transient camp at Troy, Mo., with another camp resident, also a St. Louisan.

John Heiman, 70 years old, was named in a Coroner's verdict as George's assailant. He is being held in the Lincoln County jail at Troy, 50 miles northwest of St. Louis.

State Highway patrolmen said that Heiman and George had been quarreling for several days. Heiman, they said, returned to the camp yesterday after having been drinking, started another quarrel and shot George in the head with a small-caliber automatic pistol.

George formerly lived at 7005 Mitchell avenue.

John Reitenbach Jr., Suffered Skull Injury When Run Down by a Truck.

John Reitenbach Jr., 7 years old, of 3309A St. Vincent avenue, died at City Hospital yesterday of a skull injury suffered June 9, when he was struck by a truck at St. Vincent and Louisiana avenues.

The driver of the truck, Oscar A. Soutiea, 7600A Vermont avenue, told police he was driving south on Louisiana and started to make a left turn into St. Vincent when the boy darted into the path of the machine. It was raining at the time and he was driving slowly, Soutiea said. His statement was corroborated by a witness.

The boy was the son of John Reitenbach Sr., who is in a Civilian Conservation Corps camp near Union, Mo. He resided with Mrs. Anna Kuhne, who had been appointed his guardian by the Juvenile Court.

COMPULSORY FLAG SALUTE RULED UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Federal Judge Orders Minersville (Pa.) School Board to Reinstate Two Children.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18. — United States District Judge Albert B. Maris ruled today that a regulation of the Minersville (Pa.) school board requiring pupils to salute the flag even if it conflicted with religious beliefs, is unconstitutional. He ordered the board to reinstate two children.

The Judge stated he did not agree that saluting had any religious significance, but said the constitutional guarantee of religious freedom demanded that the children be protected.

GARNER SAYS HE'S HAD PLENTY

Has Nothing to Say—Not Worth Saying If He Had.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 18.—Vice-President John Nance Garner, en route to his Uvalde (Tex.) ranch from Washington, paused here briefly today. "I have nothing to say," he told reporters. "You know I can't say anything, and besides what I think isn't worth anything anyway."

He said he expected to spend the summer fishing. "I'm not going back to Washington until the first of the year unless President Roosevelt calls a special session," he said. "I've had seven months of it and that's plenty."

NLRB ABOUT TO TACKLE BIG BANKING BUSINESS

First Attempt to Assert Jurisdiction in This Field to Be Against Bank of America.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18. — The National Labor Relations Board has ordered a hearing in Los Angeles June 27 on a complaint by one of the white collar workers' unions in John L. Lewis' C I O, charging the Bank of America with labor practices that were outlawed by the Wagner Act.

It is the board's first broad-scale attempt to assert its jurisdiction over labor relations in the field of big business and finance. Later the board is expected to make a similar move against five insurance companies where organized white collar workers have attempted to initiate collective bargaining.

The Bank of America, with its 491 branches, is rated as the fourth largest bank in the United States, and the ninth largest in the world.

Research Men at Work.

For weeks the board's division of economic research has dug into statutes and statistics, laying a foundation for the board's contention that both banking and insurance establishments operate in interstate commerce. The Wagner Act applies only to establishments doing business in interstate commerce.

The researchers will provide the board with exhibits showing the extent to which banks and insurance houses use the mails for interstate business and to which they have holdings in such things as railroads and utilities. The exhibits also will show that, singly or in syndicates, financial institutions underwrite security flotations affecting interstate commerce and that bankers and insurance men sit on the directorates of railroads and utilities.

If the board succeeds in establishing its jurisdiction over banking and insurance it will have reached a new group of white collar workers — clerks, office workers, salesmen in the financial industry.

Expected Defense.

Labor men expect insurance companies to question whether their salesmen are, in fact, employes of the company. It has been argued in some instances that salesmen are individual contractors with no employer-employe relationship such as exists in other lines of business.

The banks might claim to be exempt from the Wagner Act as they are from Social Security payroll taxes for unemployment compensation. The Internal Revenue Bureau, in holding them exempt from Social Security taxes, ruled that as members of the Federal Reserve Bank system, they were part of the Government establishment. The Social Security Act does not apply to Government employes.

GOV. HORNER SIGNS TAX BILL

It Extends 3 Per Cent Sales Levy on Utilities Another Year.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 18.—Gov. Horner signed the public utilities tax bill today, extending the 3 per cent levy from July 1, 1938, for another year. The receipts from this tax, about $500,000 monthly, are used for direct relief.

The bill, passed without opposition at the special legislative session, prevented the rate from dropping to 2 per cent on July 1.

BERLIN MOBS JOIN IN NEW POLICE DRIVE AGAINST JEWS

HUNDREDS RUSHED TO CAMP IN BUSSES

Families Routed From Bed; Gentiles Afraid to Sell Them Food; Fugitives Besiege Consulates, Trying to Leave Country.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 18.—The official campaign against Jews, reinforced by mob action in the capital, was extended to all Germany today by secret police orders.

Jews were in panic. Foreign consulates were besieged by men and women trying desperately to get permission to go to other countries.

A number of distressed Jews signed pledges they would leave the country in a few hours, but found later they could not fulfill the restrictions imposed by foreign countries on immigration.

For the second successive night paint bucket squads applied brushes vigorously tonight to Jewish store and cafe fronts in both the west and poor east ends of Berlin. Crews of three to five men dressed in civilian clothes moved from door to door, while onlookers watched with apparent disinterest. The huge red-lettered word "Jew" was dabbed on windows and sidewalks. In some instances grotesque caricatures were drawn of Jews with their heads in a noose.

The paint squads met no resistance.

"Jew" in Red Letters.

One group was seen severely beating a Jew on Frankfurter avenue in the East End. In the same district one Jew-baiter climbed to the second story of an apartment building to paint "Jew" on its walls.

For the first time the squads invaded the Kurfuerstendamm, a two-mile stretch of ultra-smart shops and cafes. They tramped from one establishment to another and when they came to one which bore a Jewish sounding name they applied the word "Jew" in red letters along with a star of David beside it. The six-pointed star for centuries has been the symbol of the Jewish race. If there was any doubt as to the nationality of a shop owner, a big question mark was daubed on the front. Three windows of an agency for two American automobile manufacturers (Packard and Chrysler) were thus decorated.

Saturday usually is the busiest night for Kurferstetndamm cafes but tonight they were virtually empty. The people remained outside to see the action. There were no officers in evidence along the usually well-policed boulevard.

Jewish shops along the Wilmersdorfer, one of the principal shopping centers in the borough of Charlottenburg, came in for their share of anti-Semitic inscriptions. Many of the Jewish stores had closed early in the afternoon, drawing down their metal shutters rather than risk more serious consequences.

Signs Three Feet High.

Signs three feet high distinguished Jewish shops in Berlin. Passersby cheered and police were noticeably absent while Nazi squads smeared Jewish store windows along a four-mile distance with slogans such as "Jew—Whoever buys here is a traitor to his people"; "Jew—Our misfortune"; "Avoid this Jew"; "Jew, get out!" "Don't buy from this Jewish swine"; "Women and girls, avoid this racial defamer."

"I witnessed the looting of a shoe store," a middle-class tradesman recounted.

"I am so ashamed I hardly dare look a foreigner in the face. A few mob leaders took down shoe boxes from the shelves and handed box after box out through a smashed window.

"After that, furniture and fixtures were wantonly destroyed."

Demonstrating the swiftness of mob action was the case of a Jewish merchant in Berlin's west end who boxed the ears of a member of the Hitler youth organization.

The boy had smeared "out with Jews" on the shop windows. Within a few minutes after the owner

JAPANESE TROOPS FORCED FARTHER BACK BY FLOOD

OVERFLOW COVERS 1600 SQUARE MILES

China Pays Heavily in Lives and Property but Gains Military Results It Could Not Win by Arms.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, June 19 (Sunday).—China's Yellow River flood forced the Japanese armies on the north central front to retreat farther eastward today.

Invading forces which had been almost at the gates of Chengchow, important Honan Province railway junction, in a powerful westward drive along the Lunghai railway, were compelled to abandon newly-won territory, as continuous rains increased the expanse of water. Japanese military activities elsewhere along the Lunghai also were stalemated by the surge of water.

Although China paid a terrific price in casualties and flooded farm lands, it obtained military results it was unable to win by arms. Every day's delay in the Japanese invasion is seen as a measure of aid for the Chinese by increasing the already staggering cost of the war to Japan.

700,000 Chinese Refugees.

The flood, spreading over 1600 square miles of Chinese villages and farms, nevertheless has been costly to China. Japanese army officials stated 700,000 Chinese have been driven from their homes, although some neutral observers said this figure was high.

Japanese estimates that 50,000 Chinese have died in the floods were scaled down by some missionary and other neutral observers. Yesterday the Japanese said an additional 200,000 more Chinese were trapped beyond hope of rescue.

The flood, surging southeastward from the river's banks near Chengchow, was reported to have passed Chowkiakow, more than 100 miles away, and to be heading into Anhwei Province.

New breaks were reported today on the north bank of the river near Menghsien and Wenhsien, 60 and 40 miles east of Chengchow, respectively, with the waters spreading over the countryside as far as Tsinyang, 20 miles to the north.

Protective Screen for Chinese.

With retreat of the Japanese from the Chengchow region, the Chinese were reported to be operating the Lunghai railway again west of Chengchow, enabling unimpeded Chinese military movements behind the protective flood screen.

The entire Chinese flood-control system has been seriously damaged by the rushing waters and Chinese officials are fearful that the usual high water of early August may bring one of the worst inundations of China's history.

They pointed out that the flood waters were pouring into tributaries of the Hwai River, in Southern Honan. The Hwai then flows eastward into Anhwei Province and into Lake Hungtze, which in turn is connected with the Grand Canal and through it with the Yangtze, China's second great river.

The Chinese experts predicted these channels would be unable to carry heavy floods and they expected serious inundations in Northeast Honan, as yet untouched, and in the northern sections of Kiangsu and Anwhei provinces by August. Kiangsu lies east of Anwhei, on the coast.

Japanese Gain Along Yangtze.

The Japanese were active yesterday to the south in their land and naval drive up the Yangtze River to Hankow, Chinese provisional capital. Flying over their objective in relays, 30 Japanese planes bombed a Chinese boom in the river at Matowchen, upstream from Anking, which is 215 miles from Hankow.

At the same time an infantry column on the north bank of the Yangtze, after occupying Tsienshan, in Southwestern Anwhei, advanced against Taihu, 22 miles southwest along the road to Kiukiang. Tsienshan is about 40 miles northeast of Anking. Kiukiang is the scene of unusually strong Chinese boom defenses and is an intermediate Japanese objective in the Hankow drive.

Chinese dispatches reported Japanese warships in the river shelled Chinese positions on both banks near Anking, apparently trying to discover a spot at which infantry forces could be landed and march up the river to attack the Matowchen boom by land.

Japanese naval authorities announced their planes had bombed a garrison at Hoihow on Hainan Island, lying south of extreme Southern China's mainland. It is part of Kwantung Province.

The Japanese admitted two Japanese planes had been shot down in an air battle over the Kiangsi-Kwantung border, in South China, but asserted the invaders themselves shot down six Chinese craft.

had struck the youth, a crowd gathered and smashed windows not only of the Jew's shop but those of nearby stores.

Anti-Semitic outbursts provoked a curious counter-action in Katzbach street, Berlin. Smeared across the street in huge red letters were Communistic words, "nevertheless, the Red front is still alive."

Estimates on Arrests.

Official estimates of the number arrested are lacking, except a report given the controlled press today—the first since the renewed anti-Semitic wave started June 1—saying two raids in Berlin resulted in the arrests of 460 Jews, of whom 71 were found to be "heavily incriminated," 26 were "without nationality," and 51 were foreigners "without proper papers."

Some observers believed, however, that raids yesterday and today led to 500 arrests, and that an estimate of 1000 in Berlin in the last three weeks seemed reasonable. Besides, 1000 were estimated to be under arrest in the provinces.

Today's official statement said all those arrested were "criminally suspicious persons" and "no political or other motives were behind these actions of the police, which were conducted in the course of regular checkups."

"A number of Jews had to be taken into protective custody for reasons of personal safety," the statement added.

Arrested on Small Excuse.

If a Jew had even as much as the equivalent of an ordinary American police parking ticket against him, that fact was seized upon as an excuse for long questioning, even though the offense was old and minor.

At Buchwald concentration camp, near Weimar, it was reported 65 army busses were arriving nightly from Berlin, filled with Jews. Other centers sent smaller contingents to the camp.

A Jew who was taken to Berlin police headquarters described his experiences there thus:

"There were 40 persons in the room into which I was pushed. There were only six towels for the 40. We had to take turns catching a few winks of sleep. I would say, however, that those who were shipped in busses to Buchwald concentration camp were each given two sandwiches by the officer in charge."

A check-up by the Gestapo (secret police) throughout Germany was reported to have been ordered. There were indications this work had already been begun in Frankfurt, Cologne, Vienna, Munich and other cities.

Jewish shops in Cologne were designated in such large letters nobody could overlook them.

"The characterization of Jewish stores as Jewish must be carried out so plainly that there can be no doubt about their nature," the Nazi press in Cologne declared.

In Worms, famed as Martin Luther's home, Jews had difficulty getting food because gentiles were afraid to sell it to them.

Eye-witnesses in Frankfurt said old, respectable families were routed from their beds and taken to police headquarters before dawn.

Many arrests were made in the popular coffee houses in Vienna.

Influx to Berlin.

Jews had flocked to Berlin in great numbers hoping this large city might afford them greater security than provincial centers.

Many Germans in various stations went out of their way to assure foreigners here how ashamed they felt about the mob actions.

The police chief in Salzburg, German Austria, decreed $50 fines for Jews caught wearing the popular, typically Tyrolian peasant garb such as leather shorts, hats and distinctive jackets.

The official account today said "the strong influx of anti-social Jewish elements to Berlin created 'strong excitment' among the Berlin population which led to isolated demonstrations."

Officials said many Jews moved here "hoping to disappear more easily than in smaller towns." Reliable sources declared Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels ordered the action for this reason.

JOHN ROOSEVELT, ANNE CLARK WED; GO ON HONEYMOON

year-old Joan Clark, little sister of the bride, who served as flower girl, emerged as one of the stars. Showing the poise of an adult, with only a slight tremor of the hands displaying her emotion, she walked through her part with eyes turned upward, drawing many an eye after her.

Two other children were only a bit less prominent. "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, grandson and granddaughter of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and the children of Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall Boettiger, sat wide-eyed and well behaved, with only "Sistie's" whispered, "How much longer now, please," betraying that she found weddings not quite so much fun as she had thought.

The bride's flowing gown of white organdy, embroidered with more than 600 yards of white ribbon, and her 10-yard veil and a train of tulle contrasted pleasantly with the hyacinth blue net dresses and large poke bonnets of natural straw worn by her six bridesmaids.

The President's wife was colorful in a dress of navy blue, trimmed with Eleanor blue. Chantilly lace, and blue hat and gloves, while the bride's mother wore an ensemble of gray crepe, trimmed in orchid.

President in Good Humor.

The President, clad in white flannels and a blue coat, was in high good humor. He waved to the noisy crowd outside as he drove up at 11:45 a. m., after a 10-mile motor trip from Salem, where he left the Government yacht Potomac. Leaning forward in his front-row pew, with one arm over the pew front, the President was serious, but not so serious as Mrs. Roosevelt during the ceremony.

Once the bride and bridegroom had left the altar, however, the President broke into animated conversation with those around him. His vivacity was rivaled only by that of his mother, who chatted constantly except during the actual services.

The chief talker of all was Postmaster-General Farley. Arriving 45 minutes early, accompanied by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, he whispered for the entire three-quarters of an hour into Morgenthau's ear.

There was more Farley talk later when, at the reception he retired to a corner with two other prominent Democrats, Edward J. Flynn, New York Secretary of State, and Frank C. Walker, former director of the National Emergency Council.

Toasts at Reception.

Among the toasts at the wedding reception was one proposed by John Roosevelt to the Rev. Mr. Peabody "because today is the fifty-third wedding anniversary of the man who married Anne and I."

The bride looked up quickly, apparently desiring to correct the bridegroom's grammatical error in saying "I" instead of "me," but decided to remain silent.

After he had proposed other toasts to his friends and "to all the Clarks, individually and collectively," which brought from Mrs. Clark the words, "how nice." Elliott Roosevelt drank a toast "to the last bride and groom before Anne and John, Ethel du Pont and Franklin."

In looking back on the day as a whole, expert witnesses of many a wedding event were almost at loss to find a flaw. But there was one. John forgot to kiss the bride at the altar.

Champagne at Wedding Stirs Church Moderator.

By the Associated Press.

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark., June 18.—The committee on prohibition and law enforcement of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church today considered a demand by Moderator D. D. Dowell for "a definite stand" on the serving of champagne at a reception which followed the Roosevelt-Clark wedding in Nahant, Mass.

The committee's report is expected Monday when the General Assembly of the church will resume its business sessions.

"It's time something was done about these things," Moderator Dowell said.

PITTSBURGH WITHOUT SUNDAY NEWSPAPERS

Sun-Telegraph, Press to Negotiate With Striking Office Workers Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, June 18.—Representatives of Pittsburgh's two afternoon newspapers, the Sun-Telegraph and the Press, met today with officials of a striking office workers' union and agreed to begin negotiations Monday toward settlement of a strike, which for the first time in many years stilled the Saturday night roar of presses.

E. D. Becker, business manager of the Sun-Telegraph, said nothing else was discussed at the conference and no meetings would be held over the week-end.

Meanwhile residents of Pittsburgh were without hometown afternoon or Sunday newspapers. The Sun-Telegraph, a Hearst publication, and the Press, published by Scripps-Howard, are afternoon newspapers with Sunday morning editions. The Post-Gazette, a morning newspaper, unaffected by the strike, does not have a Sunday edition.

The strike was called yesterday after the collapse of negotiations for renewal of a wage contract between the afternoon newspapers and their office workers, members of the Newspaper and News Distributors' Office Workers Local 2134.

Banners carried by union pickets in front of the newspaper buildings demanded a closed shop, pay increases and improved working conditions. Publishers announced they had granted pay increases and other benefits, but refused a closed shop.

The refusal of mechanical unions to cross the picket lines forced the newspapers to suspend. All employes, except skeleton crews designated by department heads to remain on duty, were placed on a payless furlough for the duration of the strike.

The office workers union and the sympathetic mechanical unions are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

A meeting of mechanical union officers was held today, with editorial employes, affiliated with the American Newspaper Guild, a C I O affiliate, "sitting in" as observers. Guild representatives discussed a demand on the publishers for pay during the furlough.

MUSICIANS' FEDERATION VOTES TO AID FIGHT FOR TOM MOONEY

Unspecified Amount to Be Contributed—Next Convention Goes to Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., June 18. — The American Federation of Musicians voted today to contribute an unspecified amount to aid in the fight for release of Tom Mooney, imprisoned for the San Francisco preparedness parade bombing and now seeking freedom through an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The amount was left to decision of the executive board. Jack Tenny, Los Angeles, urged the annual convention of the Federation to make the fund as large as possible, saying "organized labor can never be free as long as Tom Mooney is behind bars."

Kansas City was selected for next year's convention. J. W. Parks, Dallas, Tex., was re-elected a member of the executive board, defeating Jacob Rosenberg, New York. Joe Weber, New York, was re-elected head of the Federation yesterday.

WOMAN WHO SHOT HUSBAND IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Warrant Issued After She Tells Wisconsin Coroner's Jury She Fired in Self-Defense.

By the Associated Press.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., June 18. — Mrs. Lillian Lutzke, 23-year-old mother, was charged today with the first degree murder of her husband, Milton, 31. She was held in the county jail.

District Attorney Jacob Fessler issued the warrant after a Coroner's inquest established that Lutzke died Thursday night on a lonely "lovers' lane" from a bullet from a .38-caliber revolver fired by his wife.

Mrs. Lutzke told the Coroner's jury yesterday the shot was fired in self-defense as she struggled with her husband for the pistol. Their quarrel began, she said, when they visited a tavern and the bartender asked her if he hadn't seen her before.

The shooting was witnessed by Bernard Lutzke, 5, cowering in the back seat of their car.

DE VALERA'S PARTY LEADERS IN DAIL EIREANN ELECTION

Prime Minister Expected to Win Small Majority, If He Maintains Early Advantage.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, June 18.—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera's Fianna Fail party maintained a steadily-rising lead tonight in returns from yesterday's general election.

At midnight the count gave the American-born Prime Minister's party 37 seats to 18 for the Fine Gael, principal opposition party. The labor and independent parties at that hour had received four seats each.

Contests were conducted for 131 seats in the Dail Eireann (lower house of Parliament) with seven members unopposed in the election called by de Valera to obtain a working majority.

If the Prime Minister maintains his early lead he is expected to win a small majority, as had been forecast by pre-election observers.

Gen. Richard Mulcahy, former Defense Minister, was among the winning candidates, regaining the seat he lost in the last election.

Sean T. O'Kelly, Deputy Prime Minister who created a sensation by declaring Eire "whipped John Bull" in the recently signed English-Irish agreement, was returned with a large majority.

WHEELER DEFENSE COUNSEL IN TRUCK RACKETEERING CASE

Montana Senator to Argue Wednesday on Demurrer to New York Indictments.

NEW YORK, June 18.—John Harlan Amen, special assistant United States Attorney-General, said today Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana would appear for the defense Wednesday when United States District Judge Vincent L. Leibell hears arguments on motions demurring to indictments in an alleged trucking racket here.

Two indictments charge eight officers and delegates and 62 members of Local 807 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, and six other individuals with violating the Federal anti-racketeering act and the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The Government charges shippers and truckers who send goods to this city have been intimidated at the city limits and compelled to pay $9.42 a trip for each truck for the privilege of completing the delivery within the city, or having a member of the local union complete the transportation. The Government charges tribute of $1,000,000 has been collected annually.

WPA Survey Urges Relief Be Put on Permanent Basis

"Instability of Labor Appears to Be Normal Accompaniment of Economic System," Report Points Out.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18. — The W P A decided today that the unemployment problem is a lasting one and must be coped with by a permanent program.

The relief agency, in a survey, explored the questions of technological unemployment, industrial trends, prices and wages, then concluded:

"No single program will eliminate the distress resulting from unemployment. An integrated and perfected program of insurance, public work and public assistance will be necessary.

"Under such a program, unemployment insurance could care for persons who lose their jobs for relatively short periods of time. Persons unemployed for protracted periods would receive incomes through work programs. The most important fact is that unemployment relief can no longer be regarded as a temporary problem to be treated on an emergency basis."

Local Relief Outmoded.

The survey said the "outmoded local relief of the pre-industrial era" was inadequate to meet the shock of a major depression.

The instability of employment and the presence of some idle labor at all times means, the survey concluded, the "probable permanence of destitution." The instability of the labor situation, it said "appears to be a normal or expected accompaniment of the highly specialized economic system."

"While many of the factors contributing to instability and unemployment may be amenable to a measure of control, some probably are not," the W P A said.

Increase of Labor Supply.

The survey said that in addition to the influences of business cycles and technological improvements on unemployment, the normal increase of labor supply must be reckoned with. It estimated a 500,000 annual addition from this latter source and said it was likely such a rate of increase would continue "for some time to come."

"In view of these factors," the report said, "it appears certain that unemployment will continue to be a serious problem in the future."

The survey, made by the W P A's division of research, was transmitted today to Administrator Harry Hopkins by Assistant Administrator Corrington Gill.

NORTH CHINA PUPPET RULERS ISSUE APPEAL FOR PEACE

Japanese-Sponsored Government at Peiping Urges Desertion of Chiang Kai-shek.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, June 18.—The Japanese-sponsored North China provisional government issued a plea today for peace in war-torn China.

Urging North China provincial Generals to desert Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and take their armies with them, the appeal declared: "If the Northern Generals still commanding Chinese troops should leave the Kuomintang (Central Government), there is no reason why they could not return to their native districts with troops and arms."

A number of Japanese army officers, present when the statement was issued, apparently approved it. It was understood, however, that the same appeal had been censored Thursday by the Japanese army mission under Major-General Seiichi Kita, Japanese political manipulator for North China.

MINORITY PROPOSAL HELD UP BY CZECHS

Sudeten Spokesman Suggests Premier Has Opposition in His Own Ranks.

By the Associated Press.

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, June 18.—A Sudeten German party spokesman said today Premier Milan Hodza probably has run into opposition from within his own ranks regarding the Government's minorities statute, now in the making.

Official quarters denied the Premier had met opposition in the coalition government. The minorities statute, it was said, "is almost completed," and there was said to be full agreement in the Cabinet at all points.

Next week, discussions will be arranged between Premier Hodza and representatives of the Hungarian and Polish minorities. By the end of June, the statute will be ready for consideration by Parliament, the Government said.

"We still have no idea of what the proposed statute contains," said the spokesman for the party, which represents most of Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 Germanic minority, "but the repeated postponements of its publication indicate Premier Hodza is encountering opposition among his own colleagues."

The statute had been expected to be given to the Sudeten Germans last Tuesday after weeks of preparation and conferences with leaders of the Government and various minority groups. Now there is some talk of handing a draft of the proposed statute to the Sudeten Germans next week.

The Sudeten German spokesman emphasized his party was convinced of the sinceriety of the Premier's efforts to achieve a compromise between the Sudeten German demands for a measure of autonomy and Czechoslovakia's position.

The Sudeten German districts border on Germany and the Government does not desire to give up any power in these regions which might decrease defense effectiveness.

LEASE IS VOIDED ON NEW YORK "L" BY INTERBOROUGH

U. S. Judge Permits Transit Co. to Disaffirm 999-Year Contract for Manhattan Co. Properties.

MAYOR LA GUARDIA CALLS FOR APPEAL

Blames Transit Commission for Delaying Unification Which Would Solve Whole Problem.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 18. — Judge Robert H. Patterson gave a long awaited decision in United States District Court today permitting the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. to disaffirm its 999-year lease on the elevated properties of the Manhattan Railway Co. as a "burdensome" obligation, but upholding to a large degree the various contractual obligations of the Interborough Rapid Transit to the city.

Despite the belief that the city won at least a 50 per cent victory in the case, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia announced the decision would be appealed immediately, and blamed the Transit Commission for "the delay in providing unification" which would have solved the whole problem.

Although the Manhattan interests had opposed some aspects of the disaffirmance action, they expressed pleasure at the decision and announced at once that they would petition the Transit Commission to operate their lines at a 10-cent fare. However, this action was considered premature, as Judge Patterson, recognizing the importance of the issues in the case, granted an immediate stay of the disruption of the transit system pending appeals to higher courts. The matter will undoubtedly go to the Supreme Court of the United States for final adjudication.

Judge's Conclusions.

Judge Patterson's 62-page decision went exhaustively into all phases of the financial and contractual history of the transit lines owned by the Interborough and Manhattan companies. Among the conclusions drawn from the decision are:

1. If the decision is upheld in its present form the traveling public will not enjoy continuous through service between elevated and subway lines at three out of four transfer points in the city. At the fourth and largest transfer point, 149th street and Third avenue, free interchange from subway to elevated is allowed. At this station, where more than 50,000,000 fares were collected in each direction last year, the Interborough must fulfill a contractual obligation by permitting continuous through service at a single fare in either direction.

2. The decision, if upheld, will have a considerable effect on the city's position regarding rapid transit unification. It somewhat strengthens the position of the Interborough by relieving it of a large financial burden, while it almost completely wipes out the "nuisance value" of the Manhattan lines, some of which the city is anxious to abolish at the earliest possible moment.

City's Offer for Line.

3. In this connection, the decision will have a beneficial effect on the recent proposal of Manhattan bondholders to sell the Sixth avenue line of the Manhattan to the city for $12,500,000, so that it may immediately be abolished. Judge Patterson must, of course, rule on this application in a separate decision, but today's ruling had the effect of removing the Interborough as a party to the action. The Sixth avenue transaction, if ultimately completed, would then be a deal purely between the city and the various security holders groups of the Manhattan.

4. The decision should undoubtedly have the effect of speeding the action of the constitutional convention in adopting an amendment to permit the city to effect unification by an issue of corporate stock or city bonds, exempt from the debt limit. Because of the complexity of the situation, with its many cross currents, the decision is expected to have the effect of bringing forcibly home to the constitutional delegates that the transit tangle is in serious need of solution.

Elevated Lines Losing Money.

In a significant part of the decision, Judge Patterson wrote: "There is ample proof that the Manhattan lease is burdensome to the Interborough insolvent estate and to the creditor interests in it, and that if payments of rent under the lease are to be made, they must, in part at least, come out of what the receiver earns in subway operation. The minimum fixed rental called for by the lease as readjusted since 1922 exceeds $3,500,000 a year, made up of about $1,500,000 in taxes and $2,000,000 in bond interest and dividends.

"Whether or not the Manhattan lines are now being run at an actual operating loss, as claimed by the Interborough receiver, there can be no doubt that any income above operating expense fails by a wide margin to meet the rent and that this has been the condition since receivership. There is also ample proof that the entire elevated division is and has been for years a losing venture."

PILOT SKIDS TO EARTH AS PLANE WHEELS JAM

Navy Flyer Circles Kansas City Airport Three Hours—He and Passenger Unhurt.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., June 18. —After circling above for more than three hours with a jammed landing gear, Naval Cadet Robert Slye, 25 years old, of Washington, D. C., brought his plane to a safe "belly" landing at the Fairfax Naval Reserve Airport late today.

Neither he nor his passenger, James A. Plant, 23, of Long Beach, Cal., a second-year cadet on his way home from West Point, was injured. The plane was damaged only slightly as it skidded from a runway on to the field grass and nosed over slightly.

Thousands of spectators had been drawn to the field to watch the maneuvering of the Navy scout bomber, which was being ferried from Anacostia Airport, near Washington, to San Diego. Fire equipment and a police ambulance had been held in readiness.

The air drama started when Lieutenant-Commander F. J. McKenna, from Norfolk, Va., flying a companion ship, landed and hastily ordered a warning sign painted on his ship. He went back aloft with the words "drop tanks" gleaming from his fuselage. But it was two hours before Slye cut loose his auxiliary gasoline tank, which might have caused an explosion in a pancake landing.

The last of several notes he dropped as he banked around the field asked: "When I land at approximately 4:55 o'clock shall I land on the grass or runway?"

Before an answer could be painted he brought his ship to the ground with the remark that he didn't feel "nerves" until just as he landed.

Slye is attached to the U. S. S. Enterprise at Norfolk. He was trained at the Pensacola, Fla., flying school.

$3763 GIVEN TO RED CROSS FOR CHINESE WAR REFUGEES

Campaign Committee Chairman Issues Additional Appeal for St. Louis Contributions.

A total of $3763 has been collected in St. Louis to date in the Red Cross campaign to raise funds for Chinese war refugees, J. Lionberger Davis, chairman of the campaign committee, reported yesterday.

Davis issued an additional appeal for funds, pointing out that the quota which the Red Cross has set for St. Louis to contribute is $15,000. He said letters had been sent out asking for additional funds.

"Since our initial appeal for funds," he added, "devastating floods have swept over a large area of China, bringing untold additional suffering among the population. As a result the need for food, clothing, shelter and medical aid now is greater than ever."

DRUG PEDDLER AND WIFE SURRENDER TO BEGIN TERMS

Hysterical Entourage of Joseph Bertuglia So Noisy It is Put Out of Marshal's Office.

Joseph Bertuglia, a Sicilian, described by the Federal narcotic bureau as "the city's biggest dope peddler," and his wife, Cecilia, appeared at the Federal Building yesterday with a hysterical entourage and surrendered to begin serving prison terms of three years each for violation of the Harrison Anti-Narcotic Act.

Convicted by a Federal jury last September with William Roberts, a Negro, Bertuglia, an alien and former bootlegger ,and his wife lost an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Defense counsel sought a delay in execution of the sentence on the ground that Mrs. Bertuglia was seriously ill. The plea was denied.

Mrs. Bertuglia was supported by several of 14 relatives and friends, who accompanied her and her husband to the Marshal's office. Their three daughters, 12, 17 and 19 years old, were present. The sobs and shouts of the group were so loud and continuous that Deputy Marshal Les Davison put all but the elder Bertuglias out of the office. The group continued the demonstration in a third-floor corridor as Bertuglia and his wife were taken to jail pending transfer to Federal prisons, he to Leavenworth and she to Alderson, W. Va.

Last night Mrs. Bertuglia was taken from the jail to City Hospital following examination by a jail physician who said she was suffering from a heart ailment. She was placed in a ward under guard of a Deputy Marshal.

TAVERN KEEPER SHOT AND KILLED IN ALTON

Fred Hrubetz Had Refused Herman Bush a Drink and Slapped, Him, Witnesses Say.

Fred Hrubetz, proprietor of Fred's Sandwich Shop, a tavern at 203 State street, Alton, was shot and killed there at 7 o'clock last night by Herman Bush, a bricklayer who rooms at 136½ Broadway, about half a block away. In the tavern at the time were three customers and two employes.

Clarence Gray of Alton, bartender, and Anton Kurant of Maryville, porter, told the police that Bush was refused a drink when he entered the place about 6:45. He then demanded the return of a .22-caliber rifle Hrubetz was holding for him. Hrubetz replied that he would not return the gun until Bush paid an $80 debt.

Hrubetz slapped Bush's face and then knocked him to the floor when he persisted in his demands, witnesses said. Bush left the tavern, but returned 10 minutes later with a revolver in his hand. As the porter grabbed for the weapon, Bush fired, the police were told.

The bullet entered under Hrubetz's left shoulder and emerged from the chest and he died on the way to St. Joseph's Hospital. He was 28 years old. His widow and one daughter survive.

Bush, 54, was arrested in an alley back of the tavern. Police said he had a black eye and a cut on the forehead.

106 MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED IN DAY; CITY HALL RECORD

888 So Far This Month, as Compared With 671 in Corresponding Period Last Year.

A new record for the number of marriage licenses issued in one day at the City Hall bureau was established yesterday. Marriage License Clerk James J. Kelley said he had issued 106 when the office closed at noon. The largest number for one day had been 90.

So far this month, Kelley said, 888 licenses have been issued, as compared to 671 for the corresponding period last year. Since Jan. 1, his records showed 4382 licenses issued, while for the corresponding period last year there were but 3179.

The increase was attributed to the new Illinois law providing that a marriage license may be issued there only on presentation of a physician's certificate showing that applicants are free from venereal diseases.

HOUSEWIFE, 20, SAYS SHE ROBBED 50 HOMES

Filling Station Worker's Wife Asserts She Spent Money for Good Clothes.

A 20-year-old housewife who was arrested yesterday afternoon after she had entered the living quarters of a bartender at Salena and Lynch streets admitted to police last night that she had robbed about 50 South St. Louis homes in the last three years.

The young woman, Mrs. Viola Richardson, 2326 South Twelfth boulevard, wife of a filling station worker, declared her husband had no knowledge of the robberies, and said she spent the money taken from homes only for "good times and good clothes."

Mrs. Richardson, a slender brunette, told a Post-Dispatch reporter she began robbing homes shortly before her marriage in 1935. Her loot always was small, she said, because she looked only for money and occasionally for jewelry. All of the robberies were committed in the daytime, while her husband was at work, she said.

She said she was unable to estimate the amount of loot obtained in the long series of robberies, but declared that $52 was the largest amount in any one theft. She admitted specifically the robbery of 16 residences after policemen had checked the files of home burglaries in the South Side. Fifteen purses, which Mrs. Richardson admitted taking from homes, were found at her home.

When she was unable to account for her presence in the bartender's quarters, police were summoned. She said she had been caught in homes several times previously, but always had been able to explain that she "was looking for a friend and got the wrong address," or that she was "selling chances on a church drawing."

Her method of operation, she said, was to knock at the front and rear doors of a home, and then to try the door if no one answered. Last week, when children from the Humboldt School were parading through a residential street, she said, she entered a home and stole $30 from a purse while the owner was standing on the curb watching the children.

"I just wanted good clothes and good times," Mrs. Richardson said. She added that she spent virtually all of the money for herself, although occasionally she bought some small article for her husband.

STEPHEN J. CASHEL ESTATE

An inventory of the estate of Stephen J. Cashel, president of the Columbia Terminals Co., who died May 22, was filed in Probate Court yesterday, listing property valued at $56,505. The assets consist of notes, $6000; bonds, $28,275; stocks, $18,510; cash, $1245; pledged assets, $2000, and chattels, $475.

Mr. Cashel, who was 59 years old, resided at 4399 McPherson avenue. In a joint will he executed with his wife, Mrs. Emma Cashel, in July, 1935, it was provided their estates were to descend to the survivor. Mrs. Cashel and the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. are co-administrators.

$30,000 BEQUEST VOID; WIDOW WINS $125,000

Dower Rights Restored to Mrs. C. E. Brockmeier Who Made Marriage-Day Agreement.

A marriage-day agreement by which Mrs. Clara E. Brockmeier was to accept $30,000 under the will of her husband, the late John C. Brockmeier, flour merchant, was set aside by Circuit Judge Eugene J. Sartorius yesterday in a suit in which she contended she had not been advised of his true wealth.

The Court's decree restored to Mrs. Brockmeier a wife's dower right to a one-third interest in her husband's estate, so that she will receive about $125,000. Inventory of the estate of her husband, who died in December, 1936, valued his personal property at $85,283 and listed his real estate holdings without valuing them. However, Julius T. Muench, attorney for one of the ultimate beneficiaries under the will, estimated value of the estate at $375,000.

In accordance with the agreement, signed June 5, 1928, the day of the marriage, Brockmeier willed $30,000 to his wife. His will directed that the remainder of his estate be held in trust for benefit of his sons by a former marriage, Henry C. and Edwin Brockmeier. Ultimate beneficiaries were the Evangelical Lutheran Society for Homeless Children and Aged People, German Protestant Orphan Home, Good Samaritan Altenheim, St. Louis Altenheim, Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children and the Lutheran Charities of St. Louis.

Under the Court's decree the two sons will receive the income from two-thirds of the estate and Mrs. Brockmeier will receive her one-third share outright. Thus, expectation of the ultimate beneficiaries is for only two-thirds of the estate. As defendant parties they assented to the decree.

Mrs. Brockmeier resides at 4227 Magnolia avenue.

FUNERAL TUESDAY AT SUFFERN, N. Y., FOR DR. COPELAND

Services Will Be Held at Home of the Dead U. S. Senator With Burial in Mahwah, N. J.

CONGRESS TO SEND COMMITTEE OF 8

Physician Who Turned to Politics Stricken at 69 at Close of Session, Victim of Overwork.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Funeral services will be held for United States Senator Royal S. Copeland Tuesday at 2 p. m. at his home at Suffern, N. Y., with burial in Mahwah, N. J.

The body, accompanied by Mrs. Copeland, was taken by train to Suffern today.

A delegation of four Representatives and four Senators to be appointed by Vice-President Garner will attend the funeral.

The Senator died at 7:45 p. m. yesterday at his apartment here after a sudden general circulatory collapse which was complicated by a kidney ailment. He was 69 years old. Dr. Harry Kaufman said he had "driven himself too hard" during the session of Congress which ended Thursday night.

Copeland had stayed on the Senate floor until almost the last, taking part in a dozen major legislative fights under the heavy pressure of a pre-adjournment rush. In the last weeks of the session he served on nine separate committees to work out legislative differences between the House and Senate.

Combining a career of medicine, public health and journalism with his political achievements, Dr. Copeland became one of the best-known American figures.

In Senate 15 Years.

He had been in the Senate 15 years and was one of the more influential members.

As chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee and the senior member of several other major committees, he helped fashion much important legislation. Merchant marine, aviation, and public health were among matters under his committee's supervision.

The Senator was not given to flights of oratory, but was a colorful figure on the Senate floor. The red carnation he invariably wore in his lapel became a Senate institution. A full crop of silver-gray hair contributed to his striking appearance.

A veteran Tammany Hall chieftain, Dr. Copeland broke with the Roosevelt administration soon after it came into power. At times he was sharply critical of New Deal policies, and became more and more outspoken after President Roosevelt proposed his Supreme Court reorganization bill. The New Yorker was one of those who helped defeat it.

When former Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson died in the midst of the fight, Dr. Copeland dramatically took the Senate floor to say that a continuation of the bitter struggle would mean the death of other Senators. Frequently he warned his colleagues to slow their pace or expect serious consequences.

When Copeland became the Tammany candidate for the Democratic mayoralty nomination in New York City last fall, Democratic Chairman Farley came out for another aspirant, Jeremiah Mahoney. The latter won the nomination, but was defeated by Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, who was re-elected.

He was author of a number of medical volumes, including several textbooks. Besides being a member of various medical societies, he was a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and a former president of the American Opthalmological and Otological Association.

Tributes: Roosevelt Wires Sympathy From Nahant, Mass.

President Roosevelt was one of the first to extend condolences to Mrs. Copeland, who, with their son, Royal S. Jr., was at her husband's bedside. In a telegram from Nahant, Mass., the President said:

"We have been greatly shocked to hear of the Senator's death. Mrs. Roosevelt joins me in sending to you our very deep sympathy."

Senator Wagner, the junior New York Senator, recalled that Copeland had struggled for days against growing illness to win a fight for the pure food and drug bill he had sponsored for the last five years.

"I regarded him as a great and loyal American—a man with the courage of his convictions," Wagner said. "He was faithful to his principles and to his people. I am heartbroken."

Mayor La Guardia of New York said he was "shocked and grieved."

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York said: "Senator Copeland served his city, State and nation for more than 20 years with great devotion. I have no doubt that the strain and continuous work which he so conscientiously carried on at the congressional session which has just ended hastened his death."

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith said "he was one of my oldest friends in politics and his loss will be equally felt by the Senate and the people of New York."

Speaker Bankhead Names House Funeral Delegation.

By the Associated Press.

JASPER, Ala., June 18.—Speaker Bankhead tonight named the entire congressional delegation from greater New York and Representative Bertrand Snell, the Republican leader, as a committee to represent the House at the funeral of Senator Copeland.

Woman Victim of Office Robbery

MISS VERA GANO.

WOMAN AND 5 MEN HELD UP; $500 TAKEN

Miss Vera Gano, Cashier, Forced to Hand Over Money at Grain Office.

Five men and the woman cashier were held up at the Grain & Feed Mills Co., 1020 South Second street, yesterday by two robbers, who forced the men to lie on the floor while the cashier, Miss Vera Gano, handed over $500.

The robbers entered the first-floor office with drawn revolvers at 10:45 a. m., shortly after Miss Gano's return from a bank with the currency. Shouting, "We mean business," one robber forced James J. Flynn, president of the firm, his brother, Joseph, manager, two employes and a visiting salesman to lie on the floor. "Keep your eyes shut, or we'll shoot you in the back," the leader directed.

When Miss Gano took only part of the money from a cash drawer, a robber demanded "the rest of it." He got the remainder of the cash, which he dropped into a brief case along with about $300 in checks, and ran out with his companion. The pair ran to Chouteau avenue and turned west. The loss was insured.

TWO BOYS KILLED IN CRASH OF BARNSTORMING PLANE

Passengers Lose Lives, Pilot Injured When Craft Falls 500 Feet at Hoagland, Ind.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., June 18.—Two youths were killed at Hoagland, near here, today in the crash of a barnstorming airplane.

The dead are John Kraft, 18 years old, and William Koenemann, 17, both of Hoagland, passengers in the plane. Ralph Davis, 26, of Fort Wayne, the pilot, suffered critical head injuries.

Witnesses said Davis had been flying passengers throughout the day. The accident occurred about a mile from the pasture which he was using for a landing field. He turned into a steep right bank and the plane suddenly went out of control and fell 500 feet to the ground.

Edgar Doerhman of Hoagland, a passing motorist, said the falling plane barely missed his automobile.

PITTSBURGH GLASS CO. LABOR HEARING JULY 7

Testimony to Be at City Hall in Crystal City as Result of N L R B Complaint.

A hearing will be held July 7 in the City Hall at Crystal City on a complaint of the National Labor Relations Board, charging the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. with unfair labor practices in its Crystal City plant.

Based on charges by the Federation of Flat Glass Workers of America, a C I O union, the complaint was issued yesterday by the local office of the Labor Board. The Crystal City plant, at peak production, employs between 1800 and 2000 workers.

The complaint charges the company violated the Wagner Act by interfering with employes in the exercise of their right of self-organization and listed a series of charges.

It is charged that the company kept constant surveillance over labor organizational activities of the employes, circulated propaganda for the purpose of discrediting union leaders and the principle of labor organizations, initiated and fostered activities by citizens and police officials of Crystal City and Festus against organizational efforts of the union, threatened bodily harm to union organizers appearing in Crystal City and urged employes to sign petitions which purported to indicate they were satisfied with conditions of employment and the company's labor policy.

As to propaganda, it is charged specifically that the company published a magazine, Glass Rays, in which were printed attacks on the C I O with the purpose of discouraging employes to join that union or similar organizations.

Other charges are that the glass company attempted to prevent the union from holding meetings by denying use of available halls, promoted formation of two labor organizations itself, refused to rehire four discharged men because they had joined the C I O union and demoted two employes for union activities.

Those who were discharged, the complaint says, were Stephen Bachak and Edmund Thomas, fired in 1936, and Paul J. Mueller and Edward Kuhlmann, discharged last April.

The two demoted, as named in the complaint, are Benjamin Brooks, reduced from first grade to second grade employe, and Bernard J. Pratt, demoted from electrician to electrician's helper.

In 1933, the complaint says, the company promoted formation of a labor organization among the employes, known as the Employes' Representation Plan, and last February promoted formation of the Crystal City Glass Workers' Union. It is charged that the company dominated the organizations, contributed financial and other support to them and coerced employes into joining them.

BODY OF MAN KILLED BY ADOPTED SON FOUND

Boy, 18, Shows Where He Hid It After Shooting Because of Scolding.

By the Associated Press.

ROYAL OAK, Mich., June 18.—An 18-year-old adopted son led officers today to the body of his foster-father, whom he confessed he shot May 31 because of resentment over a scolding for failing to mow the lawn.

The boy, Jason Edward Dulsky, hid his eyes as officers, after a 130-mile automobile ride to Arenac County, uncovered the body of Edward J. Dulsky, 50, the man who adopted him as a baby and reared him as his own child. Then Jason was returned to the Oakland County jail at Pontiac.

Previously he had led officers to the spot at a roadside near Royal Oak where he buried the pistol used in the shooting. It was recovered.

Prosecutor Franklin E. Morris said the boy's confession had been corroborated in every essential detail. He said Jason would be arraigned in justice court here Monday on a murder charge and would be taken at once into circuit court at Pontiac if he waived examination. He said the youth had said he would plead guilty.

Jason, a high school junior, confessed today, Assistant Prosecutor Sherman MacDonald said, after blood had been found in the trunk of the family automobile by officers investigating the disappearance of the elder Dulsky.

After shooting his foster father, he said, he put the body in the trunk of the automobile and started for Alpena, Mich., where Mrs. Dulsky was ill. North of Omer, in Arenac County, he drove down a side road, carried the body into some bushes and left it.

WOMAN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN CAR NEAR GREENVILLE, ILL.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GREENVILLE, Ill., June 18. — Mrs. Cordia Davis, 63 years old, wife of a Pana (Ill.) pharmacist, was found shot to death today in her automobile on State Highway No. 127 near here. Sheriff Ben S. Brown of Bond County expressed the opinion she had shot herself, but the inquest was continued until Wednesday to permit further investigation.

Her husband, Lloyd Davis, testified at the inquest, begun today, that she had suffered spells of despondency. He identified a revolver, with two discharged cartridges, that was found on the seat beside her, as one he had kept at home. An autopsy disclosed she was shot through the heart. No trace of the other bullet was discovered.

The doors of the car were locked, but Mrs. Davis' purse containing $36 and the keys to the car were found in an inside compartment, and authorities think she locked herself in the car.

Davis testified she left their home at 9:15 o'clock last night saying she was going to visit a sister at Mulberry Grove. He said she never had left their home before at so late an hour to make a visit.

UNION MAN ASSERTS BLANTON BARRED HIM

Refused to Negotiate Till He Left Strike Committee, J. E. Smith Testifies.

James Elza Smith of Nashville, Ill., a former employe of the Blanton Co., 318 South Second street, testified yesterday at a National Labor Relations Board hearing that David A. Blanton, president of the company, refused to negotiate for settlement of a strike at the plant in June, 1937, until he was removed from the strikers' negotiating committee, declaring that "Smith was a trouble maker."

The company, manufacturers of vegetable oil products, is charged in a Labor Board complaint with refusing to bargain collectively with a C I O union of Blanton employes and discharging 20 employes for union activity, in violation of the Wagner Act. The hearing, before Trial Examiner Hugh C. McCarthy at the Federal Building, will be resumed tomorrow.

Smith, one of those alleged to have been fired for union activity, declared that the union finally agreed to remove him from the committee so that negotiations would not be delayed, and that he did not attend conferences between the committee and Blanton. He said he thought that Blanton felt he was a "trouble maker" because he told Blanton he formerly belonged to another union.

A week before the strike, Smith related, the committee met with the president of the firm to request that he sign a contract with the union, the United Oleomargarine Workers' Industrial Union, Local 489.

Called Aside at Meeting.

Smith said that at the meeting Blanton called him aside and wanted to know if he was responsible for the organization of the union at the company. Smith told him he was not.

"He told me I was causing a lot of trouble at the plant and asked me if I wasn't satisfied," the witness related. "I told him I was satisfied, but that I also wanted to improve myself."

He said Blanton replied: "Well, I would just as soon you quit now—you are causing too much trouble here."

Smith also testified that Blanton referred to a CIO organizer who was attending the meeting as a "Communist," and objected to the presence of one employe on the ground "he is too young to know what this is all about."

Smith Not Rehired.

Blanton refused to sign a contract with the union, declaring he would never sign with the CIO and that the American Federation of Labor was no more desirable, Smith said. The strike followed about a week later and Smith was not rehired when the strike was settled July 12.

Roscoe Jones, also of Nashville, Ill., testified he was discharged last Sept. 15 for permitting a large quantity of vegetable oil to overflow from a tank. He said other employes who had wasted oil on previous occasions had not been fired. He said he had been active in the union and served on the picket line during the strike.

George Bickel, a stationary engineer at the Blanton company for 11 years before the strike, declared that he went to see the president of the firm when he was not recalled to work after the strike.

Blanton told him, Bickel said, that he had nothing against him, but that there was no place for him. The witness said that when he pointed out that another employe had his job, Blanton asked him: "Why were you on the picket line?"

He explained that as a member of the union he had the right to serve as a picket, but Blanton, he said, told him: "Go hunt up another job."

Tells of Blanton's Speech.

Testimony that Blanton discouraged union organization at a meeting of employes early in June, 1937, was given by Charles Webb, a maintenance employe, who was not re-employed after the strike. Webb said Blanton told the employes they had the right to join a union, but that those employes who wished to continue under the company's bonus plan were "the ones who are going to get the work around here."

Blanton mentioned condemnation proceedings in the riverfront memorial district, where the plant in located, and said there was a possibility that the firm would be moved to Arkansas, Webb said. He also made reference to the possibility that labor-saving devices would be installed in the plant, the witness declared.

49 UTILITY PROJECTS AWAIT POWER POLICY

P W A Lists Those Held Up Because They Might Compete With Private Firms.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18. — The P W A made public today a list of 49 proposed power projects which are being held up here temporarily pending clarificaation of national power policy.

Officials consider that these projects might be in competition with existing private utilities. P W A's problem is to find a formula for offering the utilities a "fair and reasonable" price for the properties.

If an acceptable price were agreed to, persumably the municipality interested would take over the private plant. If no agreement is reached, the P W A would approve the necessary construction loans and grants.

This administration policy of handling future municipal power plant construction was announced by Senator Barkley (Dem.), Kentucky, during consideration of the P W A appropriation in the spending-lending bill.

The task of working out a practical formula has been turned over to Thomas G. Corcoran and Benjamin V. Cohen, President Roosevelt's two young advisers. If they are successful in evolving a well-defined policy it may be made the basis of a new presidential pronouncement on power.

Among the 49 projects, involving an estimated outlay of $56,780,026, are:

El Dorado, Ark., $663,000; Auburn, Ill., $79,000; Caruthersville, Mo., $175,000; Mountain Grove, Mo., $128,200; St. Charles, Mo., $65,000.

A DRUGGIST'S DISCOVERY!

Sensational 2-MINIT TREATMENT FOR DANDRUFF AND DRY HAIR

Unlike anything you have ever used. Contains no oil—no alcohol. Takes only 2 minutes to apply. Requires no wash—no rinse—no shampoo.

NOTE INTRODUCTORY OFFER

An utterly NEW way to treat dandruff and dry hair has been found. A way that removes dandruff with incredible speed. That allays that intolerable itching of the scalp brought about by neglected dandruff. That reconditions the hair and brings back the natural gloss and brilliance.

2 Minutes Does the Work

The name is 2-Minit Red Cap Dandruff Treatment and it is completely NEW—in principle and results. There is no alcohol in it. Thus it does not dry the natural oils in the hair and scalp. It contains no oil, hence does not leave the hair and scalp sticky and greasy. It does not affect the color of the hair, so it can be used freely on dyed hair or bleached hair. It leaves no odor, so you can apply whenever and wherever you wish.

Even the method of application is new. It comes to you in INDIVIDUAL sealed glass containers like doctors use for costly medicines. Each sanitary ampule contains the correct amount for one complete individual treatment. You merely break the seal on this ampule, sprinkle the Treatment on your hair, rub gently for about 2 minutes, then comb the hair.

That's all you do. No wash. No rinse. No shampoo.

Beauty Experts and Barbers Use It

Barbers tell us that men who have had dry, itching scalps—who have been embarrassed by the almost constant flaking of dandruff onto their coats—have shown astonishing improvement after one treatment.

Beauty experts report that it brings a new sheen and sparkle to hair that has become dry and brittle from permanent waves—and that it has proved extremely helpful to scalps that have become dry and parched from dyeing, bleaching or permanents.

First Application Proves Coming Results

Shortly after your first application of 2-Minit Red Cap Dandruff Treatment, you feel your scalp tingling with new cleanliness, new vitality. In a short time, you brush away an amazing amount of dandruff loosened by this remarkable home treatment. And see a new sparkle and sheen in your hair.

If your scalp is particularly dry and your hair lifeless, the first application will probably bring a stinging, smarting sensation. The scalp may become sensitive for a day or two. Do not be disturbed about this. It merely indicates that the Treatment is doing its work—removing the scaly dandruff that is now keeping the natural sparkle, lustre and sheen out of your hair. Once this dandruff has been removed, and the dry condition of your scalp corrected, Nature herself will rapidly supply your hair with the natural oils it needs.

TESTIFIES MATCH FIRM HEAD OPPOSED C I O

Worker Says A. H. Rosenberg Advised Him to Give Up Union Activities.

Two witnesses who testified yesterday for the National Labor Relations Board in its hearing of charges that the Universal Match Corporation engaged in unfair labar practices will be cross-examined by counsel for the company at resumption of testimony tomorrow in Federal Building before Trial Examiner D. Lacy McBryde.

They are George Drybread, watchman at the company's plant in Ferguson and vice-president of Local 180, United Match Workers, of the C I O, which made the complaint against the company, and Mrs. Ione Tolle, president of Local 180. Testimony of both was introduced by the N L R B in an effort to show the match company sponsored the Independent Match Workers of Missouri, in an effort to defeat a C I O organization campaign.

Drybread, who was re-employed after being laid off Oct. 5, 1937, testified as to a conversation he had with A. H. Rosenberg, president of the company, in August, 1937. He said that after a discussion of his union activities, Rosenberg said, "If there's any job in the place you could fill and are willing to drop your C I O activities, let me know."

Mrs. Tolle, who testified she not only was president of Local 180, but also a member of the independent union, told of attending two meetings in the company cafeteria where the women of the plant were addressed by Miss Mabel Patterson, one of the workers. She quoted Miss Patterson as saying at one of the meetings, "You will have to join the independent union, because this is going to be a closed shop out here and if you don't join, you won't be working here any longer."

Similar testimony about the two meetings was given by Mrs. Eva Knowles, employed at the plant in 1937 as a packer, and Mrs. Jane Ford, a machine operator. Mrs. Ford quoted Miss Patterson as saying it was necessary to form an independent union to keep out other unions. The Labor Board takes the position the company was responsible for the meetings because they were countenanced by plant officers.

In cross-examination of Mrs. Knowles and Mrs. Ford, counsel for the company sought to establish the point that Miss Patterson was speaking as a representative of the independent union, which the company contends had been organized without its interference. In a formal answer to the charges, the company also denies that any workers were fired for union activity.

After completion of the cross-examination tomorrow, William J. Avrutis will continue presentation of the Labor Board case.

KILLING OF ROBBER SON OF OFFICER HELD JUSTIFIABLE

Father and Widow Attend Chicago Inquest, but Are Not Required to Testify.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The police shooting of Harold Keen, 23-year-old son of a policeman, was justifiable homicide, a Coroner's jury decided today.

Hunted since May 28 by several squads of policemen, including his father, Detective Ernest L. Keen, young Keen, known as the "dawn bandit," died in a hail of machine-gun bullets Thursday when he drew a revolver on walking into the midst of waiting officers. Detective Keen had warned his fellow officers as they set out to get his son: "Be careful; he's dangerous and he'll shoot."

Sergt. Joseph McCabe testified at the inquest today that young Keen attempted to shoot and then McCabe and others riddled him.

McCabe said Keen was identified as the man who held up more than 30 gasoline stations and restaurants in the early morning hours in the last 30 days.

Detective Keen and the youth's widow, Angeline, 19, an expectant mother, attended the inquest, but were not required to testify.

ORREN K. SIMS RELEASED FROM BOND, NO CHARGE

He Admitted He Smeared Fluid on Face and Then Reported Acid Attack.

Orren K. Sims, Ford assmbly plant employe, who was placed under $200 bond after he admitted that he smeared a fluid on his face early last Tuesday and then reported an acid attack, was released from the bond when he appeared in police court at Webster Groves yesterday. There was no charge against him.

Sims, who married Miss Theresa J. Anderson of Clayton last Monday, explained to police and reporters that he had several drinks of beer before faking the acid attack. Twice last winter Sims reported being attacked with acid and both times identified a CIO striker, with whom he formerly worked at the Ford plant.

1200 BOYS AT SCOUTS' ANNUAL CUB RALLY

40 Packs at First Separate Gathering in Forest Park.

More than 1200 boys representing 40 Cub packs converted the old tourist camp in Forest Park into an Indian village yesterday in the first annual Cub Rally of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council.

The Cubs, boys from 9 to 12 years old, organized for pre-scout training, began arriving at 10 a. m. by bus, truck and automobile. Assisted by anxious mothers and interested sisters, they erected 30 tepees, bearing colorful Indian designs and ranging in height from 5 to 15 feet.

Dressed in multi-colored Indian costumes, adorned with feathered war bonnets, the boys paraded to the staccato beat of tom-toms before scout officials at 3 p. m. Following the parade, some of the more energetic braves, carrying bow and arrow and tomahawks, delighted visitors with impromptu war dances.

A heavy shower late in the afternoon interrupted for a short time a surprise treasure hunt for marbles, but did not lessen the enthusiasm of the boys, when they resumed their search. Following the hunt, the Cubs played ball with their fathers and then took time out to enjoy picnic lunches with their families.

At sundown, activities were resumed at a council fire presided over by J. V. Allison, veteran St. Louis Scout leader. A program of Indian dances and Cub songs featured the evening's entertainment, and an hour later the Cubs, tired but happy, gathered their tepees and departed for home, a warm bath and a comfortable bed.

This was the first Cub rally not held in conjunction with the Boy Scout Camporee, and the event will be conducted separately in succeeding years, Cub Director R. T. Meinholts announced at the council fire. Wilson C. Mitchell was general chairman of the rally.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT WORKERS DEMAND PAY RISE IN 3 MONTHS

Strike Threatened; Union Says There Can't Be Trouble During British King's Visit.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 18.—Under threat of a general strike, France's 750,000 Government employes gave the Government three months today in which to meet their demands for higher pay and shorter hours.

The Public Service Union, representing the state employes, said if the union's demands were not met by then, it would "take extremely energetic action, going so far as cessation of service."

The Public Service workers immediately carried their campaign to the country with public meetings and published articles protesting against their "isolation" from wage increases and the 40-hour week already extended to private industry.

The union organ, La Tribune des Fonctionnaires, specified that "because of international problems there can be no question of troubling celebrations during the presence of the King of England," who comes to Paris on a state visit June 28.

REPORT NOTES CHANGE IN BANKRUPTCY TREND

Moratorium or Reorganization Type of Procedure Gaining, Says Bar Committee.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—An American Bar Association committee report made public today notes a shift "from the old style bankruptcy to the moratorium or reorganization type, commonly known as the debtor-relief sections."

"This is not an accidental fact, but is due to a fundamental change that is quietly taking place throughout the country in the handling of credit problems," says the report, prepared by the Committee on Commercial Law and Bankruptcy for presentation to the association's annual convention in Cleveland next month.

"The economic and social community are both more interested in the status of a man or a firm composed of a group of men, than they are in their conviction of a past deed or misdeed," the report says. "Moratorium and reorganization, which treat with status, seem to come much closer to the present trends of thought than do the charge, trial and conviction of men or companies for misconduct warranting the seizure of their goods for liquidation."

Discussing Federal legislation for the reorganization of railroads, the report says:

"Discussion of the adequacy of the present reorganization procedure has expanded into active concern over the future of the railroad industry as a whole, accompanied by renewed realization that the railroad problem affects not a single economic group alone but is intimately bound up in the prosperity and welfare of the entire country."

MEREDITH ATTACKS CLARK IN OPENING CAMPAIGN

Charges Senator Led Fight That Killed Roosevelt Reorganization Bill.

By the Associated Press.

SIKESTON, Mo., June 18.—Willis H. Meredith began his campaign for the Democratic senatorial nomination here today by charging United States Senator Bennett C. Clark was the "spearhead of the fight" which killed President Roosevelt's reorganization bill.

Meredith is one of four opponents of the State's senior Senator, who is seeking renomination.

The former Speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives asserted he had filed for the nomination after Joseph T. Davis, St. Louis attorney and another "100 per cent New Deal" candidate, had told him he would not make the race.

Davis, who filed a few days after Meredith, will open his campaign next Tuesday night at Clayton. Clark will open his campaign at Flat River Saturday.

Missouri's Senators had come from St. Louis and Kansas City for 30 years, Meredith says, and it was time that rural Missouri was represented.

Meredith said he favored a plan to put those out of work "back on a small tract of land with a cow, sow, chickens and garden."

INQUIRY ON SUIT OVER MISSOURI STATE LIFE

Superintendent Robinson Asks Court Whether He Shall Press $850,000 Action.

George A. S. Robertson, State Superintendent of Insurance, yesterday asked the Circuit Court for instructions as to whether he should proceed with the $850,000 suit against directors of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co, filed by his predecessor, R. Emmet O'Malley, more than two years ago.

Robertson's petition for instructions was filed with Judge William S. Connor, in whose court the liquidation of certain claims against the insurance company is pending.

O'Malley's suit against 13 directors of the Missouri State Life charged them with responsibility for the $800,000 loan made by the company in 1932, which enabled one of the 13 directors, Julius H. Barnes, and his associates, to acquire control of the company. The loan, it was charged, was procured from three St. Louis banks, $500,000 from the First National and $150,000 each from Boatmen's National and Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

The loan was made to the Insurance Equities Corporation, holding concern for stock of the Kentucky Home Life Insurance Co. of Louisville, which in turn held stock of the Missouri State Life. The directors' action was approved by Joseph B. Thompson, then Superintendent of Insurance.

Robertson, in his motion filed yesterday, said the pleadings in the suit were not yet at issue. "Continuance with the prosecution," Robertson said, "may mean repudiation by the petitioner (Robertson) of the act of one of his predecessors (Thompson), whereas to discontinue the suit would mean repudiation of the act of another his predecessors (O'Malley)."

MUNICIPAL ASSESSMENT BOND INTEREST U. S.-TAX EXEMPT

Circuit Court at Chicago Upholds Federal Appeals Board in Ruling.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today that interest from municipal special assessment bonds was exempt from Federal income tax.

The ruling written by Judge J. Earl Major and concurred in by Judges Will M. Sparks and Walter C. Lindley was in the case of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue against Michael Pontarelli, a contractor and holder of 1930 special assessment Chicago sewer bonds.

Upholding the Federal Board of Tax Appeals, from which the appeal was taken, the court ruled the interest from such bonds was paid as an obligation of the city to the bondholders and was not subject to tax as income.

Pontarelli's counsel said the decision was the first by a Circuit Court of Appeals since efforts first were made two years ago to tax interest on municipal assessment bonds.

$775,000,000 IN FARM BENEFITS THIS YEAR

Payments Will Be Made to Growers Earlier Than in Other Seasons.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Agriculture Department officials said today about $755,000,000 would be available for payments to farmers who complied with this year's crop control program. Ordinarily, the money would be paid several months after the crop season is over, but because of a drop in the demand for farm products and lower prices the payments will be speeded up this year.

The first big lot of benefit payments will be $130,000,000 in price-adjustment payments to cotton farmers. These payments will be made to growers who produced cotton last year and who planted within this year's acreage allotments. The payments may start early in August.

Payments to wheat, cotton, tobacco, corn and general crop farmers who comply with soil-building practices under the $500,000,000 soil conservation program should start in the fall, officials said.

Payments of $25,000,000 to domestic sugar cane and beet producers on last year's crop will start within a few weeks.

Supplementing these payments will be the spending of $75,000,000 by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation during the next 12 months for surplus farm products.

The Farm Administration will use $175,000,000 more for rural relief.

REGIONAL INQUIRY INTO USE OF PUBLIC FUNDS IN POLITICS

Walsh Expects Many Unfounded Complaints But Promises There Will Be No Whitewash.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18. — Senator Walsh (Dem.), Massachusetts, said today he would suggest Friday to the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, of which he is a member, that regional representatives be chosen to initiate all investigations necessitated by complaints that public funds were used for political purposes. After these regional deputies reported the committee could decide which complaints warranted action, Walsh said.

Walsh said there would be "no whitewash of any complaint, no matter whom it involves."

"Of course we expect to receive a great many unfounded complaints from disgruntled candidates," he added, "but every one of them will be thoroughly investigated."

Senator Sheppard (Dem.), Texas, chairman of the committee, echoed Walsh's sentiments. Other members of the committee are Senators O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, Harrison (Dem.), Mississippi, and White (Rep.), Maine.

COMMERCE CHAMBER ON WAGE-HOUR BILL

Many Uncertainties, It Says, in Measure Awaiting President's Signature.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18. — The Chamber of Commerce of the United States said today many uncertainties characterized the wage-hour bill.

In a special number of its Washington Review, the chamber said the measure now awaiting the President's signature was so largely rewritten in conference "that earlier committee reports and proceedings do not serve to give much clarification.

"Before the provisions of the measure become effective, in the latter part of October, there may be some attempt through regulations or official administrative interpretations to remove some of the uncertainties," it said.

The Review asserted one feature of the bill was its failure to confer express powers to make regulations in any general form.

Questions of "great practical importance," the Review said, are left to administrative decision. It stated that "obviously" there was to be much official activity immediately, "for an appropriation of half a million dollars for administrative expenses already has been made, with assurances that enough will be provided in the winter to carry the amount during the first year well over a million dollars.

"In fact, the amount for the first year may go up into the millions."

GOVERNMENT PLEA DENIED IN LIVESTOCK RATE CASE

Three-Judge Court at Kansas City Refuses to Stay Disbursement of Impounded $586,093.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 18.—A three-judge Federal District Court overruled today a Government motion to stay disbursement of $586,093 impounded in the Kansas City livestock rate case.

The Government still has the right to appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for an order preventing disbursement until Secretary of Agriculture Wallace arranges a hearing to determine if the rates he set June 14, 1933, were reasonable.

The Supreme Court last April ruled the rates invalid because the original hearing was "fatally defective."

The $586,093 represents the difference between rates set by Wallace and those in effect here as handling charges up to Nov. 7, 1937. The District Court held for Wallace in 1933 and commission firms were required to impound the difference in the two rate schedules pending appeal.

"TOO MANY SELL U. S. SHORT"

Grange Master Says Prophets of Doom Ignore Basic Soundness.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 18.—L. J. Taber, National Grange master, said tonight "the great trouble of the present hour is that too many people are selling America short."

The Columbus (O.) farm leader told a radio audience: "Too many crepe-hangers and prophets of doom are talking about the dark side of the picture. Too few are letting in the sunshine of truth—that America is basically sound."

Despite Crop Control Program, Threat of Record Wheat Yield And Low Prices Faces Wallace

Secretary Still Hopes Natural Elements Will Curtail Huge Harvest—Benefits Paid Farmers Close to $300,000,000.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-5 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and his assistants are hoping that the natural enemies of wheat will curtail what threatens to be a new record crop, one that might very well bring about a corresponding depression in the price of wheat.

The forecast on June 1 was for 1,020,623,000 bushels. Since then rust and other causes have affected the crop in places and the price has recovered considerably on the Chicago market. The only previous record that approaches the June 1 forecast was the 1,008,637,000-bushel crop in 1915, when the war-torn countries of Europe were taking large quantities of American wheat long before the era of Government crop-control.

Wallace and his assistants say that the soil conservation bill, under which the department has operated from February of 1936 to February of this year, lacked essential control features, and that, therefore, they had no effective check on the size of the wheat crop planted in the fall of '36 and '37. The original AAA measure was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in January, 1936. That decision held agriculture to be beyond the direct control of the Federal Government, so that the AAA could not make grants of money conditional upon withdrawal of acreage from crop production.

Total of Benefit Payments.

The measure substituted for it took cognizance of this decision and merely provided for compensatory payments for acreage not planted in "soil-depleting" crops. It did not call for acreage control as such, and therefore, according to AAA officials, was a more or less ineffective stop-gap. Control of production was relatively more effective under this law with respect to two crops, cotton and tobacco.

The total paid out in benefit payments to farmers under this law under the 1936 program, that is, up to Nov. 30, 1937, was $376,091,826, exclusive of office expense in the states and in Washington. The latest total for the 1937 program, compiled more than a month ago, was $186,138,887, and it is now estimated at close to three hundred millions.

Part of this money for both 1936 and 1937 went to farmers in wheat-growing areas. In Minnesota, one of the most important wheat states, farmers got a total of $18,714,896 under the 1936 program and they had been paid $5,889,092 for 1937 up to April 30. In fact, in the A A A's North Central division, made up of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota and Nebraska, where a large part of the wheat crop is grown, farmers have thus far been paid $58,780,818 for 1937.

Heavy Planting of Wheat.

The catch in this was, of course, that they did not have to take wheat land out of production in return for these payments. The farmers could reduce their crop of oats or rye, or they could obtain benefit payments merely by terracing their fields and taking other steps to preventsoil erosion.

So what happened? The price of wheat was high, thanks in large part to the drouth years of 1934 and 1935, and farmers planted as much acreage as possible in wheat. The total for the present crop season is close to 80,000,000 acres.

Now the A A A is operating under a much more rigid law, adopted last February. It was not passed in time, of course, to affect planting of wheat last fall. Under this law, Congress may establish a limit on total acreage in any one of five crops, and it is then up to the administrator of the A A A to see that farmers keep within this limit. Production quotas are obligatory, however, only if two-thirds of wheat farmers vote to take part in a program.

Wallace Urged More Acreage.

Some months ago Senators from wheat-growing states were determined to keep the total acreage very low, down as low, perhaps, as 45,000,000 acres. Wallace intervened in a letter to Senator Pope of Idaho and Senator McGill of Kansas, urging a highter total. Recently Congress adopted an amendment to the crop-control act setting the total at 55,000,000 acres. Under the "ever-normal granary" provisions of the present law, the A A A is require to make loans to farmers on wheat when the market price goes below half of the parity price, the parity price being the equivalent of the purchasing power of a bushel of wheat from 1909 to 1914—about $1.14. As the market sagged in the low sixties recently under the threat of a bumper crop, it looked as though the A A A might be called upon to make loans on enormous quantities of wheat. Now the price, due to reports of damage from rust, is back to between 79 and 80 cents, and Wallace and his assistants are breathing easier.

One factor in lending on wheat sealed in elevators is the storage charges which accumulates. "I'd hoped," Wallace said at his press conference this week, "that storage charges would not eat away values too greatly."

A A A officials were hopeful over the state of the European wheat crop until today. Ironically enough, it appeared that while we in America were threatened with ruin through an excessive crop, Europe was faced with hardship and financial uncertainty from a short crop. But the Agriculture Department's attache at Berlin reported today the prospects were Europe would have a good bread-grain crop and would need no more than nominal imports of wheat from the United States.

Export Outlook Not Bright.

While the Secretary of Agriculture was evasive in answers to direct questions, officials at the department are not hopeful of exporting any large amount of the surplus. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics has predicted an export of between 90,000,000 and 100,000,000 bushels, but it appears doubtful if this total will be reached. The greatest needs for wheat are in Italy and Spain, and neither country is in a position to buy American wheat.

Under the present law there is a provision for the stimulation of exports through a subsidy to farmers who sell at less than the domestic price. This was attempted through the Northwest Pacific Wheat Corporation. Of the soft white wheat produced in the Pacific Northwest, there was exported to the Orient through the corporation 28,000,000 bushels at a cost in subsidies to farmers of $6,500,000, or approximately 23 cents a bushel.

There is some indication that this might be done again with the special kind of wheat grown in the Pacific Northwest for export to the Orient. But it will not be attempted for the ordinary hard wheat grown in the Middle West. It is more or less hopeless to look to Europe to absorb any part of the excess crop in the present state of world trade, since most countries have rigid quota restrictions and virtually no foreign exchange.

There was a large acreage planted in wheat in the fall of 1936, but the carryover on the 1937 harvest was only about 200,000,000 bushels, which is not regarded as excessive. This was due in part to continuance of drouth conditions. This year rust may yet be a life saver for control, checking the vast crop that already is coming on, thanks to generous rainfall.

It is a mad world in which ruin follows not only the lean years, but the fat years. Secretary Wallace sometimes appears disturbed by the vagaries of nature, but he has not yet given up his attempt to achieve nation-wide crop control. It is admitted that the Washington Government cannot control the weather, and it remains to be shown that it can control the farmers.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 18.—Contracts for aerial photography to check performances on farms under the Agricultural Adjustment Act have been awarded for 26,454 square miles in 43 Missouri counties, according to Howard B. Shirkey, chairman of the State Agricultural Conservation Committee.

Shirkey said that with the use of a "planimeter" or "rotometer," the area of separate fields or the total area on a farm can be determined from enlarged photographs. Pictures are taken at a height of about two and one-half miles above the ground.

HOWARD MILLS SHUTS OUT YANKEES WITH FOUR HITS, 1 TO 0

THE CHIEF WINS DWYER, STAGEHAND RUNS THIRD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Maxwell Howard's Stagehand, making his first start since he became ill two days before the Kentucky Derby, could do no better than third in the $10,000 Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct this afternoon as his stablemate, The Chief, won the mile and an eighth race, with B. F. Whitaker's Mythical King second.

The Chief, beaten by Mythical King in the mile of the Shevlin Stakes last Saturday, won by five lengths. Mythical King was another four lengths in front of Stagehand, which failed to show the stretch drive that carried him to victory over Seabiscuit in the Santa Anita Handicap last winter. Myron Selznick's Can't Wait trailed by five more lengths in the four-horse field.

The Howard entry was the favorite at 7 to 10. Ridden by George Woolf, The Chief clicked off the distance in 1:48 2-5, only a fifth of a second off Discovery's track record.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Airflame won his fourth straight race, three of them this year, when he defeated the Wheatley Stables Snark by one and a half lengths in the seven furlongs of the $7500 Carter handicap.

Under Sonny Workman's guidance, Airflame set all the pace and finished the trip in 1:23 3-5, only three-fifths of a second off the track record. Howard Bruce's Jay Jay trailed Snark by four lengths for third place.

With Snark the favorite, Airflame paid 5 to 1.

This may have been Snark's last start of the season, as it was reported that Mrs. Phipps' five-year-old bowed in his left foreleg.

Lawrin Wins at Inglewood.

By the Associated Press.

INGLEWOOD, Cal., June 18.—Lawrin, making his first start since he captured the Kentucky Derby, won the $15,000 added Hollywood Trial Stakes today before a crowd of 50,000 at Hollywood Park.

Herbert M. Woolf's big colt, running to form that made him a two to one favorite, outdistanced A. A. Baroni's Specify, with Celevland Putman's Wing and Wing finishing third.

Lawrin broke a track record, set in the previous race, traveling the mile and one-sixteenth distance over a fast strip in one minute 43.2 seconds. The previous mark, set by Brown Jade, was one minute 44 seconds.

MISS BARRETT WINS WESTERN GOLF FINAL, 6-4

By the Associated Press.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 18.—Beatrice Barrett of Minneapolis won the women's Western Open golf championship at Broadmoor today, defeating Helen Hofman of Salt Lake City 6 and 4, in a scheduled 36-hole match.

Two up at the end of the morning round, Miss Barrett shot five under par golf, including three conceded holes, to close out the Utah girl.

Miss Barrett, runner-up in this tournament last year, was three up at the end of the 27 holes, and captured the twenty-eighth, twenty-ninth and thirtieth when Miss Hofmann tangled with Broadmoor's tough rough.

Helen rallied briefly to win the thirty-first with a birdie 2, but Miss Barrett ended the contest with two screaming wood shots on the thirty-second. Miss Hofmann hit her second into a trap and after taking two more to get on and missing her long putt, conceded the victory.

Two Sparring Partners Rock Louis With Rights

And Schmeling Gets HIS Ready

Champion Rolls His Eyes When Hit by Basher Dean, Who Uses Style of Schmeling in Workout.

By John E. Wray.
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., June 18.—If champion Joe Louis has improved in his defense or attack since he fought and lost to Max Schmeling two years ago, several hundred persons who paid $1.15 to get an eyeful were unable to notice it, in his semi-final workout here today.

The same Joe Louis with the same old faults permitted the husky and rather elderly heavyweight George Nicholson to score hard rights to the head on several occasions during their two-round setto; and it was the same old weakness against a right-hand sock that enabled the lignter Basher Dean, his second Negro opponent, to land several rights exactly according to the style of Schmeling. One of them connected so solidly that it made the champion roll his eyes and blink.

It was the same old trick of dropping his left glove after leading, that left the opening for the rights. And in all of the four rounds he worked—two against each opponent—Louis at times was off balance during exchanges and displayed some of the faulty footwork which two years ago Jack Johnson said would be his undoing.

Champion in Fine Condition.

Of course, there was another side to it. Joe shaped up in splendid physical condition, weighing 203 pounds. His legs are muscular and he very evidently is in grand shape. He forced the battling against both opponents and his left hand is still fast and good in some ways.

The observable difference in Louis' training workouts over what this writer has noticed in previous camps was the amount of attention Joe devoted to fighting close in.

He slugged away at his opponents' bodies while working close and then whipped up lefts and rights to the jaw. Apparently the idea is to get inside of Schmeling's heavy artillery and use his powerful short punches to wear down the opposition.

There was nothing that indicated any attempt to change Louis' boxing style. But they may alter his methods.

Will Carry Fight, Says Manager.

"Not a thing new about his boxing," commented one of his managers, John Roxborough, "but he's just going to use it differently, perhaps. Yes, we expect him to carry the fight to Schmeling. And we expect a quick knockout."

Joe himself is reaching the stage where anything he has to say is forced. He is obviously at pains not to seem irritable and trainers consider this a good sign. He expects to beat "Smellin's" in two or three rounds, he says. Most of the newspaper observers and fighters who looked on today saw little to enthuse about, although some of the regular visitors declared it was one of Louis' best workouts. Joe is never a good display boxer and so it is not fair to comment too severely on his indifferent showing today.

Harry Sharpe's Opinion.

Among the observers at camp was Harry S. Sharpe, St. Louis referee and former fighter.

"When I compare Louis' showing today with that of the great fighters I have seen in past times," said Sharpe, "I can't think so much of the present champion. It was not a workout for a titleholder to be proud of.

"I had never seen Louis work before. But if he has improved, what could he have been in earlier training? He showed today that he could be hit by a right hand. One of those fellows in there almost staggered him with a right, and that despite protective headgear and big gloves.

"He lets his left hand drop after a lead, leaving an opening for a right counter and he is off balance at times when rushing. However, I will say that there are some good points to his left hand and that he can be fast. Also his condition appears to be splendid. Joe at times did some very nice ducking. But—

"I saw nothing today to make me believe that a better Louis will face Schmeling than fought him two years ago."

Besides the four rounds of boxing, Louis shadow boxes in rather perfunctory manner, skipping around the ring without making any pretense of side-stepping. After the boxing he did some calisthenics and then took on the newspaper men. He was in better humor than earlier.

No mistaking, this fellow is a big, powerful, fast man who is determined to redeem himself for that previous defeat. He will be

Schmeling Tunes Up Left, Plans to Use It More

By W. J. McGoogan
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., June 18.—Those lengthening odds on Joe Louis, world heavyweight champion, to defeat Max Schmeling, German challenger, next week at the Yankee Stadium are all wrong, many ringsiders thought after watching Max go through his daily workout here today.

That Schmeling is in excellent physical condition there can be no doubt. Lean and brown after his weeks of conditioning here, down to his best weight now of about 195 pounds, he moved around the ring with a speed and agility which belied his 32 years.

He boxed six rounds with three sparring partners, two each with Al Albin, Joe Mack and Butch Rogers.

Not that they are anything to brag about but Schmeling apparently was not worried about great sparring partners when he picked them out.

"What can I learn from sparring partners?" he asked, "I have been fighting a long time now. It's not like I was a young fellow just starting out. All I want them to do is help get me into good condition. This they have done."

Albin, the first sparring partner, had his headgear broken and was knocked wobbly with Max's Sunday punch in the first round. Then he worked the second without any.

Mack wore a headgear with a special noseguard, almost like the old ones the boys used to wear in football. The only thing you could see was his eyes. He snorted and puffed around the ring for two rounds as Schmeling hit him at will.

Rogers, a short, slightly roly-poly boxer, didn't afford much competition.

There was one thing apparent, though: Schmeling is planning to use his left hand more in his com-

All Forecast Knockout.

NEW YORK, June 18.

ALL the pre-fight consideration here takes into account only the probability of a knockout ending. That Champion Joe Louis and Challenger Max Schmeling may battle 15 rounds without either being stopped seems not to have occurred to anybody.

All the forecasters are picking either Louis or Schmeling to win by a knockout in this or that round. That is partly due to the fact that there is real feeling betwen the principals, and also to the fact that each carries sufficient power to stop the other fellow.

But, as a matter of fact, it is conceivable that the fight may not result that way. More, there is a real possibility that it may last the limit.

The betting odds are 7 to 10 that the fight will end by a knockout by one or the other; and yet if Joe Louis chooses to fight a canny fight, he might make his title safe for the future by trying to win the battle on points.

When Louis found himself unable to solve the problem of beating Tommy Farr with a right hand—an injury to his dexter mauler, was the explanation given—he proved that he could use his left hand with the best. In fact, Joe won the fight by beating Farr's best asset—an old-time English straight left.

Might Blind Max.

SCHMELING'S LEFT admittedly is weak. And so, if Joe wants to, he can stay away from Max's right, jab him with a left hand, and possibly blind him, and then outpoint him.

Schmeling, a counter-fighter, would not go after Louis. If he did, that would be too bad. Because Joe will whip any fighter in the ring today who carries the battle to him.

Let's hope Louis doesn't elect to fight a stayaway fight, pecking Schmeling to pieces. It would be an unsatisfactory show for the fans and not do his championship popularity any good.

But, although his managers seem confident that he can blast Schmeling by tearing into him, they might do better by playing it safe and letting Joe win by cleverness, instead of power.

Louis, in this respect, would be able to show two good hands to Schmeling's one.

Babble of the Battle.

THE PRINCIPALS in the title bout probably will end boxing today. They have been at work for a month. Experts by the score have viewed both and reviewed their histories. They have exchanged notes, sought professional opinions, and done every-

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 18.—Wayne Rideout of North Texas State Teachers' College set a world record of three minutes, three-tenths of a second for three-quarters of a mile, scoring by two yards over Glenn Cunningham, in the Princeton Invitation meet here today. Cunningham had previously won the Fifth Invitation Mile in four minutes, seven and two-tenths seconds, a time which has been bettered only twice outdoors, but failed in his effort to register a double.

Rideout's time cut one-tenth of a second from the previous world record of 3:00.4 set last year at Paris by Josef Mostert of Belgium. It was the lone record performance of the day, despite perfect weather conditions which brought an Alumni day crowd of 20,000 or better into Palmer Stadium.

In the mile, for which Archie San Romani had predicted a new world record of 4:03, Cunningham was content to let San Romani set the pace until the five-man field hit the last turn. At that point the two former Kansans were running in stride, with Cunningham just a yard behind.

Hitting the straightaway, Cunningham pulled up on even terms. Then, 30 yards from home, San Romani turned his head. As he did so, Archie stepped on the concrete curbing of the track and stumbled into his arch rival. Cunningham never broke his stride, but San Romani did, and by the time he had recovered Cunningham was six yards away. He finished with that much margin.

The time equalled San Romani's performance here a year ago. For Cunningham, it was his first victory in this meet since he won the inaugural mile in 4:06.7, then a world record.

Ray Sears, formerly of Butler University and now running for the St. Louis Relays Association, won the two-mile in 9:16.4. Don Lash, the Indiana State policeman who had a charley horse and besides had a date for his own wedding this evening dropped out at the end of two laps. Archie Williams, 1936 Olympic 400-meter champion, gave notice that he is back in winning form by taking the 440-yard run in the good time of 47.5 and Charley Beetham, formerly of Ohio State, won the half mile in 1:52.6.

Cunningham and Sears, two-mile winner in 1935, became the first athletes in the five-year history of this meet to capture two events.

VANDER MEER TO HURL TODAY; TWO CINCINNATI STATIONS TO BROADCAST

Two local range Cincinnati radio stations, WSAI and WCPO, will broadcast a telegraphed play-by-play of the Reds' doubleheader with the Bees at Boston today, in the first game of which Johnny Vander Meer will go after his third straight no-hit no-run pitching victory.

Cardinals Lose To Giants, 5-3

NEW YORK, June 18.

DICK BARTELL'S two home runs helped the Giants to defeat the Cardinals, 5 to 3, here this afternoon. Both starting pitchers, Bob Weiland of the Cards and Harry Gumbert of the New Yorkers, failed to go the route.

BROWNIE HURLER STRIKES OUT EIGHT; CLIFT SCORES AFTER WALKING IN SECOND

Second Game of Scheduled Doubleheader Called Off After Less Than Inning of Play; Three Safeties for Jake Powell.

By J. Roy Stockton

Howard "Wildfire" Mills, Popeye the Sailor Man of the Brownie pitching staff, turned in a masterpiece of the curving craft at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon. The young left-hander held the powerful New York Yankees to four hits, shut them out, 1 to 0, for their first runless game since April 19 and gained the distinction of being the first pitcher of 1938 to turn the trick single-handed.

After Mills had hurled Gabby Street's men to a sweet victory that broke a long losing streak of six straight games, the scheduled second contest of a doubleheader was started, but rain fell in such large drops and huge quantities that play was suspended before a full inning could be completed, and the soggy field made it impossible to resume play.

Nobody regretted the rain, however. A second game, it seemed, no matter how it went, would be an anti-climax. Mills' performance was enough of brilliance and entertainment for one afternoon and as the ladies' day crowd of 9142 scattered homeward in the raindrops, nobody complained at curtailment of the show.

Fans Powell With Three On.

Mills started with wildness that has marked so many of his attempts to scale the pitching heights. He walked the first batter to face him and filled the bases with two more passes after two were out in the opening frame. But "Wildfire" then fanned Jake Powell with the bases filled to show that danger took none of the magic out of his left arm.

Thereafter Mills gave a brilliant exhibition of curves and control. Powell nicked him for a single with two out in the fourth for the first enemy hit, and there wasn't another New York safety until the seventh when the same ubiquitous Powell slammed a double to left.

There was only one out at the time and a one-run margin that the Browns had gained in the second frame on a pass to Clift, Allen's single to right and an infield out, seemed too small. But it was enough of a margin for "Wildfire." He recognized it as a crisis and pitched accordingly. The crowd roared with applause as Mills struck out Hoag and when he then retired a wildly-swinging Gordon, you would have thought the Brownie team was fighting for a pennant, instead of struggling to vacate the cellar, so loudly did the fans proclaim their pleasure.

There were other critical situations before the game ended in victory. Frankie Crosetti whacked a double to left with one out in the eighth for the third New York hit and trouble plainly was ahead, with Rolfe, DiMaggio and Gehrig ready to bat. But Popeye the Sailor Man merely grabbed an extra portion of spinach, walked Rolfe with his newfound strength and then retired the devastating DiMaggio and the dangerous Gehrig on puny pop flies.

Almost a Goat.

Col. Buster Mills tried hard to grow goat horns in the final inning. Ralph Kress went into left field for Dickey's pop fly and Buster ran into the redhead as he caught the ball, but Kress held tight. Powell then singled to left for his third straight hit and Buster missed connections with the bounding ball and Powell reached second.

It was another crisis, but it was the same old effective Howard Mills. Myril Hoag went out on a pop foul which Heath clutched happily and when Joe Gorden threw a scare into the crowd with a line drive to left, the same Col. Buster Mills raced toward the foul line and made a catch that changed a groan of threatening danger into a roar of happiness over a game beautifully pitched and won.

It was only the second victory of the season for "Wildfire" Mills,

Buck Newsom To Hurl Today

BUCK NEWSOM will pitch one of the games of the doubleheader scheduled with the Yankees this afternoon. Oral Hildebrand probably will work in the other, unless his short spell of work in yesterday's game, stopped in the first inning, interferes. If it's somebody else, it probably will be Jim Walkup.

Red Ruffing may work for the Yankees in one of the games, with Chandler, Sundra and Beggs also in line for a starting assignment.

Here's how the one run of the afternoon was scored: Clift, walked to start the inning. Allen singled to right, sending Clift to third, but was out trying for second on the throw for Clift. Crosetti threw out Bell on a grounder that caromed off Gomez's glove, Clift scoring.

A Ladies' day crowd of 9142, including 2707 women, 5195 cash customers and 1335 boys and girls, saw the series opener.

Heath and Heffner also singled in the second inning, but Howard Mills was called out on strikes.

After rain halted the second game with one out, two Browns on bases and a call of one and one on Almada in the first inning, the umpires waited 45 minutes before declaring the contest off.

PRINCE ARGO WINS HANDICAP AT FAIRMOUNT PARK IN MUD

LITTLE NYMPH IS SECOND AND JOYRIDE THIRD

By Dent McSkimming.

A rainstorm that turned a fast racetrack into a strip of oozy mud failed to slow the flying hooves of Prince Argo and the star of Butsy Hernandez's stable scored a decisive two-length victory over Little Nymph, Joyride and six others in the featured event on yesterday's program at Fairmount Park.

Prince Argo had previously beaten a similar field over a muddy track and the crowd of 12,000 made him a second choice in the betting at 13 to 5. Bill Donoghue, persistent challenger in previous races here, was the favorite at 11 to 5 and whereas Prince Argo ran just as expected, Bill Donoghue could not maintain his best stride and finished far back after setting the early pace.

In scoring his second victory in three starts, Prince Argo broke well under Jockey Warren Cornay's urging and before the field quit the back stretch he had caught Bill Donoghue. However, Joyride moved up with him and they ran as a two-horse team after passing the tiring Bill Donoghue. In the stretch, it was all Prince Argo.

Neither Professor Paul nor Cristate, of the Jim Chesney entry, was ever a factor, both outrun by the fast breakers.

Regarded as a fast track horse, Little Nymph was not heavily played in the mutuels and she refunded $7.80 for $2 on place tickets, more than Prince Argo paid to win: $6.80 for $2.

Joyride, the third horse, refunded $3.40 for $2.

The rain softened the track but water had not penetrated deeply when the feature race was run. As a result, Prince Argo made very creditable time for the six furlongs —one minute and 13 3-5 seconds.

Had the track been fast, the field probably would have come down to the wire well bunched, but under the changed conditions, the mudders ran away from the others and they were all pretty well strung out at the close.

but the Browns haven't done a tremendous amount of winning. And as he chalked up the shutout triumph, the young lefthander had the honor of beating the great Vernon Lefty Gomez.

It was the Yankees' second shutout of the season. Their first since April 19. In that contest, however, two pitchers, Jack Wilson and Fritz Ostermueller, collaborated in holding the world champions to two hits and no runs.

The Chief Just Failed to Make It

The judges found it necessary to view the photograph of the finish of the second race at Fairmount yesterday, and it showed Ripple Along, third from the left, withstood the challenge of Sioux Chief in a driving windup. Lady Lorene, on the rail, finished third and Clasp, on the outside, fourth.

Jay D. Bane, allowed to settle in his best stride in the first quarter, came to the outside for the final drive and, responding gamely to mild urging, disposed of Polite Ford in the final 40 yards. The latter, taken in hand soon after the start, was placed under pressure turning into the stretch, moved into the lead reaching final furlong, but was unable to withstand the winner. Termotime, fractious at the post, broke well and, after showing good early speed, weakened in the drive.

$2 mutuels paid: Ripple Along, win $8.80, place $5.20, show $3.80; Sioux Chief, place $4.20, show $3.20; Lady Lorene, show $5.20.

Ripple Along, racing in her best form and displaying good speed from the start, saved ground the entire trip and was able to hold off Sioux Chief at the end under strong handling. The latter, outrun in the early stages, was placed under strong urging turning into the stretch and, racing through the field, finished resolutely, but was not good enough. Lady Lorene, in close attendance of the early pace, held on gamely in the final stages.

AUBUCHONS AND ST. LOUIS PLAY FOR LEGION LEAD

Although the season has begun, the American Legion Junior baseball campaign will be opened formally tomorrow afternoon at Fairground Park. Following the ceremonies, the leading Aubuchon-Dennison and St. Louis Posts will meet at Diamond No. 2 in one game and the Hatzfield and Stockham Posts will play in the other contest on Diamond No. 1, both games starting at 2:30 o'clock.

The program will open at 2 p. m., with a band concert. After that the officials and the players of the four teams will parade to the flagpole in center field and raise the American flag. Then at 2:25 the Stockham Post team will receive a trophy for winning the 1937 championship.

Aubuchon-Dennison and St. Louis won their first two games last week. Al LaMacchia probably will pitch for the Aubuchons with Jim Schofield doing the catching. Pete Christy and Leo Mills probably will be the St. Louis battery.

MAX SCHMELING TUNES UP LEFT; HE PLANS TO USE IT MORE

ing fight than he has heretofore. He snaps it in and uses it frequently whereas at Napanoch two years ago, when he prepared for his first battle with Louis, he did little but work with his right hand.

Steve Dudas, Schmeling's latest opponent, whom Max stopped in Hamburg, Germany, in five rounds was an onlooker and he bore testimony to the fact that Schmeling can use his left.

"He hit me a left hook in the first round, a short one, that didn't appear to have much beef behind it," Dudas said, "but if it had not landed a little high it would have been all over then."

Schmeling two weeks ago was in condition for the fight and he told the writer then that he planned only to try to hold his peak until time to get in the ring. This he has done. He has not killed himself with work but has paid strict attention to his road work, that most necessary phase of a boxer's conditioning process which strengthens his legs and gives him the power to keep going for a distance. The way he moves about shows that he has attained the desired result.

Schmeling has altered his original plan about leaving here Monday and now he things he had better work here Monday and go down to New York Tuesday the day before the fight.

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, under suspension by the New York Commission because of some action of his in connection with another of his fighters, Tony Galento, will not be reinstated in time to be in Max's corner Wednesday night, the commission has stated.

But Jacobs today sent a special request to Chairman J. J. Phelan for reinstatement and the matter may be acted upon at the commission meeting Tuesday.

Schmeling has also objected to the proposal of Louis to use the glove commonly used in Chicago because it has a longer thumb piece than that in use in New York. Schmeling insists that the New York glove be used.

A deputy of the commission visited Schmeling today with a pair of the Chicago gloves but Max refused to waive his objection to their use.

able to stand up under a lot of punishment if he has to, even though his workouts have been discouraging. Louis will hold his final workout tomorrow when he will again box four rounds. Today fewer than 1000 onlookers were present but at least 3500 are expected to view his final appearance. This camp, like the one of Schmeling at Speculator, has more than paid all training expenses.

Several foreign celebrities were visitors at the Louis camp today, including a delegation from Mexico, some members of which were garbed in "Charro" style with sombreros, bespangled jackets, sashes and trousers with designs stitched in silver. Acting as interpreter was Antonio Andere, of the sports paper "La Aficion."

Another ringsider was Eddie Meade, manager of Henry Armstrong, St. Louis Negro fighter, who holds two world's titles.

"It will be three championships for Henry on July 26," Meade volunteered. "Ambers may stay away for three rounds—after that it will be curtains. Armstrong won't start training for Ambers until July 10."

Also among the ringsiders was Waite Hoyt, veteran baseball pitcher, who was asked to stand and take a bow by the announcer.

Louis has had a very pleasing camp site here at Pompton Lakes, within 40 miles of New York. But he probably will not again train here because of difficulties with the proprietor over the owner's share in the gate receipts.

Notwithstanding all the disparaging things that have been said of Louis, he still remains favorite to retain his title at 2 to 5 and backers of the Negro are said to be accepting even money that Joe will knock out Schmeling.

Only a few Negroes were among the visitors at the Louis camp today, four-fifths of the spectators being white persons.

Joe's household consists of his usual crew of managers, handlers, trainers and entertainers to whom he has grown accustomed in the past. His wife is not here and the grapevine has it that there are family difficulties. A singer in a New York Negro night club was in Joe's company at a recent entertainment.

Bartell's Two Homers Help Defeat Cards, 5-3

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Southpaw Bob Weiland was belted for a pair of home runs by Dick Bartell and as a result the Cardinals lost to the New York Giants, 5 to 3, here this afternoon.

Bartell's first homer didn't mean so much, because Weiland was coasting at the time on the wings of a 3-to-0 lead, but the second, coming after Hank Leiber's triple had tied the score in the fourth, provided the actual margin of Manhattan victory.

The victory was most opportune for the Giants in that the Chicago Cubs, Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates were all beaten on other fronts. The Polo Grounders are now four full games ahead of the Cubs, their longest lead in a month's time. Incidentally, the defeat dropped the Redbirds, who played today under Mike Gonzales' direction, to within 16 percentage points of the seventh-place Dodgers.

Four Hits for Stripp.

The single redeeming feature of the afternoon's action from the Redbird viewpoint was Joe Stripp's hitting display. The third sacker fired four base hits at the Giants, including one that started an incipient ninth-inning rally.

Before Bartell got to swinging it, however, the game had a decidedly Cardinal tint. Gumbert's curve was no puzzle to the Redbirds and they waded into it in the second to collect all three of their runs.

"Pepper" Martin started it with a hit to center and Gutteridge promptly offered its duplicate. "Blondie" Ryan, subbing for the ailing Mel Ott, obligingly booted Owen's grounder at this point, one run scoring and two more followed when Stripp and then Stuart Martin singled.

But Stu Martin's hit was the high tide of Cardinal fortune. For Lohrman came in then to retire Slaughter and Medwick, and the Cards did not threaten again until the ninth. Pinch-Hitter Frenchy Bordagaray and Stripp singled then with one out, but Lohrman took another grip on himself and neither Stuart Martin nor Slaughter could help the Redbird cause.

Weiland, meanwhile, had set down the first five Giants to face him and it looked like one of his good afternoons until Bartell unloaded his first homer in the second.

That was only a hint of what was to come. Danning and Jimmy Ripple opened the third with singles and then the blonde Hank Leiber dented the distant bull-pen wall in right with a triple. That tied the score and set the stage for Bartell's game-winning homer a moment later. Clyde Shoun finished on the mound for the Cardinals.

NEW YORK, June 18.

THE old Castillian don, Miguel Gonzales directed the Cardinals in the absence of Frankie Frisch. "Onkle Franz" still is doctoring his wounded foot.

The Sunday doubleheader promises a pair of pitching duels. Hal Schumacher and Cliff Melton are the Manhattan nominees and the Cards will rely on Curt Davis and Roy Henshaw.

The Cards haven't yet filled the place on the roster left vacant by the release of Mike Ryba to Columbus.

thing prossible to reach a decision as to the outcome that would seem justified.

But they are still babbling along in a maze of doubt, loath to express an opinion which of necessity would be guesswork.

There are extremists on both sides of the debate, moderates on both sides, and many who admit that it's all just a guess. Some will tell you that the men in their training looked great; others say it was not how good they looked, but how bad.

Some tell you about Louis working at infighting and that he's going to borrow some of Armstrong's stuff, and others declare that Schmeling has been developing a cunning left hand—after going 15 years with an indifferent one.

But it doesn't make sense. For what fighter at the last minute, and for the first time, would experiment by changing his habits of years? Even if they tried it, the first crack on the nose would make them forget all about their new-fangled notions and go back to the primitive.

It is almost safe to say that the fight will be fought much along the lines of their first bout. That's because the methodical Schmeling will try to make it progress that way. He may find a more canny and more experienced opponent—that's likely to be the only difference.

Harry Wills Speaking.

HARRY WILLS, giant Negro boxer, still looking pretty trim despite his years, was in the anteroom waiting for his ticket handout.

"Who do you like, Harry?" he was asked. "It's one question you can't duck here."

"I kinda like Louis—he' got two hands."

"What do you think you would have done to Joe Louis when you were at your best?"

A broad smile, but no words greeted this query.

"Well, I'll change the question a little. How long do you think Joe would have lasted against Sam Langford?"

Langford's left hook was the talk of the world in Wills' day. They fought 23 times and Sam introduced that left hook disastrously in almost every bout.

In Los Angeles—their second bout—Harry had Sam on the floor nine times in the first four rounds.

"What happened after that, Harry?"

"Well, I guess I forgot to duck that left hook. That was in the fourteenth round. I tried to get up, but they tole me I was still punching holes in the canvas with mah head when the 10-count come."

Good Judges Differ.

SOME VERY GOOD judges differ about the result of the coming fight. Jack Hurley, who exploited Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, thinks Schmeling will stop Louis; veteran manager Scotty Monteith and that great lightweight of other days, Benny Leonard, both favor Louis.

"Of course, both these boys can hit, and the first one to land solidly probably will win the fight," observed Hurley. "But Schmeling will land first. He's cautious and smart. The other fellow still has his faults and he'll be the first to make a mistake. And you can't correct mistakes in the ring with an eraser.

"Why, I have noticed Louis when he's pawing around actually close his eyes. He can't do that but once with Schmeling. Besides, Louis can't take a punch in the head well, and he's constantly afraid of eyebrow cuts. I'll have to take Max for mine."

"Too much dynamite in each of Louis' hands for Schmeling to overcome," remarked Monteith. "He's bigger, better trained, has fought 11 times since they last met, and is too fast and hits too hard for Max. Joe should win quickly, especially if Schmeling's legs are as bad as they seemed to me.

"Too big, too young, too fast and too much power," was Leonard's reason for favoring the Negro.

And so the controversy rages, with all of the guessers handicapped by the fact that most of their arguments are based on severals factors that cannot be proved.

Nobody knows whether age has hurt Schmeling or youth has helped Louis in the two years that have passed. Only the battle can bring out some of the doubtful points.

Lynn Nelson Beats Indians.

CLEVELAND, June 18. — Philadelphia's Athletics landed on four Cleveland pitchers for 12 hits to give the league-leaders an 8-4 defeat today. Lynn Nelson, who held the Indians to nine hits, paced the A's to victory with three effective blows of his own.

IT matters not how young they

They usually emerge a star
From the McKechnie mold.

Johnny Allen says Joe Cronin had been kidding him about his shirt and just for a gag kicked about it to Bill McGowan. But Bill, it seems, is woefully lacking in a sense of humor and fell for it. At least that's Johnny's version of "the tale of a shirt" and he's stuck with it.

In reviewing the case, Johnny cited a magazine article written by McGowan last winter in which Bill said in part that the home plate existed only in the imagination and that he just called 'em around an imaginary plate. We remember reading the article and thought at the time that Bill was leading with his chin on that one. Those ball players are so very literal in their interpretations of what the literary ump has to say.

By defeating Jackie Wilson of Pittsburgh, Leo Rodak of Chicago became the world's featherweight champion of Maryland. Looks as though somebody were infringing on the copyright of the grunt and groan boys.

Had it been in Rhode Island, no doubt he would rate
World featherweight champ of a featherweight state.

How differently we acted.
We don't "meet" people any more—
They have to be "contacted."

Matters of Record.

World records were set and broken so rapidly during the past fortnight that one was hard pressed to keep up with them. Johnny Vander Meer pitched two no-hit games with four days intervening. Ralph Guldahl, after winning the National Open for the second successive time, moved on to St. Louis and copped the Western Open for the third straight year. But the world had scarcely got through gasping over these stupendous feats when along came a guy named James McDonald III and got divorced, remarried, divorced and remarried again in one day. Incidentally, his second marriage lasted only 30 minutes, which is probably another record. Beat that and take the alimony.

Going Up.

See where Dizzy Dean's trouble, which started in his toe, then worked its way up to his arm, has shifted to his shoulder. Just when the end will be no one knows, but the ailment seems to be definitely on its way.

Bucky Walters, making his debut as a Red, was nicked for six runs in the first inning and sent to the showers in the second after yielding another tally. But his luck still held, as the Reds took over the lead in the third inning and won out, 12-10.

Which indicates that Brother Buck
Is the white-haired boy with Lady Luck.

The versatile Mike Ryba has been optioned to Columbus unless the "Jedge" decides that the Redbirds' one-man ball team wasn't given a fair chance to see what he could do around the hot corner or shortstop.

Which leaves a vacancy to be filled, as Howard Black, the Temple U. star infielder, has decided to give education a break and finish his school work at Temple before taking a post graduate course with Prof. Rickey's Gas House Gang.

TROJANS AGAIN WIN TITLE IN COLLEGE GAMES

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 18. —Those mighty Trojans of Southern California, clinching the right to recognition as one of the most finely balanced collegiate track and field teams of all-time, won their fourth consecutive national championship at Minnesota's Memorial Stadium today.

As three records were erased from the national collegiate record book, Southern California swept to the team title by scoring 69¾ points, with Stanford taking second with 38. The Trojans, who recently walked away with the I. C. 4-A. championship, collected only two first places, winning the mile run and pole vault, but they picked up points in nine of the 14 events.

Jumpers in Tie.

One of the records to fall was the oldest in the N. C. A. A. book—the mark of 6 feet 7¼ inches hung up in the high jump by W. C. Haggard of Texas in 1926. Gil Cruter of Colorado and Dave Albritton of Ohio State waged a fight for first place that surpassed the duel they put on last year for high jumping honors. Today, as a year ago, they wound up in a deadlock, this time at 6 feet 8¾ inches.

The other two records wiped out today were in the mile and two mile runs. Louis Zamperini, Southern California's former Olympic runner, made a great stretch drive to defeat the defending champion and favorite, Charles Fenske of Wisconsin, by four yards. His time was 4:08.3, six-tenths of a second under the old mark of 4:08.9 made by Bill Bonthron of Princeton in 1934. Fenske, the Big Ten titleholder, simply didn't have enough to fight off the Trojan ace's sudden rush from second place.

In another thrilling finish, Walter Mehl of Wisconsin, the Big Ten champion, dethroned Gregg Rice of Notre Dame in the two-mile grind. Mehl, catching Rice in the stretch, went on to win by a foot in 9 minutes 11.1 seconds, taking three and one-tenth seconds off the old record made by Rice last year.

Double Winner.

The meet's only double winner was flying Fred Wolcott of Rice Institute. He captured the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.1 seconds, a tenth of a second slower than the meet mark he set in Friday's trials and the 220-yard low hurdles in 23.3 seconds. Two others joined Cruter and Albritton in the select group of successful defending champions. Johnny Woodruff of Pittsburgh took the half-mile easily in 1:51.3 seconds, one second slower than his meet record made last year. Pete Zagar of Stanford repeated in the discus with a toss of 162 feet 3¼ inches.

ALICE MARBLE IS CO-FAVORITE FOR TITLE AT WIMBLEDON

SHARES RATING WITH POLAND'S GREATEST STAR

American and Miss Jedrzejowska Held at 3 to 1, Mrs. Moody at 4 to 1—Play Begins Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 18.—Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, her magnificent forehand stronger and faster than ever, today became co-favorite with Alice Marble for the women's singles title in the Wimbledon tennis championships starting Monday.

The Polish champion polished off Mme. Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling of Germany, the conqueror of Helen Wills Moody, 6—3, 6—0, to win the London lawn tennis title. She immediately jumped to 3-1 alongside Miss Marble.

Mrs. Moody's Status.

Mrs. Moody remained at 4 to 1, safe in the realization that she will not have to meet either Miss Marble or Mlle. Jedrzejowska until the finals. Mme Sperling, who is in Mrs. Moody's half of the draw, was utterly helpless today and, despite her victory over Mrs. Moody, nobody is giving her a chance to beat Helen again.

There is nothing in recent Wimbledon history to encourage Mrs. Moody, at 33, to think she can win the tennis classic. Mrs. Dorothy Round Little, the present champion, who will not defend her title, is 28. Helen Jacobs was 27 when she won in 1936 and Suzanne Lenglen was 26 when she ended her six straight victories in 1925. Even the 1931 winner, Cilli Aussem of Germany, now Countess Brae, was only 22 when she won the title.

Before the war, however, it was another story. Mrs. Alfred Sterry won the women's championship for the fifth time when she was 37. Mrs. Dudley Larcombe and Mrs. Lambert Chambers both won on the center court when theoretically they were "too old."

The two players who have tied Mrs. Moody's record of seven singles championships are Mrs. Chambers and Willie Renshaw. Mrs. Chambers won in 1903, 1904, 1906, 1910, 1911, 1913 and 1914; Renshaw in 1881, 1882, 1883, 1884, 1885, 1886 and 1889.

Mrs. Moody won the championship in 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930, 1932, 1933 and 1935.

Budge's Titles.

Probably the only other player capable of dreaming of such a record today is Don Budge, who holds three Wimbledon titles—singles, doubles and mixed doubles—at present and is so outstanding this season that nobody is paying much attention to him.

Budge, at 22, is without a rival in the amateur ranks today and undoubtedly could stay at the top at least through his twenties. But it is generally conceded that his attempt to win the four international championships, Australian, French, British and American, this year is but a prelude to his turning professional next winter.

Anyway, there's a feeling here that the center court will be seeing him for the last time in the championships next week.

Everybody Seems Happy Over Babe Ruth's Return to Game

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Brooklyn Dodgers summoned Babe Ruth out of retirement today and made him a coach at $15,000 a year. The great home run slugger of New York Yankee fame, baseball's "forgotten man" since 1935, will make his debut as first-base coach when the Dodgers play a double-header with the Chicago Cubs tomorrow.

Ruth was playing golf in Tuckahoe, N. Y., when Larry S. MacPhail, energetic general manager of the Dodgers, announced he had been signed for the duration of the 1938 season.

How Babe Feels.

"It's great to be back," the Babe said. "I would have been back long before if I had had a chance to hook on with some major league club. But what could I do? I did not get any offers. You can't make a guy give you a job. When I was offered one I grabbed it quick."

Brooklyn officials insisted that Burleigh Grimes would remain as manager, but baseball writers believed Ruth would take over the job not later than the start of the 1939 season.

Grimes declared he was delighted to have Ruth with the club.

Burleigh's Viewpoint.

"The Babe doesn't belong out on the golf links," the Dodgers' fiery manager said. "He is an institution in baseball and that's where he ought to spend every day of his life."

Macphail said that both Tom Sheehan and Jesse Haines would remain as Dodger coaches. Ruth probably will coach at first base and Sheehan at third while Haines works with the pitchers.

SENATOR BARKLEY DEFENDS NEW DEAL

Opening Campaign for Renomination in Kentucky Discusses Spending.

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 18. — Senator Alben W. Barkley opened his campaign for renomination here today with an aggressive defense of the Roosevelt administration's record.

The Senate majority leader declared he stood squarely on his record as a member of the Senate for nearly 12 years. He devoted his remarks largely to his part in the Roosevelt administration. "We" was a recurrent word as he detailed its accomplishments.

Denying "we"had headed the nation "toward bankruptcy," the Senator said the Roosevelt administration had brought about a net increase in the national debt of five billion dollars but "during these five years we have added 20 billion dollars a year to the net income of the American people."

President Hoover, he said, in four years "increased the debt from 16 billions to 23 billions and did not leave a trace of benefits to any community in America."

As to Rise in Debt.

Roosevelt, he declared, "has increased the debt from 23 billions to 38 billions, but 10 billions will be repaid and is being repaid, by the countless industries that have borrowed it and by countless communities which have taken advantage of an opportunity never before afforded to secure needed improvements in the enjoyment of their local lives."

He asserted the "net aggregate debt of all the American people, both public and private, had actually decreased since the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt" despite the net governmental debt increase of five billions.

Barkley, however, made a pointed reference to his deviation from the President's wishes on occasion—referring to his vote to override the President's veto of the soldier bonus and declaring he had actively supported veterans' "just claims" since the World War.

A Shot at Chandler.

Concluding a recital of public improvement works constructed with Federal money, the Senator made what apparently was an allusion to remarks atributed to Gov. A. B. Chandler, his opponent for the Democratic nomination for the Senatorship.

"Those who have appealed to Washington for these benefits and have received them," he said, "have no right now to complain because their cry was heeded."

Barkley declared the New Deal was following the fundamental policies of Thomas Jefferson and Woodrow Wilson and working to "restore the government to the people for the benefit of the people."

Truck Upset at Municipal Bridge.

Traffic was partially blocked for nearly two hours on the east approach to the Municipal Bridge yesterday afternoon when the trailer of a five-ton truck overturned and spilled its load of oil drums and furniture on the paving. The driver, Henry Okertich, 1729 Ohio avenue, was not injured.

ADOPTED SON TO GET TRUST FUND INCOME

Court Determines Rights of Leon J. Schwab Jr. in Suit by Bank, Estate Trustee.

Leon J. Schwab II, 5-year-old adopted son of Mrs. Jerome M. Steiner, 44 Broadview drive, Clayton, will receive the income from one-eighth of the $175,000 estate of his foster father's uncle, under a decree entered yesterday by Circuit Judge Eugene J. Sartorius.

The boy's foster father, Leon J. Schwab Jr., who died in 1937, was heir to one-eighth of the income from the estate of his uncle, Isaac N. Schwab, a clothing manufacturer, who died in 1928.

Judge Sartorius' decision was made in a suit brought by the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., trustees of the estate, to construe the trust document and to determine whether an adopted child was to be considered a rightful heir. Judge Sartorius ruled that the document should be so construed. In an answear filed to the suit, it had been contended that only lineal or natural descendants were to be considered as heirs.

Isaac N. Schwab had set the trust fund up for himself in 1924. On his death he left half of the income to a sister, Mrs. Martha S. Harris of New York, and directed that the other half be divided equally among the four children of a deceased brother, Leon J. Schwab. Besides Leon J. Schwab Jr., the other children were James and William Schwab of St. Louis and Mrs. Alice Jonas of Philadelphia.

Leon Schwab II's part in the trust fund will be the income on about $22,000. He was adopted through the Sommers' Children's Welfare Bureau, a United Charities agency. His foster mother is now the wife of an attorney.

PROGRESSIVE MINERS' HEAD YELLED DOWN IN W. VIRGINIA

Demonstration by United Mine Workers Against Illinois Union Invasion.

By the Associated Press.

ESKDALE, W. Va., June 18. — A thousand men carrying banners of the United Mine Workers through a drenching rain heckled and yelled down today an attempt by President Joe Ozanic of the Progressive Mine Workers of America to make a speech.

Prevented from making his scheduled address at this mining village near Charleston, Ozanic shouted into his microphone: "I might not be able to talk here today but we are coming back and we are coming to all the coal fields of West Virginia before the end of the year."

While Ozanic was attempting to make himself heard William Blizzard, vice-president of U. M. W. A. District No. 17, mounted an improvised platform across the yard and yelled to the crowd: "We have shown those fellows from Illinois (headquarters of the Progressives) that they aren't coming in here and tell the coal miners of West Virginia how to run our unions."

The Progressives' organization recently announced a membership campaign in opposition to the U. M. W. A.

FOUR NATIONAL JEWISH GROUPS RATIFY PLAN TO CONSOLIDATE

Merger "In Defense of Rights" to Be Made Effective at Meeting at Pittsburgh.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, June 18. — Edgar J. Kaufmann, Pittsburgh department store executive, announced tonight he had received word that four national Jewish organizations had ratified proposals to consolidate their agencies "in defense of Jewish rights."

Representatives of the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, B'nai B'rith and the Jewis Labor Committee met here last June 13, and decided to recommend to their groups that a single agency be set up in which each organization would have equal representation.

Kaufmann said another meeting here is being planned to make effective immediately the purposes of the resolution, which proposed that representatives of other Jewish groups be included later by vote of the original four organizations.

WINDSOR, England, June 18. — Princess Elizabeth, 12-year-old heir presumptive to the throne, makes her first public appearance tomorrow as a member of the Girl Guides.

As patrol leader of the first Buckingham Palace company, she will stand with her parents, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, to watch a parade of 1000 guides after a national Guide service at St. George's chapel.

It will be the first time the Princess has worn in public the uniform of the Girl Guides, the British equivalent of the Girl Scouts. If she is to progress, she must learn to cook and to tie knots and to do many other things most young Princesses don't bother about.

Socialized Medicine Gets Practical Test in Two Health Centers in New York and London

Latter Makes Study of Families and Finds Many Sick Who Feel Well—Union Owns American Clinic.

Reprinted From the Manchester Guardian.

THE transformation of health from a private into a public care has gone far during the last hundred years and is continuing. It is impelled by many motives, one of which is the development of medical technique. Few private doctors can afford the elaborate scientific instruments now necessary in the best practice, and work which they could have undertaken in the past, when the known instruments were simple, can be done now only in expensively equipped clinics.

Two of the most interesting essays in "socialized medicine" are the Pioneer Health Center at Peckham, London, and the Union Health Center in New York. The staff of the Pioneer Health Center at Peckham has recently published a report on its work. The center consists of an attractive club containing a gymnasium, swimming-bath, theater, cafeteria and medical consulting-rooms. The primary aim is the discovery of the positive nature of health. A large number of persons are kept under regular observation in order to collect information which may bear on this problem.

Families Studied.

Incidentally, much is learned of their ailments and they are given suitable medical advice. The organizers of the center believe that the positive nature of health is best learned from the study of families and not individuals. They find that knowledge of a whole family is frequently necessary in order to apprehend the state of health of an individual member. Thus whole families only are allowed to join the center and enjoy its facilities. The family is the unit. Membership is restricted to a district which contains about 4700 families, and of these 500 have joined the center. Each family which joins must accept medical examination at regular intervals and pay a subscription of one shilling (25 cents) per week.

Through this organization the medical and biological staff has about 1500 persons under regular observation. As the observation is continuous the staff is acquainted with them under normal social conditions. The occasions when a doctor meets the patient professionally are relatively rare, and are free from the atmosphere of the ordinary doctor-patient relation, which is primarily associated with disease. Owing to these circumstances the true condition of the patient is found out more easily.

The Sick Who Feel Well.

The Peckham investigators have collected some very interesting observations. They found that 902 of their 1530 individuals counted themselves as feeling thoroughly fit or having a sense of well-being. Investigation showed that an astonishing number of these were diseased, and suffered from conditions such as bad teeth and anemia to cancer, tuberculosis, and gastric ulcer without losing the positive sense of well-being. An apparently aggressively fit youth of 21 was training as a boxer and was unconscious of suffering from valvular disease of the heart, nephritis and kidney disorder.

No less than 983 persons out of 1505 suffered from deficiencies in iron. These were often due to the unsuspected presence of worms, which proved to be extraordinarily prevalent.

A heavy incidence of malnutrition was found among the well-fed, and exposed the great importance of enabling persons to assimilate food. The investigators suggest that the proper physiological utilization of food is almost as important as food itself.

Night Sleep the Best.

They have made interesting studies of persons who show no trace of disease and yet give no sign of health. This leads them to consider devitalization, when the person is not ill and yet has no vigor and muscular tone. They have found that night duty with day sleep frequently induces this state, and that the state may be rapidly removed by a return to day work and night sleep. It appears that day sleep is much less refreshing than night sleep.

Of the 1530 persons observed for 18 months, 9 per cent appeared perfectly healthy, 8 per cent were diseased and under treatment, and 83 per cent had something the matter and were doing nothing about it. The investigators have attempted to analyze the state of mind responsible for this procrastination. They find that adults do not usually care to seek treatment until they are socially disabled. They do not wish to become a burden to their families even when they are protected by sick benefits. The Peckham investigators have dealt with many other important observations in their fascinating report. It is to be hoped that their unique attempt to discover the nature of positively healthy living, as distinct from cures for disease, will receive adequate financial support.

Union-Owned Health Center.

The Union Health Center in New York is equally interesting, though in a different way. It was founded 25 years ago by Dr. George M. Price, and after steady expansion has been taken over by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union of America.

The center acts as a health clinic to the members of this powerful and progressive union. The relation between medical staff and worker-patient is its most remarkable feature. As the union owns the center there is a complete absence of the charity atmosphere which affects the panel systems, hospital treatment, and even private treatment of working people. Much is also due to Dr. Price's art of getting his colleagues to work with him rather than for him and avoiding medical authoritarianism.

The center began through the practice of branches of the union requiring medical certificates from applicants for membership. The union will not accept members until they are fit, and finds it worth while paying for the examination of applicants in order to protect itself. The exclusion of ill persons also prevents the spread of infectious diseases in closed shops, as non-union members cannot work in them.

Pleasant Quarters.

The center has moved into better premises as it has grown. It now occupies the whole of the top floor of a 25-story skyscraper in the middle of the garment manufacturing district of New York. The numerous consulting rooms are arranged round the walls, so that all have outside windows with fine views and the maximum light and sunshine. Members can have consultations at a flat rate of four shillings ($1) each, and they can take this money from their sick benefit pay from the union. This nominal fee covers specialist advice and treatment, which may include examinations with X-rays, electrocardiographs, basal metabolism apparatus, and other elaborate instruments, with which the clinic is fully equipped. The center does not treat chronic patients. It arranges for their admittance to the appropriate hospital.

There is room for about 20 doctors to be in attendance at any one time. Many of these are specialists, so that the center can give its members direct specialist advice on arthritis, diseases of the eye, ear, throat, skin, heart and stomach, defective feet, and several other diseases.

The doctors attend for one or more sessions of two hours a week each, and they are paid at the nominal rate of 10s. to 15s. ($2.50 to

Control of Southern Delegations at Democratic Convention Involved

In Many States Entire Propertyless Class Is Disfranchised by Cash Requirement; Scarcely 20 Pct. of Population Takes Part in Elections.

This Makes for Machine Control of Anti-New Dealers Who Are Out to Recapture the Democratic Party in 1940—Fight Brewing.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.

BELOW the Mason and Dixon line the privilege of the ballot is a luxury that is denied to all but a small percentage of the population. In many Southern states scarcely 20 per cent of the voting population has the right to go to the polls. An entire propertyless class has been disfranchised.

In all but a few Southern states democracy is the Democratic party and the Democratic party is a small clique of professional politicians who are able by a system of rewards and reprisals to run things just about as they please.

In eight Southern states payment of a poll tax is a prerequisite to voting. And in states such as Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, $1 or $1.50—it may accumulate to larger sums in back poll taxes—is a barrier that keeps a whole class out of the polling booth.

What this barrier means in the politics of the South high administration officials here have come to realize in recent months. They are considering ways and means of removing the poll tax restrictions, well aware that it cannot be done without a struggle and that the outcome of the struggle may determine control of the Democratic national convention in 1940.

How Fight Lines Up and Stake Played For.

On the one side, then, is the clique of Southern politicians who have dominated through machine control. These men in the Senate and House here, led by such stout conservatives as Vice-President Garner, have opposed a great part of the New Deal program. They want to regain control of the Democratic party and put over their man, whoever he may be, as the candidate in 1940.

On the other side is President Roosevelt and that group which is now closest to him, including Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, and Thomas G. Corcoran, White House adviser. It includes such Southern liberals as Senator Lister Hill of Alabama. These men realize that if they are to control the delegation from Southern states to the Democratic convention, they must somehow remove the poll tax restrictions and restore the vote to the propertyless class. In recent months it is known that the President has discussed this problem with a number of Southerners, always stressing that the barriers must be removed.

While a great deal of the struggle will go on behind the scenes, particularly here in Washington, it is certain to come out in the open sooner or later. In fact, Labor's Non-Partisan League has already asked Administrator Hopkins to allow workers on the W P A rolls to earn extra money in order to pay off poll taxes. Hopkins has said no to this request, for the time being at least, realizing evidently that there would be a political backfire; but there is no doubt that administration leaders are casting about for some means of abolishing vote restrictions.

Whites as Well as Negroes Are Barred From the Polls.

Although it is widely known that the Negro has been disfranchised in the South, the extent to which white voters are barred from the polls is not generally realized in the North. The Democratic primary is, of course, the decisive election in the South, and the Democrats set up their own rules to keep Negroes out of the primary. In some states such as Florida the Democratic party prescribes that only persons of the white race may vote in the Democratic primary. Others set up an educational requirement that keeps the vote in the Democratic primary from any Negroes with the hardihood to seek it.

By these and other means a considerable portion of the population that votes in the North is kept from the polls in the South. In Mississippi, Negroes make up more than half of the population, in Alabama more than a third, in South Carolina between a half and a third.

In Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia, payment of the poll tax is a prerequisite for the ballot. The amount of the tax varies from $1 a year to $2, but in some states the tax accumulates from year to year. In Alabama, for example, where the tax is $1.50, the voter can be required to show poll tax receipts for every year from the date of his twenty-first birthday. After 45, however, the voter is no longer required to show a poll tax receipt to be allowed to vote. In Virginia, where the tax is also $1.50, the law requires three years' back payment, so that to become eligible to vote might cost $4.50, plus interest, or about $4.80.

Virginia is a good state to show how the tax operates. Political observers long familiar with the Old Dominion are of the opinion that it has been thanks to this law that Senator Harry F. Byrd has controlled the politics of the State for so long. Some hardboiled county rings keep a nice check on the 20-odd per cent of the eligible voters who pay their poll tax and are thereby privileged to exercise the franchise.

To begin with, it is only property owners who receive any notice that the poll tax is due. This notice comes along with other tax bills. Yet the law requires that the poll tax must have been paid six months before the date of the election. For example, if the election were on Nov. 6, the poll tax must have been paid on or before May 6. The newspapers may or may not carry an announcement of this deadline, and, in any event, only the alert voter is likely to be aware of the necessity for paying the tax by a certain date.

Only 1100 to 1300 Votes in County With 30,000.

In a county with a population of 30,000 to 35,000, with anywhere from 13,000 to 15,000 eligible voters, about 1100 to 1300 votes will be cast at an election. An exceptional issue or a hot presidential race may draw out a few more. Here is the way it works in a precinct where there are about 500 persons eligible to vote. The precinct is controlled by a petty boss merely by virtue of the fact that he has a large family of cousins, uncles and aunts, besides two or three neighbors and their families who go along with him, all of whom pay their poll tax. This little boss musters from 35 to 40 votes and since less than 100 are cast, it is enough to swing the precinct. There is very little in it for this man other than a sense of power but that is apparently enough of a reward.

The irony is that when the Virginia colony was first founded, in 1619, there was universal male suffrage, even for the Negroes. Most of the Negroes brought in at that early date came as indentured servants and when their term of indenture was up at the end of 10 years they might vote the same as all other citizens. The coming of an aristocratic, plantation-owning element put an end to this democracy and the poll tax requisite and property restrictions were imposed. Again in 1850, however, these barriers were removed and there was universal suffrage for all white males. It is a striking fact that in the year 1856 in a Virginia election 53 out of 100 eligible white males voted while in the presidential election of 1936, the largest total vote in Virginia's recent history, only 33 out of every 100 cast a ballot.

In the Virginia Legislature last year a move was started to lift the poll tax prerequisite. It was killed in committee but its sponsors are hopeful that it may get farther at the next session. Gov. James Price is understood to be behind the move. Price split with Byrd recently so that Virginia, as one commentator put it recently, has a two-party system for the first time in several decades.

In some states less than 20 per cent of the voting population that would be eligible if it were not for the poll tax prerequisite cast their ballots in an election. It is true, of course, that the primary is the decisive election in all Southern states, yet there is some basis for comparison of eligible voters participating in the North and the South in presidential elections, for in presidential years the November election takes on a certain importance in the South.

The National Lawyers' Guild Quarterly has shown the following comparison for the Roosevelt-Hoover election in 1932: In Alabama the percentage of votes to voting population was 18.2, in Georgia 17.1, in Texas 30; in New York it was 68.7, in Wisconsin 67.6 and in California 70.2.

Too Hungry to Be Interested in Voting.

Southerners long familiar with this situation say that while the poll tax prerequisite is an important factor it is not the determining factor, or certainly not the sole reason why so few eligible voters participate in elections. The level of poverty is so appallingly low in states such as Alabama that there is a kind of apathy, compounded of ignorance, malnutrition, and disease, which cannot be disturbed by the kind of political issues which ordinarily confront voters in the South. When a Huey Long or a Cole Blease talks in terms of more food for hungry mouths and a pair of shoes to wear, then and then only does the vote mean anything to the lowest level in the South.

Huey Long led a move in Louisiana to remove the poll tax prerequisite that had been on the statute books for many years. It was put through the Legislature at about the time of his assassination in 1935. According to members of the Louisiana delegation in Congress, there has been at least a 25 per cent increase in the number of voters participating in successive elections and perhaps the rise has been more nearly a third.

There was retained in the Louisiana law the requirement that the voter go to the tax collector or the Sheriff's office to obtain a poll tax receipt, for which there is no charge. This makes it possible for the political machine to keep a better check on the voters.

The poll tax prerequisite, of course, plays directly into the hands of machine politicians. Several states that have this provision make it a felony comparable to bribery to pay the poll tax of another person. Nevertheless there is every reason to believe that this is done repeatedly throughout the South. A boss, large or small, keeps a close check on voters in a given area and sees to it that they pay their poll tax on the specified date. If they can't pay it themselves, he puts up the money. Similarly, certain large corporations in the South have been known to keep a close watch on whether their employes pay the poll tax.

Labor Leader's View; What Survey Shows.

In 1937 the poll tax prerequisite was removed in Florida by action of the legislature. As a result, the Democratic primary in that State on May 3 brought out a larger vote than ever before in the history of the State. It appears that it was this new vote which decided the election for the candidate with the New Deal indorsement, Claude Pepper, as against Representative J. Mark Wilcox who had opposed many important New Deal measures. Approximately 415,000 votes were cast in the primary in May and never before, according to Senator Pepper, had the total reached very much more than 300,000. The election of a liberal legislature assured removal of the poll tax restriction, Pepper says. What it meant was the end of the rule of a small clique that had dominated the State for many years.

Senator Hill of Alabama says the effect would be the same in Alabama if the restriction were wiped out. At least 90 per cent of the new voters would be for the New Deal, he declares. An effort was made in the Alabama legislature to lighten the restriction by providing that payment merely of two years' back poll tax would make a citizen eligible to vote but this move was defeated. In all probability it will come up again.

Labor leaders in the Southern States are almost unanimous in agreeing that it is the poll tax restriction which has worked to keep state legislatures conservative and thereby the passage of progressive laws has been prevented according to a survey made by the Department of Labor here.

This survey showed, according to a statement issued by the Department:

"In the eight states which make pay-

U. S. Progress and Problems; Government Likely to Increase Rather Than Restrict Functions

A. A. Berle Jr., Assistant Secretary of State, Says New Policies in Making Require Efficient, Disinterested Civil Service.

WASHINGTON, June 18.

LOOKING forward to the increasing expansion of Government, A. A. Berle Jr., Assistant Secretary of State, recently told the graduating classes of the Columbia University Schools of Law and Accountancy that new national policies now in the making require an efficient, disinterested civil service for carrying out of the Federal Government's direct responsibility for making the national economic system function so that everyone is cared for.

Berle's address was the first important public expression of his economic views since he rejoined the Roosevelt administration last March after four years' absence from the Washington front. His only other address during the period was on the need for building up an administrative law tradition made at the Cornell University commencement.

Noted for his forthright utterances, Berle emphatically asserted that "something pretty sweeping is going to happen within the next few years" and that "the Federal Government is just moving into one of the most important periods in its history." He observed that he was not among those who fear any extension of power of Government on the theory that it might be abused and added that in any event, the United States, like every other great nation, had no choice in the matter.

Responsibility Inescapable.

"When one-fourth of the country is out of work or in trouble," he declared, "the Government must act. Neither this country nor any other major Government is likely to be released from this responsibility for the way the economic system works."

The text of his address follows:

This address tonight is not for the purpose of giving good advice to a graduating class. Most of you are already working for the United States Government and expect to go on doing so. Accordingly, I am going to try to put before you one or two aspects of the job which you, as Government servants, will be doing for the next 10 years or so. It is appropriate to do this, for the Federal Government is just moving into one of the most important periods in its history.

Controversy Over Policy.

All of you know that the depression of 1929 and the ensuing distress forced the United States Government to attempt the job of managing national economics. What is called "The New Deal" was nothing less than the recognition that the Federal Government had to undertake direct responsibility for making the economic system function so that everyone was looked out for. Practically every other great nation had been forced to do this earlier; we were almost the last. We had no choice in the matter. When one-fourth of the country is out of work or in trouble, the Government must act. Neither this Government, nor any major government, is likely to be released from this responsibility for the way the economic system works. We cannot quarrel with this. The United States is one of the richest and most productive countries in the world. It has everything necessary to produce sufficient wealth to take care of pretty much everyone. It must continue to feel toward an organization of affairs which brings this production into action and takes it toward the people who need it.

Four Lines of Approach.

As you know, the country is now going through a confused debate on policies. It is pretty plain that some new national policies are in the making; that, in a word, something pretty sweeping is going to happen in the next few years. Issues will grow sharper and clearer as time goes on. At present we can sort out four main lines of argument. The partisans of each line claim to have the only answer.

(1) The first is the strict conservative line. This assumes that if the Government pulls away from its responsibility, gets out of the way, and leaves private initiative to work things out without interference, business will produce a satisfactory economy. Business men and bankers generally back this idea. In practice, this means that the social development of the country is to be left in the hands of the business and investing interests. We ran the country on that theory from 1900 to 1932. During that time, though, the country steadily increased in wealth, the wealth was not well distributed. Periods of prosperity alternated with periods of depression. The peaks became higher and the depths became lower. Small industry became less important. Cities became larger. Men left the farms; the whole country became more impersonal. At times we flourished; at times, we nearly broke down. There is no particular reason to suppose that the result would be different if the country now backed away from the responsibility it had to take on in 1933.

(2) The second is, in fact, a romantic line. A great many people believe sincerely that, if we break up large industries, if we re-establish small scale production, if we can get free competition among a great many small people, national affairs will once more come into balance. The result of such a plan cannot be foreseen, because no large country in the world has succeeded in doing it. History rarely moves backward. Also we live in an era of mass production. We can and should end monopolies. But this will not bring small units back. A country that wants to ride in Ford cars, necessarily wants a Ford factory—whether it knows it or not. People who live in cities live there because they like to live there. They do not want to change their habits. Even if they did, habits change slowly.

(3) A third line of argument insists that we now have large scale industries and large scale production, and that we had best learn to live with them and make them live with us. That this can be done by a process of regulation under which standards for labor, for production, for price limitation and the like can be laid down. As nearly as I can find out, much of organized labor really believes in this, though it does not state the problem as clearly. This again is an experiment. Rarely is anyone wise enough to tell someone else how to run his business. But it is realistic.

(4) A fourth policy calls for more drastic change. It suggests that in great fields the Government must go into direct production of wealth. Specifically, it would have to take over, for instance, the banks, the railroads, the utilities and the great natural resources like oil and copper. When private business tended to slow down, the Government could then "compensate the economy" by going directly into production itself. Such a system has been adopted in considerable measure in Sweden as a compromise between a purely socialistic government and a purely individualist government. It has at least the merit that the Government not merely tells people what to do, but assumes responsibility of action itself. We cannot yet tell whether this policy, which does succeed in a small and homogenous country like Sweden, is possible for an empire like the United States.

Probably no one of these theories will have a complete victory. We have a habit, here, of adopting parts of several programs. This is right, because the United States is an extremely diverse country. The

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

What Price Fireworks?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE proposed ordinance placing a ban upon fireworks in St. Louis is of extreme importance to the public. I would like to call attention to the fact that St. Louis leads the list in the rate of Fourth of July injuries among large cities.

St. Louis records a rate of 38 persons per 100,000 of population, having had a total of 322 injuries last year.

Philadelphia records a rate of 10.3 per 100,000 of population, having had a total of 201 injuries last year.

New York City records a rate of only 7.5 per 100,000 of population, having had a total of 524 injuries last year.

In 1937 there were 7205 such injuries recorded throughout the country; 16 lost their eyes, and 20 lost their lives. There were any number of minor casualties that do not appear on the record.

In the period from 1900 to 1930 alone, there has been a total of 4290 deaths due to fireworks alone. Only 4044 American soldiers were killed in the Revolutionary War, and the seriously wounded American soldiers totaled approximately 6000. More than 16 times that number were seriously wounded by fireworks from 1900 to 1930.

Certainly patriotism does not call for any such sacrifice of human life, loss of eyesight, or maiming. Business can easily forego profits made at such a terrific cost in life and limb.

Note on Religious Persecution.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial on the Huguenots in America reminded me of what we had learned about them in our travels.

In Ireland we were told that it was they who brought the linen industry with them, not a blade of flax having been grown on the island prior to the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. In Switzerland we were told that it was they who introduced the chocolate industry. And both of these are to this day the leading industries in those countries.

But the crowning irony is that to Furth, Germany, it was they who introduced the manufacture of inexpensive jewelry, which became a specialty of that district, and through the following centuries, down to 1914, was sold in France as "Parisian jewelry."

So much for religious persecution.

Joe Murray's Accomplishment.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A LOT of credit is due Joe Murray of Ohio avenue for making our neighborhood on the Mississippi River bluffs a more delightful place to live.

He has, entirely through his own efforts (after having secured permission from the owner of the property), converted a very unsightly dump pile of tin cans, cinders and debris of every description into a veritable flower garden. The result of his efforts, which I believe he has named "Ohio Park," affords pleasure not only to residents of the neighborhood but to motorists as well.

MRS. FRED ADAMS.

He Learned His Lesson.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM heartily in accord with the opinion of "Unfortunate" in regard to noise, especially after 10 p. m. I am not one of those who cannot sleep after being waked, but I once had an experience whereby I learned a very good lesson.

I pulled up in front of a friend's house one night in an automobile, and instead of going up to the house to call my friend, I just blew my horn. It happened that in the house next door lived an old man who was sick, and this noise caused him to get worse. Although he recovered, it took him longer than if I hadn't disturbed him.

Ever since this experience, I have tried to make as little noise as possible.

SYMPATHIZER.

Says Hague, the Plague.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"HE who objects to the American form of government should be sent out of the country." So says Hague, the Plague, of Jersey City. Of course, it is downright ornery to suspect that he means "my form of government."

If there is anyone who should be filled to the brim with gratitude for the American form—and what it stands for—it is Hague himself, when he reflects on what it does stand for.

E. G. P.

To Complete the Plaza Plan.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

REFERRING to the difficulties encountered in locating the Milles fountain in front of Union Station, I should like to take this opportunity again to advise the city to purchase the blocks from Fifteenth street to Eighteenth street, between Chestnut and Market, before any large buildings are erected on them.

These blocks would provide the proper setting for the Postoffice and Union Station and were considered favorably for that purpose, I believe, by the City Plan Commission. Their purchase at the present time would properly complete the plaza plan of central downtown St. Louis.

In fact, the widening of Market street and the creation of Aloe Plaza should not have been done without consideration of these open spaces.

WILLIAM HENRY GRUEN.

GAINS FOR THE MERIT SYSTEM.

The record in general of the third session of the Seventy-fifth Congress was the subject of comment in these columns several days ago. A phase of it which deserves more detailed discussion is that embracing civil service legislation and the issues in which the merit system for Government personnel was involved in some form or other.

In this field the record is one of advances—not advances that were as great, by any means, as might have been made, but substantial and worthwhile gains nevertheless. When these are grouped together, they constitute one of the definite credit entries of the session.

Least noticed of all, perhaps, was the establishment of the merit system as the basis for personnel employment and promotion in the administration of the new wage-hour law. The conflict over the question of wage differentials served to hide the fact that Congress did not yield to the spoilsmen who wanted to throw all administrative posts on the political pie counter.

In the last preceding session, Civil Service Enemy No. 1—Senator McKellar of Tennessee—put over a raid on the personnel administering the Federal social security system. This he did by getting the Senate to pass his amendment to make all appointments to positions paying more than $5000 dependent upon confirmation by the Senate. The House reluctantly agreed in the closing days of the session, and that unfortunate precedent went into the Federal law books.

Happily, the session just closed did not allow McKellar to enlarge the area of his ravaging. He had the brazenness to attempt to apply the same anti-civil-service device to all the agencies, even including the Civil Service Commission itself, coming under the independent offices appropriation bill, but he was defeated, thanks to the stanch opposition of House conferees who were backed up by the chamber in the crucial test.

Had the third session done to the wage-hour legislation what the second session did to social security administration, the country would now be confronted with the prospect of political interference in the selection of experts and counsel. As the measure passed, senatorial confirmation to posts carrying salaries of $5000 or more is not required, and job-hungry Senators cannot join hands in a concerted campaign to obtain civil service positions for their henchmen, regardless of qualification.

There was advance, also, in the postal service. Congress did not, it is true, pass the genuine merit system bill of Representative Ramspeck of Georgia. But then neither did it accept the vicious substitute of McKellar, which would have carried us back almost a generation. What it did was to make significant improvements over present law, the while failing to accomplish as much as the country had the right to expect.

Postmasters of the first, second and third classes will still be nominated by the President and their nominations confirmed by the Senate. But although postmasterships will still be involved in politics, political influences will be more reduced than ever before, as the Civil Service Commission has been given sole authority to conduct examinations and to establish a list of eligibles from which nominees will be chosen. Acting postmasters must have the approval of the Civil Service Commission after holding their posts for six months. And as security of tenure is the essence of a merit system, the change to appointment for an indefinite period instead of the present four-year period is also an improvement.

The greatest shortcoming of the session in this general field was the political way in which it disposed of the movement to provide adequate means for investigating charges of political use of relief funds. The thorough inquiry which 10 Senators of differing political philosophies joined in sponsoring was sidetracked. Instead, any investigating will be done by the scantily provided for Committee on Campaign Expenditures, which Senator Sheppard of Texas, Democratic regular, will direct. The prospect is for inactivity when vigilance and forthright action are needed.

HONORARY BUCK PRIVATE BILLINGS.

Something new and novel in the way of campaign hokum has been revealed in the case of Judge James V. Billings, Democratic candidate for the Supreme Court of Missouri. Judge Billings is being represented in campaign literature as a member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. When his eligibility for membership in those organizations was questioned by Wayne R. Berry, a genuine war veteran, Billings, who did not serve in the World War, explained he was an honorary member of the Malden (Mo.) post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and of the Samuel T. Adams Post of the American Legion at Kennett, Mo.

It is a rather astonishing performance for an office-seeker who did not wear the uniform to be paraded in a political campaign as a war veteran. We have heard of synthetic Colonels manufactured by the signature of a Governor, and of pretty girls named Daughters of the Regiment, and of royal stuffed shirts in Europe adopting such titles as Field Marshal and Admiral of the Fleet, but the creation of an honorary ex-buck private is certainly one for Ripley.

GULDAHL'S MAGNIFICENT DEFEAT.

Two successive National Open championships, three successive Western Open tournaments, a blazing 65 on the last 18 at Westwood, ending with a spectacular 29-foot chip shot for a birdie—these things make Ralph Guldahl the idol of the Assorted and Amalgamated Duffers of America, the Bobby Jones of 1938.

His present victories recall a magnificent defeat. It occurred at Glenview, Ill., where the National Open was played in 1933. Ralph, a boy of 21, then professional at the St. Louis Country Club, was nine strokes behind the pacemaker and eventual winner—Johnny Goodman—with only 15 holes to go, a seemingly insuperable handicap. Ralph burned up the course and arrived at the last tee needing a birdie to win and a par to tie Goodman.

The seasoned Guldahl of today would probably, in a like situation, play for the par. Boldly, the Guldahl of 1933 gambled on his second shot, which overran the green and landed in a trap; it was the crucial stroke. He pitched out and took two putts, scoring 288 to Goodman's 287.

No doubt Guldahl, in his mind, has replayed that hole a thousand times, particularly that second shot which beat him, but which might have won for him, as a youth, the most coveted and most lucrative title in American golf.

RENEWED POGROMS IN NAZI GERMANY.

A characteristic of Fascism in all countries where it prevails is the maintenance of a scapegoat: an agency or group which may be held responsible for the regime's failures, and against which popular attacks may be whipped up when the people begin thinking about their troubles. In Nazi Germany, the Jew is the official scapegoat, since Marxist groups, formerly a horrendous bogy, have been eliminated. Revival of open warfare against German Jews, in the form of mass arrests, wrecking of shops and intensification of the boycott, indicates that the dictatorship finds it necessary to create a fresh public diversion.

The Nazis constructed a straw man, the "Jewish menace," and demolished it as soon as they came to power. Jews were promptly eliminated from official posts, barred from professional practice, ousted from business and finance, deprived of most forms of employment, socially ostracized. Even the slenderest basis for the myth of Jewish "dominance" has long since disappeared from every phase of the nation's life. Yet the persecutions continue, and now in aggravated form. It is a coldly calculated policy, this renewed attack by official order upon a helpless and terrorized minority, constituting less than 1 per cent of the country's population. Its significance is made clear by the fact that the new onslaught was launched by order of the Propaganda Minister.

When one minority in a country loses its legal and economic rights, then those of all minorities, and indeed of all the people, are destroyed or endangered. The truth of this is demonstrated by the tragic fate of civil liberties in the Nazi Reich. Whatever allure the alleged "efficiency" of the Fascist system may hold is more than counterbalanced by its suppression of fundamental human rights.

A DRIVE ON EXCAVATION HAZARDS.

City authorities have embarked upon a vigorous campaign against abandoned excavations such as those which took the lives of five schoolboys last week. Director of Streets and Sewers McDevitt, as we have previously noted, has launched a survey of the death traps, with a view to ordering them filled or enclosed by fences. Mayor Dickmann now has instructed Public Safety Director Chadsey to collaborate in the survey. In addition, Chief Glassco has ordered canvasses of the hazardous places by police throughout the city. Coroner's verdicts of criminal carelessness were returned by a jury last Thursday against owners of the two properties where the recent tragedies occurred.

It is a pity that the crusade against these hazards could not have been launched before instead of after the five drownings. There is a certain consolation, however, in the fact that the deaths promise to bring about drastic action that will prevent recurrence of such tragedies.

MISSOURI'S NEW RECREATIONAL WEALTH.

Recreational facilities in Missouri have enjoyed a development in recent years perhaps not fully realized by many citizens. Within two or three hours of St. Louis are quiet rural retreats, thick forests, tumbling streams, wind-swept lakes—complete detachment from the urban scene.

State parks, some large, some small, all picturesque, are scattered over the country, particularly in the peaceful Ozark hills. Many of them have rushing silver or placid blue springs, while other attractions lie in the dank limestone caverns and wild, cold streams. One of the largest parks has been opened in the unspoiled woodlands adjoining the Lake of the Ozarks. Eight big national forests have been established, offering a charm all their own in winding, unmapped roads and trails among the oaks, pines and cedars.

In contrast with the Lake of the Ozarks, which twists, dragon-like, among wooded hills for many miles across the center of the Missouri map, and with Lake Taneycomo in the southwest, are the six broad, long pools being created along the eastern border. These are the nearly completed result of the new Mississippi River dams at Alton, Cap au Gris, Clarksville, Saverton, Quincy and Canton. Together, these eight lakes constitute a remarkable asset for boating and other aquatic recreation.

Many sections of the fine State highway system are not only the avenues to vacation land but in themselves constitute part of the scenic setting and the fun of rural Missouri. Numerous stretches of roadside have been beautified with trees, shrubs and grass.

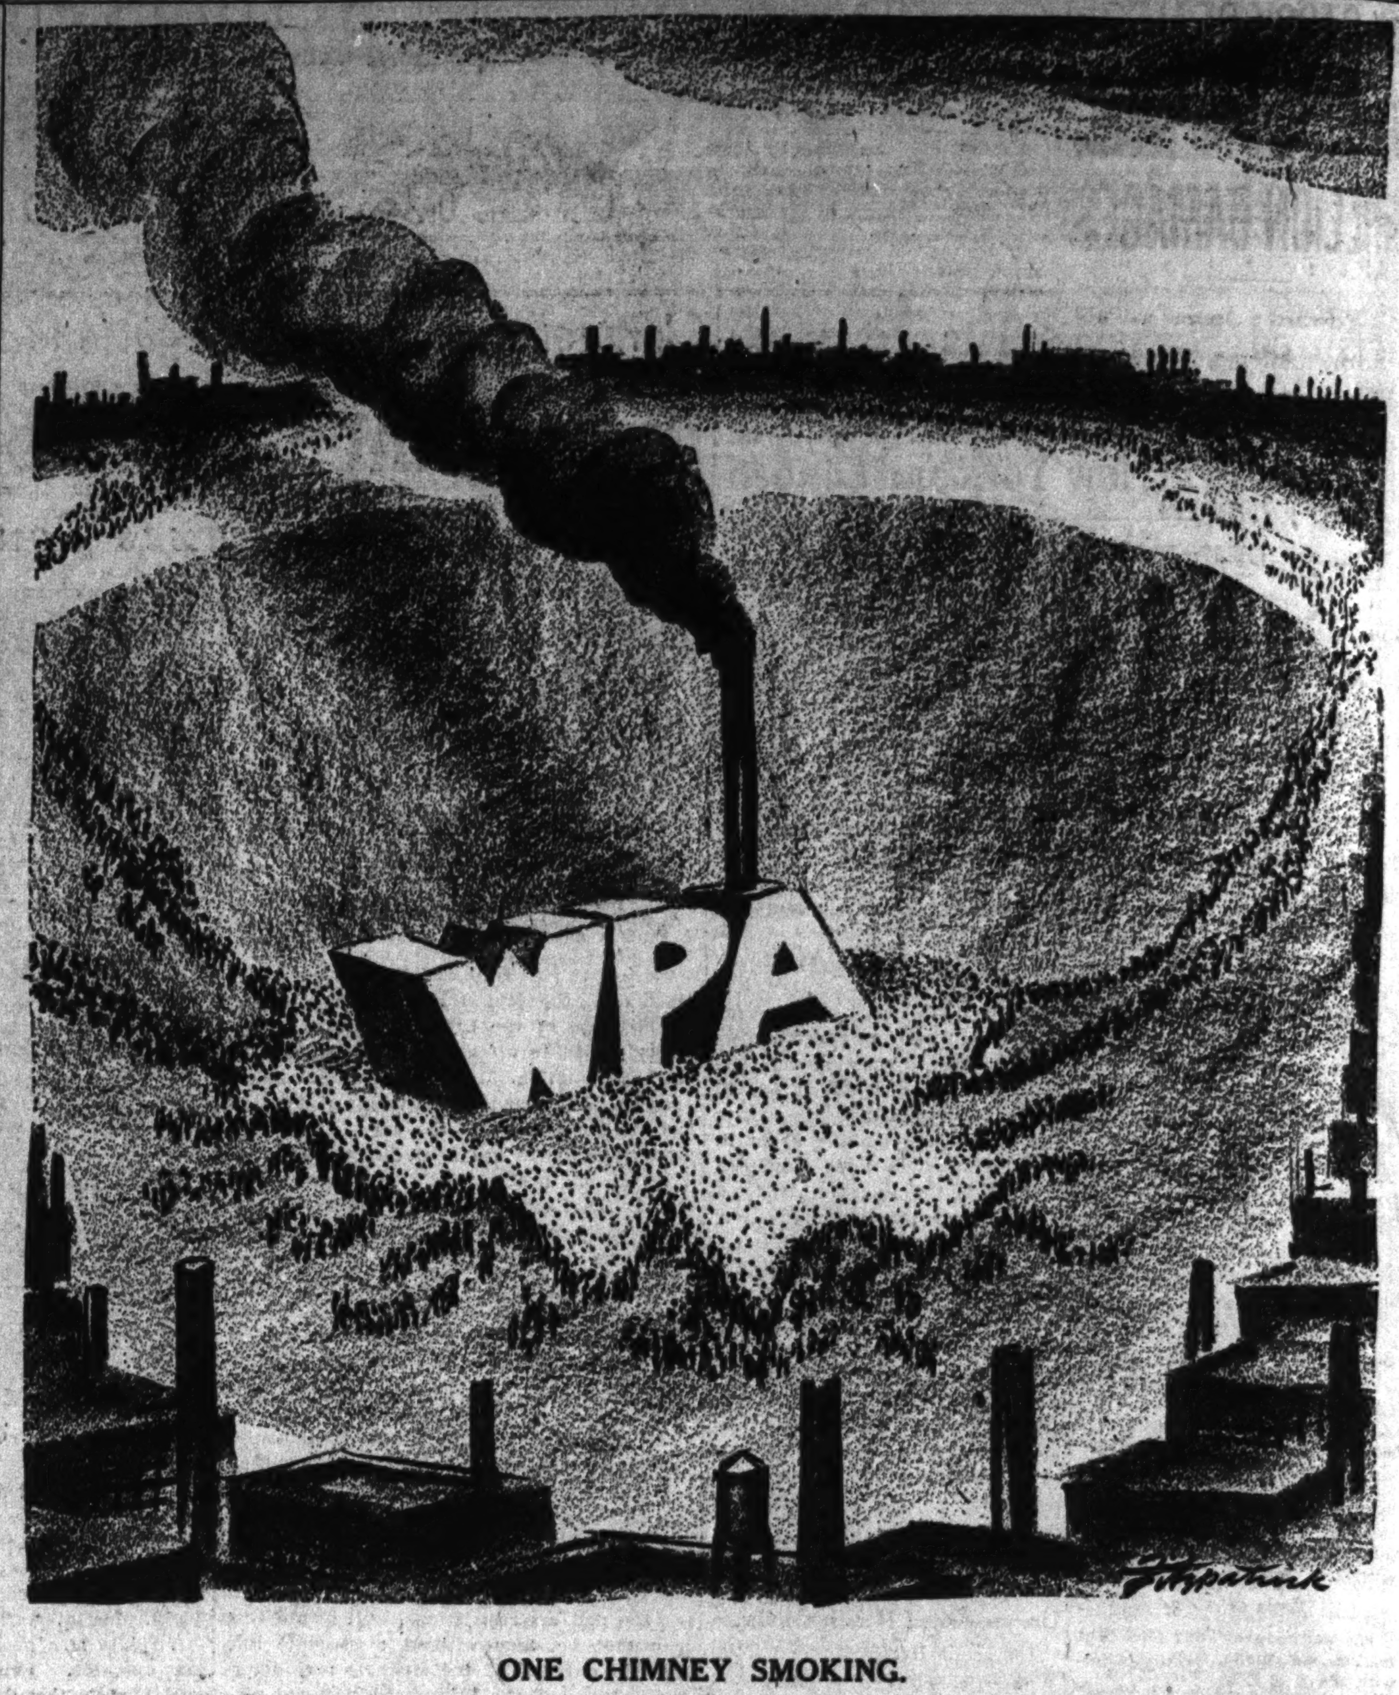
Pleasant, attractive places for lodging and eating are becoming more common. Rustic cabins have sprung up at various places. There is no dearth of camp sites or firewood or edibles for those who would rest under the stars. The authorities are trying hard to restore the supply of game and fish; indeed, ducks, quail, wild turkey, deer, bass and trout are far from exterminated. Except in the most extreme heat, summer nights are pleasant enough in the Ozarks, while swimming holes by the thousand offer daytime retreats.

Now, just let someone wipe out the pesky chigger!

THOSE POOR MONKEYS.

A heartfelt appeal is sounded to the editor of the Washington Post in a letter from a reader. The plea is in behalf of the monkeys bought for infantile paralysis experimentation through gifts on the occasion of President Roosevelt's birthday last January. "These monkeys," says the letter writer, "come from distant homes to certain homesickness, suffering and death." Since it is by no means sure that children will be benefited by this suffering, the writer says, why is not the money used for direct benefits to the children, such as sunshine, bathing and special care?

Perhaps we are heartless and cold-blooded, but we would willingly doom every monkey in all the world's jungles to homesickness and even death if scientific discoveries made possible by their sacrifice would save one child from the ravages of infantile paralysis. Wheeling crippled children in the sun and giving them warm baths doesn't endanger the lives of monkeys, but it doesn't help prevent the disease, either. And that is what medical science is determined to do, and will do in time, no matter how loud the laments of anti-vivisectionists over the sad fate of the poor little homesick monkeys.



ONE CHIMNEY SMOKING.

SEC and Wall Street Co-operate

Progress toward reform is being made by agreements between Federal commission and exchange officers, writer says; Chairman Douglas made tacit threat of Government intervention, but aims at self-policing plan; Whitney case said to have persuaded market to favor co-operation; unsolved problems remain for future attack.

Glenn Nixon in the United States News.

ONE of the most far-reaching changes in American financial practices is being completed now. It is of importance not only to 300,000 small traders on the stock market but also to 10,000,000 owners of securities in the United States. It affects much of the economic life of this country.

The Securities and Exchange Commission and the New York Stock Exchange are co-operating, as S E C Chairman William O. Douglas puts it, to develop "a streamlined administrative machine geared for high-speed action in the interests not only of the members but of the general investing public."

The advent of closer governmental supervision of securities trading in New York is of fundamental importance because the New York exchange, from the standpoint of dollar value, is the arena for approximately nine-tenth of all the buying and selling done on the nation's stock exchanges.

To obtain co-operation—in contrast with the open or concealed warfare of the past—it has been necessary for soft-spoken, sandy-haired Scotsman Douglas to play an aggressive role as the head of the S E C. Here is what the record shows:

In 1932 there was the Senate investigation of short-selling. Then in 1933, during the first months of the present administration, there was the investigation of the New York exchange, carried out under the direction of Ferdinand Pecora. Out of the disclosures evolved a new demand for regulation of the exchanges, which resulted in the Securities Act of 1933 and the Security and Exchange Act of 1934.

Under the first act, regulations were laid down dealing with the original issuance of stocks and bonds. With the creation of the S E C under the second act, regulations were set up governing trading in stocks and bonds after their original issuance. The newly created agency also took over the functions authorized in the first act.

During the first year of its existence, when Joseph P. Kennedy was chairman, the S E C completed its organization and succeeded in getting the exchange to adopt a number of trading rules it recommended.

Under the chairmanship of James E. Landis, the S E C completed its functional organization, placed the machinery for preventing stock manipulation in good working order and carried out a number of important studies. But the S E C during this period depended entirely on the exchange for enforcement of rules and did not take aggressive action to obtain closer regulation.

When Mr. Douglas was elected chairman last fall to succeed Mr. Landis, he immediately started negotiations with the exchange to obtain a complete reorganization of its administrative setup and the enforcement of stricter supervision of trading.

After two months of negotiations, during which the officials of the exchange failed to submit a satisfactory plan, Mr. Douglas issued a statement outlining his position on the matter. This is considered as the turning point at which the S E C chairman told the exchange either to reorganize or to prepare for Government assumption of regulatory functions.

What Mr. Douglas sought, however, was co-operation, not greater Federal responsibility. His attitude was explained May 20 at a dinner in New York of the Association of Stock Exchange firms, when he said:

"My philosophy was and is that the national securities exchanges should be so organized as to be able to take on the job of policing their members so that it would be unnecessary for the Government to interfere with that business, and that they should demonstrate by action that they were so organized."

When the fraudulent practices of Richard Whitney were disclosed, no final action had been taken on the plans for a new setup for the exchange. Some S E C officials express the opinion that the Whitney exposure was the factor which weighed the scales in favor of co-operation with the Government.

On Jan. 27 the Conway recommendations (by a special committee of exchange members) were made to the exchange. These recommendations, which were adopted almost in their entirety, provide a salaried president to replace the non-salaried office which has existed in the past. A large part of the administration to be placed in the president's hands. Reduction from 17 to seven standing committees and a reduction in the Board of Governors from 50 to 32 members.

When the recommendations were adopted by the exchange in March, there were put into effect the objectives Mr. Douglas outlined last November when he pointed out:

"Operating as private membership associations, exchanges have always administered their affairs in much the same manner as private clubs. . . . The task of conducting the affairs of large exchanges (especially the New York Stock Exchange) has become too engrossing for those who must also run their own businesses. And it may also be that there would be greater public confidence in exchanges (and the prices made thereon) which recognized that their management should not be in the hands of professional traders but in fact, as well as nominally, in charge of those who have a clearer public responsibility."

Now, with a new administration for the exchange, S E C officials point out, the foundation is laid for an attack on other problems. Some yet to be solved, Mr. Douglas has pointed out, include:

Maintenance of a free market uninfluenced by pools or other manipulation.

Solution of the question of advantages of floor members over "outsiders."

Safeguarding customers' cash and securities.

Improvement of the quality and quantity of bond trading on the exchange.

The question of the amount of commissions and other service charges which members of the exchange should receive.

The question of whether the odd-lot business and procedure can be improved in the interest of the public and the exchange.

Conferences are now in progress between the S E C and the stock exchange to solve these problems. A program to cover the major points will be developed within the next month or so, according to S E C officials, although it may be six months or more before action has been taken on all the details.

A Murderous Philosophy

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

OVER China and Spain, airmen in the comparative security of their cockpits high in the air continue to shower death-dealing bombs upon civilian populations. It is inconceivable that more than a few of them relish their job. For they, too, have families at home, somewhere; fathers, mothers, wives and children of the same flesh and blood as the people huddled in the streets of the cities far beneath.

Men at war, of course, acquire of necessity an attitude of detachment. Their nerves are steeled to kill at first sight men in the uniform of the other side; to kill without then or later thinking much about it. But in ordinary warfare, balm for the soldier's conscience is the thought: "It was either he or I."

The bomber, aloft thousands of feet over a city of defenseless people, cannot assuage his conscience with any such thought. He has nothing to fear from the mother with her market basket, from the children in the schoolyard. He carries out the bombing because his superiors have ordered it.

An inhuman high command is discernible behind all such outrages, a philosophy quite different from that to be found among ordinary fighting men. During the World War, the German high command displayed a wanton disregard for the rights of noncombatants with the Zeppelin bombing raids on London and the long-distance shelling of Paris. Italy's high military officials subscribed to the same philosophy, as borne out in Ethiopia and Spain. Japan's slaughter of noncombatants in air raids has continued despite protests from most of the world.

Strangely enough, there is no record of retaliation in equal measure to these attacks upon civilian populations. The Allies did not carry into Germany the frightfulness of air raids and artillery fire upon open cities. Ethiopia, of course, wasn't in position to retaliate. The loyalists in Spain have made no effort to duplicate the record of the German, Italian and nationalist bombings. The Chinese have dropped only pamphlets, not bombs, on exposed Japanese cities.

There may yet come a time when the military commands which calmly order mass murder of civilians will have to answer for bloody reprisal. They are dreadfully careless about other people's lives, including those of their own people.

OIL STOCK DEALER SUES S E C MEN FOR MILLION DAMAGES

J. Edward Jones, New York, Alleges Commissioners Conspired to Impugn His Integrity.

ENVOY KENNEDY ONE OF DEFENDANTS

Action Follows Supreme Court Ruling Plaintiff Had Right to Withdraw Criticised Statement.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Awaiting trial in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia is a suit in which J. Edward Jones, New York oil stock dealer, seeks damages of $1,000,000 plus costs and disbursements in the action, from Joseph P. Kennedy, James M. Landis, George C. Matthews and Robert E. Healy, all Commissioners or former Commissioners of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Kennedy is now Ambassador to Great Britain, and Landis is dean of the Harvard Law School.

Thus far, subpenas have been served only on Matthews and Healy, who last Monday entered a demurrer affirming that the plaintiff's "declaration is bad in substance." At the office of the marshal for the District of Columbia it was stated today that a summons issued for Kennedy expired 20 days later, and that Jones had taken no steps to have a new one prepared in anticipation of the Ambassador's arrival in this country.

Basis of Action.

The action grew out of a registration statement filed by Jones with the S E C on May 3, 1935, in which he sought authority to issue 1000 shares at $100 each of participation trust certificates in producing oil royalties of the J. Edward Jones Royalty Trust. On May 28 of that year the S E C announced that a hearing had been set for June 6, at which Jones would have opportunity to show why the effectiveness of his registration statement should not be suspended, "because the Commission finds reasonable grounds for believing that 14 items, three exhibits and the prospectus contain untrue statements or omit to state certain required material facts."

Thereupon Jones sought to withdraw his statement and the refusal of the commission to permit him to do so is one of the grounds on which he asks for damages. The commission brought suit in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York to compel him to testify and produce his books, and obtained a favorable decision both there in the Circuit Court of Appeals. Jones then appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, and was upheld in a decision handed down April 7, 1936, which declared the commission's refusal to let Jones withdraw his application was "wholly unreasonable and arbitrary."

Charges in Suit.

The suit for damages was filed May 23 of this year. It recites that on May 4, 1935, the plaintiff filed with the S E C a registration statement for an investment trust, and that "the defendants thereupon entered into a common plan and conspiracy to make, and caused to be made, false allegations that the statement as filed was affirmatively and negatively deficient, and was not in compliance with the statutes of Congress in obedience to which it was tendered."

It was a further part of the alleged conspiracy, the charges proceed, that the defendants issued or sanctioned the issuance of "false and misleading publicity releases to the press, of such nature and character as were calculated to impugn the plaintiff's honesty, business character and integrity. The commissioners are then accused of publishing announcements that "stop order" proceedings would be instituted in respect to the investment trust, and that Jones had been called on to show why a "stop order" should not be issued.

The petition then complains that the person chosen to preside at the hearing as trial examiner was a member of the S E C legal staff, who, because of this association, "would not be qualified to hear or determine any controversial matters in a fair, impartial and unbiased manner." Jones alleges it was the intention of the commission to interrogate him on irrelevant and immaterial events and circumstances, with the purpose of "discrediting him before his established clientele."

Subpena Unserved.

On June 18, 1935, the petition continues, Jones tendered to the S E C "a complete and unequivocal withdrawal of his registration statement"; the offer the defendants "wrongfully, unlawfully and maliciously refused to accept."

The United States Marshal for the District of Columbia proved unsuccessful in his efforts to serve a subpena on Jones, the latter relates, whereupon he charges that the defendants maliciously and unlawfully caused to be published statements to the effect that plaintiff had eluded the Marshal, flouted the S E C's jurisdiction, "and had fled, evaded and secreted himself from the proper agents and agencies of the law and Government."

It is complained that the defendants also instituted proceedings in the United States District Court in New York City, "in their further endeavor to compel the attendance of the plaintiff before the S E C." All these alleged acts are described as "wholly arbitrary and unreasonable; beyond the province, scope and authority of their official functions," and as constituting "an illegal, unwarranted and tyrannical abuse of power."

In their brief reply Commissioners Matthews and Healy assert they are public officers, and as such are not subject to personal liability for acts within the general scope of their authority. They maintain that Jones' declaration fails to establish a true cause of action, and request the court to order an oral argument on the demurrer.

Progress and Problems of U. S. A.

economics of the industrialized northeast do not appeal much to the agricultural districts of a State like Texas. What may be necessary in Michigan may not apply very well to Kansas or Colorado. Our political system almost invariably makes for compromise; and, on the whole, as Governments go, the results have been good.

You will hear, this summer, under cover of the so-called "monopoly investigation," a running debate on what ought to be the policy of the Government in connection with industry, which happens to be the dangerous and difficult problem just now. But the real debate will be somewhere else. It will be on the streets of Detroit and Flint; of New York and Newark; of Atlanta and Providence. The solution is still some years away.

Function of Service.

Whatever experiment is tried, the laboring oar will probably be pulled by the Government services. As administrations change, it may be that we shall try several experiments, one after the other. This means that staffs of the various departments and commissions may find themselves doing several things at various times. Sometimes they will be trying to prohibit certain activities; sometimes to regulate certain activities. Still later they may find themselves directly operating great enterprises. And the Government service must be a well developed tool through which any of those problems may be handled as they may arise.

You are, perhaps, familiar with the custom in the English Civil Service. That service, of course, is not limited to the lower employes. It takes in most of the major functions of government, leaving a very small stratum of Cabinet officers and sub-Cabinet officers at the top, whose business it is to make policy. It is the job of an English civil servant loyally to carry out the policies of the Government as he understands them, irrespective of his views in the matter. It is for the country, through its elected officials and its Cabinet, to determine what the policy will be. It is for the civil servant to make that policy as effective, as beneficial, and as impartial as it can. A Cabinet officer in England, or an undersecretary may resign, if he disagrees with the policy. A civil servant must never resign on that account. He may have his own views, of course; but his business is to serve his chiefs, who in turn are supposed to express the will of the country.

Time to Build Up Service.

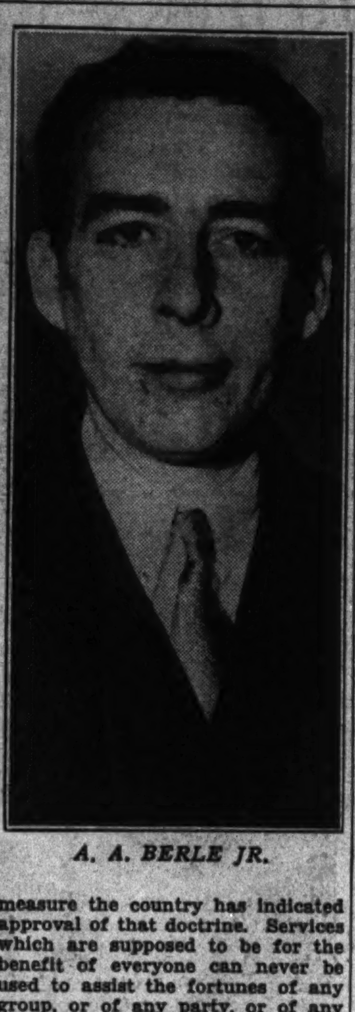
Now it happens that we have never undertaken to develop that kind of civil service in the United States. But it is time we did. We began by endeavoring to limit the operation of the Spoils System, so that every Government employe did not feel that his job was in danger whenever there was a change of administration. But we have not undertaken to develop the career services within the Government as a permanent reservoir of great executive ability available to carry out Government policies. Only in a few agencies of the Government, notably the Department of State, have we emphasized the career service. Yet it is plain that, whatever policy is chosen, we shall need that kind of professional civil service quite as badly as we need professional West Pointers in the Army. In modern government technical staffs determined by politics or by the Spoils System, are as obsolete as political generals or political captains in the army or navy. You could not fight a modern war with generals chosen primarily for political considerations, as they were chosen in the Civil War. You cannot put through an economic policy when the sub-chiefs and local administrations are manned primarily from political ranks.

Non-Political Administration.

The country is slowly making up its mind, I think, about certain aspects of its government.

First, it likes open government, openly arrived at. It likes to be able to see the whole process of formation of policy; it likes to have its political campaigns, so far as possible, develop the issues and hear them discussed. This is often not possible. Events may move fast and may prevent unforeseen problems. But even so, it likes to see measures proposed far enough in advance so that they can be thoroughly discussed. This was why the old "Brain Trust" was essentially an emergency group; and why it promptly, properly, and of its own will, broke up immediately after the bank holiday of 1933.

Second, when policies are adopted it likes to know by whom they are administered and, most of all, likes to know that they are administered even handedly. Precisely because the government has had to enter many new fields, the public likes to know that it plays no favorites. The Massachusetts Constitution borrowed from Jeremy Bentham a phrase insisting "that there shall be a government of laws and not of men." In a large measure the country has indicated approval of that doctrine. Services which are supposed to be for the benefit of everyone can never be used to assist the fortunes of any group, or of any party, or of any special interest. This interest lies precisely in the guardianship of the new Civil Service.



A. A. BERLE JR.

There is nothing impossible about this. Even when the government has the greatest of all controls—that of direct ownership—it is perfectly possible to run the service entirely disinterestedly You can put a man out of business by denying him the use of the mails, yet no one is afraid that the mails will be used against him as an instrument of malice or politics. In my own city—New York—we own and operate the largest single public utility in the world, the New York Water System. Politics in New York has never been a kid glove affair. Yet in the worst days, no political opponent of the city administration worried in the slightest about his water supply. The point is that a tradition of strict disinterestedness makes extension of government activities possible without the slightest danger. Without that tradition, any increase of government functions is, of necessity, a threat.

Third. The country realizes that the entry of the Government into economic fields means increasingly that the politician gives away to the technician, the engineer or the trained administrator. It was LaGuardia who first started his career on this principle; and then smashingly proved its success. Political activity does very little to train a man for running, let us say, a railroad, a power plant, a health service, a fleet of merchant ships, a national forest or a bridge or road building project. It is perfectly possible even to have bankers who are purely trained public servants, as are our hospital superintendents of the Army Engineers.

Field of Collective Enterprise.

It is not generally realized how completely the United States changed its economic clothes between 1914 and 1930. During that period, it about doubled its industrial plant and enormously increased the number of industrial workers. The farm districts stood still; the cities and the great industries grew. In that short space of 16 years, we brought into existence the existing motor industry, the radio industry, most of the moving picture industry, and dozens of subsidiary industries, which live on these great giants. During that period, we criss-crossed the country with power lines, and threw skyscrapers against the city sky lines. As progress, it was magnificent, but it brought problems in its wake, which we are only now beginning to realize.

There is some reason to believe that one result of all this activity is a huge increase in things which have to be done without profit—that is, jobs which have to be carried on at the expense of the whole community and which cannot be charged for by the piece. For instance, the public health becomes enormously important; and no public health system, no hospital system and no sanitary system ever yet paid for itself in ordinary commercial ways. We have spent billions in non-commercial roads, merely because we have automobiles to ride in. Put differently, as the amount of privately created wealth grew, the proportion of wealth which the Government had to create and operate has become greater. The time may come when the railroads will be treated as our roads and waterways—a necessary service to the whole community, but a service which can only be carried on publicly.

It may even come to pass that certain of our great natural resource industries will be found to be in a similar category. It is by no means sure that we can, indefinitely, leave our resources of timber, metal and oil to be taken competitively and thrown on the market, irrespective of need or occasion.

The Guarantee of Freedom.

You will see at once the point I am making.

The extension of government can be an instrument of tyranny or it can be an extension of freedom. Which it is depends wholly upon the quality of the Government service, and upon the standards the public sets for that service. I am not among those who fear any extension of government, on the theory that it will be abused. So far as I can see, any power, private or public, can be abused; and there is no more reason to believe that the power of the Government will be abused than to fear that the power of a big bank or a big corporation will be abused—or, for that matter, that the power of a labor union or of an association of small business men. Any of these agencies can accumulate power and abuse that power. But if the quality of the people operating them is sufficiently high, and if the public will in the matter is sufficiently strong, and if there is always freedom of speech and of criticism, we do need to worry.

But there are two guarantees which we must insist on, and must always keep in view.

The first is the steady growth in education and in background of our great commercial and Government services. This does not mean merely their progress in technical studies. It means a general knowledge as well. I am glad that you here tonight have become proficient in law and accounting. I hope, however, that you will not neglect history and literature. The technician especially needs to have a background of general knowledge, if only because it makes him at once tolerant of other people's ideas, humble as to his own and able to deal with new situations when they arise. Very few things happen about which someone has not dreamed and written; educated men know this and are less likely to be surprised or afraid.

Fundamentally Spiritual.

The second guarantee lies still deeper. Fundamentally it is spiritual. Men are what their minds and hearts make them. It has been truly said of America that its greatest characteristic is its kindliness—a moral quality. Fundamentally we accept the idea that men have duties to their neighbors; that unhappiness anywhere is the concern of all of us everywhere; that, when any group or class in the United States is left out of our national life, all of us are concerned. Intellect does not cause this. It is a much deeper sense of moral responsibility. For that reason, we are careful to guard the rights of people who disagree with us; to try to assist people who have no claim on us; to make of our government, as of our private life, an instrument for something more than merely our own support.

This thinking, and this moral responsibility, must be the major safeguard as our Government, slowly, comes to the full stature of a great century.

Who's Who on Berle: Son of Minister Formerly of St. Louis.

ADOLF AUGUSTUS BERLE JR., a son of the Rev. A. A. Berle, formerly of St. Louis, is the coauthor of a standard study of American economic life, "The Modern Corporation and Private Property," an analysis of the use of corporations for the concentrated control of finance and production.

He was appointed Assistant Secretary of State after serving four years as Chamberlain of the City of New York, during which time he became head of Mayor La Guardia's city planning board. Before going to New York he was special counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and had much to do with the drafting of the Railroad Bankrupty Act of 1933. He was one of the original Roosevelt "Brain Trust" during the 1932 campaign.

Born in Boston in 1895, he obtained his law and master's degrees from Harvard before he was 21 years old. He practiced law in Justice Brandeis' old law firm in Boston for a year and enlisted in the army in May, 1917. Going into the war as a private in infantry, he came out of the war a First Lieutenant. He was named as an expert on the American Commission to negotiate peace with Germany. After the war he practiced law in New York and from 1925 to 1928 he was lecturer on finance at the Harvard Business School. Part of this time he was associate professor of corporation law at the Columbia Law School, and a director of Savings Bank Trust Co., The Institutional Securities Corporation, and the American Molasses Co.

SUMMER CLASS REGISTRATION

Monday, 8:30 to 5, at St. Louis University.

Registration for the summer session at St. Louis University will be held Monday at the Administration Building, 221 North Grand boulevard, from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Classes will begin Tuesday and continue to July 30.

New courses include classes in college administration, educational guidance, rural social problems, American folk-lore, and history of present-day governments. Forty college deans and registrars from 10 states have already applied for the unit of courses in college administration, university authorities said.

ENGINEERS OPEN 4-DAY SESSION HERE TOMORROW

NEW ARMY TANKS TO BE DESCRIBED

Smoke Abatement to Be Discussed—Dr. H. N. Davis, President, to Talk on 'Engineering and Health.'

Papers dealing with the latest advances and developments in mechanical and industrial engineering will be delivered at the Statler Hotel beginning tomorrow when the American Society of Mechanical Engineers opens its semi-annual convention. The meetings will last through Thursday.

More than 1000 engineers are expected to attend the convention at which two features of interest will be a lecture on "Engineering and Health" to be delivered by Dr. Harvey N. Davis, president of the society, and an expository lecture on the newest in army tanks by Maj. John H. Christmas of Washington.

Dr. Davis, who is president of Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N. J., will speak at the banquet on Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. Maj. Christmas will speak Tuesday at 8 p. m. His talk will be illustrated with motion pictures. It will be given with the special permission of the War Department and will be the first time that the latest in tanks will be described publicly.

Smoke Abatement.

Among the topics which will come in for discussion is smoke abatement. Smoke Commissioner Raymond R. Tucker of St. Louis will review the problem at a luncheon on Tuesday. There will also be two sectional meetings devoted to fuels on Monday night and Wednesday morning. After Tucker's speech there will be an open discussion led by Osborn Monnett of Detroit, who made a survey of the smoke evils in St. Louis several years ago.

A discussion of how industrial engineers—who used to be called efficiency experts—conduct their timing studies of mechanical operations, especially those used in mass production, will be held Monday night. Ralph M. Barnes, professor of industrial engineering at the University of Iowa, will describe a method whereby the operations were timed down to one-thousandth of a second by means of a photo-electric cell.

The Calvin W. Rice Memorial Lecture, given in memory of a former secretary of the society, has been written by William Robb Barclay, British metallurgical engineer. It will be delivered in his absence because of illness, by T. H. Wickenden, assistant manager of the International Nickel Co. of New York. It is entitled "Some Contributions of Metallurgy to Engineering Process" and will review the important functions which the developments of alloys have played in such fields as automobile, aeronautical and structural engineering.

Medal for Maj. Doolittle.

At the banquet Wednesday night the Spirit of St. Louis medal, which is awarded triennially for important contributions to aviation, will be presented to Maj. James H. Doolittle, aviator, of St. Louis.

At odd times during the convention there will be 15 inspection trips to various factories, steel mills and mines in the St. Louis area. On a trip to the Busch-Sulzer Bros. Diesel Engine Co. the visitors will find the first commercial Diesel engine ever manufactured—it was made in St. Louis in 1898—on display.

NEW GENERAL REGISTRATION OF VOTERS IN CITY TUESDAY

Election Board Estimates That 80,000 Not on List Are Eligible to Cast Ballots.

Polling places in the city's 783 precincts will be open Tuesday from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m., except from 11 a. m. to noon and from 4 to 5 p. m., for registration of voters in preparation for the primary of Aug. 2. Although a general registration was held last Dec. 6 and 7 under the new permanent registration law and enrollment has been conducted daily since then at the Election Board office, the board ordered the new general registration in the belief that about 80,000 more citizens were eligible to vote. The present enrollment is about 334,000. Officials estimated that 50,000 might qualify Tuesday.

The number of precincts has been increased, with consequent general changing of boundaries, since the city election of April 1937. Persons desiring the addresses of polling places in their home precincts may telephone MAin 5560 (ask for election office) or GArfield 5288. The only election in the new precincts was the school tax election last April, in which only 160,000 votes were cast.

Voters already registered, who have moved subsequently, may transfer their enrollment up to July 27. The Election Board has urged that transfers be made by calling at its office, 208 South Twelfth street, or mailing official forms there. It has discouraged transfer through new registration Tuesday.

In 1936 the center gave 62,000 consultations, and its budget amounted to £20,000 ($100,000). The average cost of each consultation is about 6s. ($1.50) and the difference between that and the flat-rate fee of 4s. ($1) to each individual member is made up by the union.

The center is more like a pleasant library than a clinic. The staff and patients are attractively cheerful and friendly. This atmosphere must contribute much to the happiness of patients. It is due to the workers' control of their own medical service and to Dr. Price's art of democratic management in a medical institution and is worth study.

3954 HOMES WITH H O L C LOANS IN STATE TAKEN OVER

524 Sold by Corporation; Missouri Borrowers Have Paid Back $9,914,991.

Out of 24,550 homes in Missouri on which the Home Owners' Loan Corporation has made loans, 3954 have been taken over and 524 have been sold by the corporation as of April 30, it is stated in a report made public by G. C. Vandover, State manager of the corporation.

Missouri borrowers have paid back $9,914,991, or 13.1 per cent of their principal indebtedness and 648 loans, amounting to $1,796,593, have been paid in full. Of the total loans, 14,511 accounts were less than three months in arrears, 3179 delinquent borrowers were meeting current bills and making regular payments on arrearages and 1878 others were making some kind of payments. The remainder of the accounts are so badly impaired that drastic action must be taken to save them, or they are headed for foreclosure.

UNIVERSITY CITY POSTOFFICE TO BE DEDICATED JULY 8

Parade to Be Held Before Ceremonies; Stark, Clark and Others Invited.

The new $120,000 University City postoffice will be dedicated July 8, it was announced yesterday by Mayor Matt C. Fogerty.

The ceremonies will be preceded by a parade from Skinker boulevard to the new building on the west side of Kingsland avenue just south of Delmar boulevard. Civic and patriotic organizations will participate.

Gov. Stark, United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Congressman C. Arthur Anderson and St. Louis County officials have been asked to attend. A special cachet from a drawing of the building has been prepared for cancelation of all letters passing through the new postoffice on the day of dedication.

Importance Of the 'Poor Whites' in '40

ment of the poll tax a requirement for voting, the 1936 presidential election was decided by between 24 and 40 per cent of the eligible white voters. (Special restrictions in these states, designed to discourage the Negro from voting, make his vote negligible. Inclusion of the Negro population would make the percentages even lower.) This is in contrast to the average figure for the entire United States, which was 62 per cent, and to the average figure for the states which did not require payment of the poll tax to vote which was 71 per cent.

"More startling contrasts show up between some of the poll-taxed states and their next-door neighbors, as for example, Virginia, 34 per cent and West Virginia, 92 per cent; South Carolina 24 per cent and North Carolina 75 per cent; Arkansas, 25 per cent and Missouri, 80 per cent; Texas, 34 per cent and New Mexico, 94 per cent."

Property restrictions on the right to vote, as such, have been almost entirely removed. In many states, however, the ownership of property, no matter how small in value, frees the citizen from the necessity for complying with other requirements. Poll-tax requirements, according to the survey made by the National Lawyers' Guild in its quarterly journal, were written into the constitution of many Southern states shortly after the beginning of the present century. Literacy tests also prevent many of the underprivileged, whites as well as Negroes, from voting, since the ratio of illiteracy is much higher in the South than in the North. This goes back to the failure of the legislatures to appropriate sufficient funds for the public school system.

Working for a Change.

Laws in several of the Southern states provide for the disfranchisement of paupers. This ancient statute is used in some Southern communities to keep persons on relief from voting. Apparently the constitutionality of this type of pauper law has never been challenged.

Many elements in the South are working to change these caste requirements—they are hardly less than that—which make the ballot a luxury. Certain newspapers have campaigned for removal of the poll-tax restriction. Not long ago the Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser printed a tabulation showing how the right to vote was limited in Southern states. This attracted widespread comment in the South, a part of it at least from indignant Southerners who defended the restrictions.

There may be changes in the next two years. Administration forces are lining up to bring about action before the crucial contest of 1940 if that is possible. A great deal may turn on whether the "poor whites" of the South can be enfranchised before the Democrats assemble in national convention two years from the present month. New voters out of the back country, out of the swamps and bayous, might well determine who the next President is to be and with that the future course of the country at a critical time.

RISE IN ARKANSAS VOTE PUZZLES POLITICIANS

Heaviest Gain in Poll Tax Receipts Since 1930 Recorded.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 18.—Arkansas political strategists are studying the distribution of an 11 per cent increase in the State's voting strength, compared with 1936, as reflected in the number of poll tax receipts issued before the dead line Wednesday midnight. County collectors issued 337,848 receipts, 37,217 more than in 1936. This is the largest number made eligible to vote in an Arkansas election since 1930. Democratic leaders generally took it for granted that the Republican voter participated proportionately in poll tax payments which increased the 1938 total. The Republican gubernatorial candidaate polled 27,350 votes in the 1936 general election, when 186,000 votes were cast. The weight of the increased vote unquestionably will be felt principally in the Democratic primary, Aug. 8.

The poll tax payments increased despite a marked depression in business, and the fact that there are no contests in three major offices, auditor, treasurer and attorney-general. Thousands paid a dollar delinquency fee to get poll tax receipts.

The Consensus of political opinion was that the following were factors in the increase:

1. Widespread interest in the race for United States Senator, interest in which fell entirely into the discard because of the late Joe T. Robinson's eminence, on one hand, and absence of a contest on the other, since the late Huey Long's spectacular tour for the incumbent Hattie Caraway in 1932. Mrs. Caraway is opposed this year by Congressman John L. McClellan, known in rural sections as a "first class rough and tough campaigner."
2. Drives by sponsors of proposed constitutional amendments and initiated acts to persuade persons sympathetic with their measures to obtain poll tax receipts. Backers of the old-age and blind pension proposal and the measure to abolish the poll tax requirement for voting are thought to have caused the purchase of thousands of receipts.
3. A general poll tax consciousness resulting from the situation last October, when a special election for United States Senator was held, and fewer than 182,000 persons had the receipts necessary to permit them to vote.
4. Wide open contests for nominations to Congress in the Second and Sixth districts, and expected contests in the First, Third and Fourth congressional districts.
5. Moves by women's Democratic organizations to press for the payment of poll taxes by women.
6. Realignment of county political groups in many sections as a result of changes in Federal patronage control.

SCHOOL VACATION CAUTIONS ISSUED BY SAFETY COUNCIL

They Are Addressed to Motorists, to Children and to Their Parents.

Safety cautions for school vacation time were issued yesterday by the Safety Council. They were: "To the motorist—expect to find children at unexpected places; be alert. To the children—streets are dangerous places to play; stay in the yard or go to the playground. To the parents—know where your child is playing."

"The council," the statement continued, "directs the attention of parents to a greater need on their part for the supervision of their children during the summer, deploring the fact that too many children, particularly the youngsters, are permitted to shift for themselves. If children had the benefits of the same supervision during vacation as during school months, there would be fewer accidents and no fatalities among them."

"Of Making Many Books"

Oil That Troubles The Waters

THE MOST POWERFUL MAN IN THE WORLD. By Glyn Roberts. (Covici-Friede, New York.)

A DUTCH boy named Deterding, having risen from clerkship in a bank to higher places, eventually became interested in oil; and oil being then on a rising tide, he rose steadily with it until both he and oil became powers in world affairs. Oil, it is said, is what wars are fought with, but it seems that oil is one of the more important things that wars are fought about.

At the beginning of the World War Mr. Deterding had a substantial monopoly in oil at several strategic points in the world; and because he chose to sell his oil to England and the Allies instead of to the Central Powers, and because oil helped win the war, and also because he had by that time come to exert much power in British affairs, he became Sir Henri Deterding.

It seems that, because he came to work on time every morning, etc., etc., his holdings and his power increased greatly after the war; so much so that he is reputed to have whipped Standard Oil in its own back yard, gotten a strangle hold on many unsuspecting nations, dictated policy to many governments, including that of the powerful British Empire, and dreamed of yet more Napoleonic attainments.

Sir Henri has admitted, according to Mr. Roberts, that the oil industry can stop wars "if it wishes," and others have observed that this same industry can also start wars. In fact, it seems that the race for oil had something to do with starting the World War. Had the war ended in 1918, as some of us were led to believe it did, Sir Henri Deterding might not have provided material for a very powerful book. But the war went on—is still going on. And Sir Henri's dream of a world oil monopoly—not to mention the matter of a little spending money advanced to Fascist "persuaders" by oil interests—seems, according to Mr. Roberts, to be a determining influence behind world unrest in 1938. Wherefore Mr. Roberts' choice of the interesting title, "The Most Powerful Man in the World."

This book carries a tremendous wallop and reveals much hard work and painstaking effort in tracing the ramifications of oil in politics over much of the world. Some of the disclosures are astounding, and will certainly affect any intelligent reader's point of view in matters concerning world politics. —Louis M. Wolf.

Entertaining Memories

LIVING ABROAD. The Adventures of an American Family. By Norval Richardson. (J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.)

THE blundering American touring Europe has long been a sure-fire comic character. In this story of his years in Europe, Norval Richardson fortunately leaves that stock figure behind, after the first few chapters, and plunges into fresh narrative that leaves no room for the trite. As secretary of the American Embassy in Rome for seven years, and as a free-lance writer for many more years, he has lived in virtually every corner of Europe.

Joy is the keynote of the book. Fine dinners, entertaining people, and interesting places turn up on every page. Europe, as seen by the writer, takes on new meaning.

The book abounds in famous names, for the author seems to have known everyone in Europe and has anecdotes for each. In Switzerland, Ernest Hemingway appears, wearing a black beard and hunting crows with an "ancient arquebus." Sinclair Lewis comes in to take a bow, as well as Paderewski, Louis Bromfield, Romain Rolland, and many others. Algernon Blackwood rates an entire page by dint of a pair of frozen eyebrows.

"Living Abroad" will make fine hot-weather reading, light enough not to tax the reader's energy. Whether studiously or not, Richardson has avoided commenting on the political situations in the countries with which he is familiar. In fact, he plays safe by ending his chronicle with the events of 10 years ago—which may be for the best.

Readers planning a trip to Europe may find bits of information worth storing away. In discussing the apartments of Paris, for example, Richardson remarks on the poorly furnished homes, pointing out that the French beds are probably the only comfortable pieces of furniture in the house. That may explain, he adds quite logically, why in a French novel everything takes place in bed.

The author concludes on a note of exultation, and rightfully so, having achieved the supreme triumph of the American expatriate in Europe—the presentation of his daughter at Buckingham Palace. —H. W. Salz.

THE VERY STUPID FOLK. By Toivo David Rosvall. Illustrated by Tibor Gergely. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

These Finnish folk-stories are all about the Dunces who lived in the imaginary village of Duncet. All of them are as delightfully satirical as "Gulliver's Travels" or "Tyl Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S BIOGRAPHER

A HIGHLY LAUDATORY STUDY

ROOSEVELT. By Emil Ludwig. Translated by Maurice Samuel. (The Viking Press, New York.)

THE exiled German author, who has written of Napoleon and Jesus, of Bismarck and Cleopatra, has now added the President of the United States to his list, and in doing so has aligned himself as an advocate of the New Deal and all that it stands for.

Ludwig's book about Roosevelt is definitely laudatory, in spots almost fulsome. Again and again he contrasts his subject with other figures—with Wilson, with Hitler, with Al Smith, with Theodore Roosevelt—and in each comparison the President comes out on top. It is apparent that Ludwig considers Franklin Roosevelt the most important single individual in the great transition the world is now trying to make; and in the concluding paragraphs he labels the president "the last champion of capitalism . . . the first to break the pride of the captains of finance, a genuine friend of the people, like Lincoln."

Ludwig finds the key to Roosevelt's character in the happy accident of his birth. Scion of a wealthy family, he has been insulated both from the strain of poverty and from the distortion that comes with acquisition. His own life has exemplified the rounded development possible to those who need never worry about money. Thus he has been able to fight the rich without bitterness, to help the poor without self-righteousness, to see the vision of a society in which no man need grovel for his daily bread. At the same time, secure in his social position, he has been able to meet all comers on equal ground, without the self-consciousness that demands artificial pomp and ceremony for support. In every way his aristocratic lineage has fitted him to fight the battle for democracy.

Three other primary influences are listed by Ludwig. The first is his wife, whose logical, inquiring mind complemented his empirical and intuitive one; the second is his war experience as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, which gave him a heavy dose of administrative experience as well as bringing him into contact with Wilsonian idealism; the third, and most important, is his illness, which demanded the highest degree of courage and manliness for its overcoming, and gave to his character the depth and breadth required for greatness.

Evaluation of the biography will depend on the reader's opinion of the Ludwig approach. Some will find the style florid, the material thin, the whole padded with discursive literary flights into description and cogitation. Others will be delighted with the rich allusiveness, the constant probing for motivations, the impact of a fresh European viewpoint upon American political history and institutions. In any case, the book presents in an unfamiliar and striking perspective the most-talked-of man in the Western world. As such it is worthy of serious attention. —Jean Winkler.

Papal Policy Discussed

POPE PIUS XI AND WORLD PEACE. By Lord Clonmore. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

IN the last few years, the Papacy has been criticised frequently for inaction or favoritism in the various European crises. The critics of the Holy See have argued that the Pope should have condemned Mussolini's action in Ethiopia, that he should have come out more strongly against Fascism, that he should have refrained from taking sides in the Spanish civil war. Lord Clonmore considers these criticisms and many others in his book, and he sets out to explain and justify the policy of the Vatican during the last 16 years.

It is the author's thesis that the Pope's policy has always been to further world peace in a material, as well as a spiritual, way. "For several hundred years," we read "it has been the tradition at the Vatican to define general principles, but only in extreme cases, when an attack is made on the life and liberty of the Church, to intervene in particular matters; and this tradition has been continued in the Pontificate of Piux XI." Therefore, the Church has been strong in her condemnations of Russia, Mexico, and Germany. But in Ethiopia, since there was no attack on the "life and liberty of the Church," and since there was no appeal made to the Episcopacy for arbitration, the Pope refrained from intervening—although war has ever been anathema to him. In the present civil war in Spain, the Church has been sympathetic to Franco but has refrained from actively intervening in the dispute. This policy of nonintervention, except where intervention is absolutely necessary, and the advanced Papal views on social and economic reform have, the author says, been an important and lasting contribution to the cause of world peace. —Rupert Allan.

Lover of Life And Art

GOYA: REBELLIOUS GENIUS. By Marion Chapman. (Egmont Press, New York.)

IN a Madrid that reeked with the stench of human flesh burning in the fires of the Inquisition; in an age when men "knifed and left to rot in slimy, oozing shadows were ordinary affairs of bloody dawns," and when, in order that "bandits might conveniently fall first," he was obliged to hold his sword straight out before him in the dark, Francisco Jose de Goya y Lucientes lived, fought, loved, and created his great masterpieces of Spanish art.

As intensely concerned with color, line, and form as with the violent epoch in which he lived, he resolved to "paint all of Spain." As a consequence, priests, picadors, toreros gored by frenzied bulls, urchins "engaged in purely private business," pigs, sordid wenches, gangrenous beggars and gypsies, as well as the King and Queen and all the royal court, were immortalized on canvas or the copper plate. He defied the Church with a series of satirical portraits of the inquisitors; the models for his vestal virgins were women of the streets; and he painted St. Teresa with the features of his first love, Pilar, the goatherd. He forgot a charming duquesa when her irate duque stabbed him in the back, and hiding from the inquisitors, he translated the episode into a picture of himself on trial before the officials.

But although this violent, bold, rebellious genius was, first of all, a painter, he, like Benvenuto Cellini, refused to let art interfere with his zest for living; for "where stabbing and scuffling and dancing were, there was Goya." And in this historical novel based, to some extent, on fact, the author—herself a lover of life and a devotee of art—has painted a vivid picture of the man against his times; a picture that, although crude, and not without defects, achieves a strength and virility in keeping with the subject. —Virginia Annan Schroeder.

Tale of a Tragic Comedian

"THE GREAT AMERICAN NOVEL—." By Clyde Brion Davis. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York.)

WRITTEN in diary form, "The Great American Novel—" chronicles 30 years of American life as seen through the eyes of Zigler, a newspaper man whose two ambitions are to marry Frances Harbach and write the great American novel. He loses the girl when he flees his home town in a fit of unwarrantable jealousy. The novel remains unwritten because, for the rest of his life, Zigler is too busy earning an inadequate living for an unsympathetic wife and a son whose "brilliance" carries him eventually to a little W P A job.

Zigler never gives up hope, however. Parted from the woman he loves, he has a series of dreams about her. He dreams that Frances marries, moves West, has a child, and dies, and though "this all could be merely the workings of my imagination," he finally decides that "there is such a thing as mental telepathy" and that his dreams are Frances' way of "letting me know that I am the man she still loves."

Although, at his wife's insistence, Zigler decides finally that being a good newspaper man is as noble an occupation as any, he continues to sketch plans for his novel. The details of his plan change, but always, at the beginning, the hero of his story is poor and ambitious; midway, he is rich, unscrupulous, and greedy; while at the end, having met the right woman, he is devoting a huge fortune to creating a socialistic Utopia on a Pacific isle—not the great American novel at all, but the great American myth.

Zigler carries this optimism into his comments on world affairs. Following the Sarajevo assassinatious which precipiated the World War, he writes that "science has advanced so far that another great conflict is practically impossible," and there is powerful irony in the naivete with which a few years later he accepts newspaper statements that "the striking characteristic" of Mussolini, the new Premier of Italy, "is lack of personal ambition."

Zigler's tragedy is that of a large stratum of people—the tragedy of a man who is unable to resist anything, who rationalizes all his disappointments, and who is so busy scanning the sky for silver linings that he gets caught in the rain every time the clouds open. —Milton Lomask.

How the Workers View the World

SEVEN SHIFTS. Edited by Jack Commons. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

MR. COMMONS, while "quietly infesting" the office of a London publisher, was handed one of the strangest assignments ever allotted a literary man. His task was to round up the life stories of several typical British working men from as many industries. He was to seek men not already smitten by the desire to write, but articulate enough to convey to the reader of their confidences a realization of their daily lives and the routine of their jobs. Not at all dismayed by what might appear to be insurmountable obstacles, the editor began to harry his working-class friends with gentle persistence. Self-expression through the written word does not come easily to a man who has spent a hard day before the scorching fires of a blast furnrace or in plastering the walls of a room too luxurious for his own use. But Jack Commons, by dint of persuasion and small bribes in the form of a glass of stout or ale, managed to assemble seven life stories unadorned by rhetorical flourishes or the traditional trapping of books written by professionals, but replete with the raw material of comedy and tragedy.

Though the contributors are British working men, many of their experiences are akin to those of their fellows in every industrialized nation. The plasterer of 37 has already passed his "jubilee year" after 25 years of "loaf-capturing" for his family. The steel worker sees machines displacing men, and is troubled by doubts. There is general agreement among the seven that the common people everywhere hate war. "We want the earth to be plowed, and the corn to grow, and things to be built," the plasterer says. In the background of each narrative appears the specter of unemployment and the threat of hunger. Jobs have become a great deal less secure than they were before the World War, and a large number of the young people graduating from the schools must inevitably fail in their efforts to achieve a career.

The pride of craft which inspires every good workman is in evidence throughout the seven autobiographical sketches. Considlered collectively, the stories affirm the dignity of manual labor and its vital role in the building and maintenance of civilization. —Jack Conroy.

A Fantastic Legend

D'ANNUNZIO. By Tom Antongini. Translated from the Italian. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

NOT even with the death of Gabriele D'Annunzio last March did the fantastic glory of his existence cease. Even then the world was fascinated by the tributes paid him after death and reveled in the report that Mussolini himself kissed D'Annunzio on the brow just before the casket was closed. Things of the sort were to be expected, for the man's life of nearly 75 years had become a legend.

It was D'Annunzio, they said, who suggested to Mussolini that he garb his Fascisti in black shirts. It was his poetic fancy which invented many of the story-book features of Fascism. He had written 54 volumes; he had seized the city of Fiume and held it as a despot for a year and a half; he had some fame by the mere fact that, among his many mistresses, one had been an actress by the name of Eleonora Duse. In his youth, he declared his wish for life to be "glory and women," and both came his way in profusion.

In a 567-page study, Tom Antongini has organized the mass of information he gathered during 30 years as D'Annunzio's secretary. He describes the poet thus:

"Physically he neither repels nor attracts, for in his appearance there is nothing heroic, nothing savage, nothing strange, nothing to awaken aversion or desire—in a word, nothing special."

Yet this man eloped with a Princess at the age of 20, separated from her after she had borne him three sons in three successive years, thereafter lived "like a gentleman of the Renaissance" on what he made from writing, maintained villas with 15 servants, 10 horses, 30 greyhounds, and discreetly uncounted, but numerous, feminine house guests. The secretary says his employer never had less than 100 suits of clothes and rarely returned home from shopping without some art treasure.

Except that the myths about D'Annunzio's life will always exceed the truth, Antongini's work would have to be classed as that of a posthumous press agent. Only in a character like Anthony Adverse, Benvenuto Cellini, or Casanova is there enough romance to match that of D'Annunzio. Chronological changes in the personality are neglected and biography botched, but the character glitters.

Separate chapters are devoted to D'Annunzio's amorous conquests, his military conquests, his villas, his friends, and so on. But none is more interesting than that devoted to the poet's opinion of himself and others. He once described himself as "a bad poet and intrepid narrator of dreams," and again as the "minister of divine mysteries, interpreter of human folly, flying man fallen from on high, prince and herald." Before he died, he was actually named a prince in his own right by the King of Italy. —Colvin McPherson.

THE COLOSSUS OF ARCADIA. By E. Phillips Oppenheim. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

IT is doubtful that any writer now living can equal Mr. Oppenheim when he sets out to spin a yarn. There are those, certainly, who write with a deeper insight, with more beauty: but in the matter of pure story-telling this craftsman has few, if any, peers.

In this latest novel, Mr. Oppenheim gives us again the romantic, the prodigious, the incredible Monte Carlo. The center of trouble is the young man, Rudolph, fleeing for his life from his home country—an unspecified nation, whose citizens bear Teutonic names. There are murders, attempted murders, sudden disappearances; dictators, generals, a prince and princess, and the third son of a duke; money and champagne, both flowing like water. And beneath it all, the threat of a new world war. . . . In short, "The Colossus of Arcadia" reveals Mr. Oppenheim at his unsurpassable best.

Mr. Oppenheim is now 72 years old. This is his 104th novel, aside from 35 collections of short stories, three omnibuses, and a travel book. Even more staggering than these figures is the fact that he continues to write good stories. —W. L. Knickmeyer.

OFFERS NEW COLLECTION OF STORIES

SEEN IN JUST PERSPECTIVE

"EAGLE FORGOTTEN": The Life of John Peter Altgeld. By Harry Barnard. (The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

JOHN PETER ALTGELD, the pardoner of the "Chicago anarchists," was Vachel Lindsay's "eagle forgotten," and when the troubadour poet of Springfield wrote his moving tribute to the "brave-hearted, wise man that kindled the flame," it seemed that a name which had been on every tongue in the early '90s would pass from popular memory. Harry Barnard's definitive biography of the Illinois Governor will not only revive his memory, but go a long way toward securing a fairer appraisal for him.

"Eagle Forgotten" has many excellent qualities. It is highly readable, painstakingly thorough, a work of original research extending over many years. So honest is Mr. Barnard, so faithfully does he portray the weaknesses along with the strength of his subject, that the reader cannot be sure this is the work of a sympathetic biographer until the book is nearly finished.

What the reader realizes in the end is that the writer is so detached that he can admire Altgeld and be hurt by the vilification which was heaped upon him, and at the same time criticise him sharply when sharp criticism is due. It is a blend of qualifications which few biographers possess, one which makes a writer the true historian of a life.

The early part of Altgeld's career is recounted swiftly—his birth in Southern Germany in 1847, his emigration at the age of 3 months with his peasant parents to Ohio, his farm boyhood, his brief Civil War experience and his serious illness with "Chickahominy fever," his long tramp to St. Louis, where he worked in a chemical plant, his years as railroad laborer, farm hand, school teacher, and country lawyer in Northwest Missouri, his arrival in the new Chicago, rising from the ashes of the "great fire."

Most of the volume is devoted to the story of the prison reformer, the Haymarket riot, the executive pardon for the defendants, the Pullman strike and the conflict with Cleveland, the uphill battle for social and economic reform through State legislation. Much of it is masterful, all is intensely interesting, and the whole, seen in the light of today's standards, establishes the German-American as a political thinker who lived ahead of his time.

When Altgeld died, 36 years ago, William Allen White described him in McClure's Magazine as "clearly in sympathy with blatant anarchy." He now thanks Mr. Barnard for the opportunity to revise his views. "I came to understand what Altgeld was trying to do," he writes. "Certainly I should not like to say he was an anarchist today and I wouldn't like to have my final estimate of him stand at what I wrote in 1902." This is a reappraisal which a later generation should find easy to make, thanks in large measure to one of the best American biographies in years. —Irving Dilliard.

Creates Sense Of Doom

REAP THE WHIRLWIND. By Edith Roberts. (The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

IT is difficult for a novelist, writing about a world gone mad, to assume the detachment necessary for art; and Mrs. Roberts, whose theme is the "crucifixion" of Europe on the "cross of war," suffers from the very intensity of her purpose. No one can doubt her horror at seeing youth's hope destroyed, or fail to sympathize with her despair over the threatened doom of civilization. Yet, at the end of her story, Petar and Neil, Sonia and Nancy seem remote people and the only clear impression left is that of impending doom.

Petar Montich, a Serb, comes to Chicago to study, and he learns to prize the comfort of America, to be suspicious of its complacency. Even when he falls in love with Nancy Jordan, an eager and pampered fellow student, he remembers his pledge to return to Belgrade and the struggle of its citizens against war-mad politicians. Neil Jordan goes with him, and learns that hatred of oppression which makes Petar value freedom more than love, or ease, or his own life. When his Serbian friend is killed in a demonstration, Neil decides to take his part in the struggle, and slips off the ship that is taking him home to America, in order to fight for the Loyalists in Spain.

Though Mrs. Roberts vouches for each detail of her story, Chicago remains clearer than Belgrade, Neil, the young American, is more definite than Petar, the Jugoslav, and Nancy is more of a person than Sonia. Neil's resolve to leave his ship has much more plausibility than the demonstration during which Petar is killed. In spite of this aloofness from the European scene, however, Mrs. Roberts leaves a biting sense of the headlong plunging of the world towards war and who knows what ruin. —Alexander M. Buchan.

Human Affairs Satirized

O BIG EARTH! By Leon Tebbetts. (Falmouth Book House, Portland, Maine.)

IT all began with a remark of the professor's little girl. When told about the atoms in her father's pipe, she exclaimed: "Wouldn't it be funny if people lived on atoms, tiny people like ourselves, with funny faces and funny ways!"

Suddenly it is even as the little girl has imagined, and one of the atomic planets, called Thera, becomes the scene for a satirical drama of dictator-ridden humanity. Rethil Acesar is dictator in Iraeg and a menace to the rest of the world. Of the other nations, two of the most important are Slarm and Gersa. Slarm is on the other side of the Torhn Sea from Iraeg, and Gersa is across the Tantilac Ocean. In the midst of world cataclysm, the Slarmists are most interested in tradition, in ancestral greatness, in hunting, and in the coronation of their new king. The people of Gersa are an obliging sort, selling war materials to such persons as Acesar, and lending them money.

Acesar's antagonist in love is Brut, who finally kills his superior and so presumably saves the Iraegians from dictatorship. Incidentally, Brut wins the girl, Neela, a fiery creature of socialistic, if not communistic, interests. Neela, too, is a member of the hated Druish race, but wins the dictator to her side because of her great beauty.

"O Big Earth!" is a satire on human affairs in general. Nothing is spared. Religion, philosophy, science, art, physicians, publishers, editors, newspapers—all are travestied. In the end, the professor, acting as an angry god, throws his pipe into the fireplace, and with a feeling of grim satisfaction watches it burn. —Virginia Hilliker.

Dwellers Along Tobacco Road

SOUTHWAYS. By Erskine Caldwell. (The Viking Press, New York.)

AMONG the sharecroppers and tenant farmers, the poor whites and the Negroes in the South there is poverty and there is humor. Mr. Caldwell sees the poverty in its heartbreaking viciousness; he sees the humor for its earthy vitality. In his novels these two qualities are combined, creating such a pastiche of bawdiness and social indictment as "Tobacco Road." In the collections of short stories the threads are separate, each brief sketch having its own mood, lively or somber.

Of the 16 stories brought together in this volume, two are of really first rank, one in each group. There is "Ramrick's Polar Bear." You have to go back to Mark Twain or Mr. Caldwell's own "Meddlesome Jack" for as simple and funny a tale as this one. A Southern community is terrorized by a polar bear that devours calves and chickens and chases young girls naked from their bedrooms. A posse goes out to hunt him, but he is captured by a ruse. As the bear's captor explains: "He's a trained, wrestling bear. He won't hurt anybody. If he's fed and wrestled with once in a while, he'll be as gentle as you please. I reckon he must have been starved for something to eat, and a little wrestling."

And then there is "A Knife to Cut the Cornbread With," a powerful story which reports a tenant farmer's struggle for existence down to the last desperate measure.

If some of the stories are slight, they all bear the imprint of Mr. Caldwell's economical and skilled manner of writing. Occasionally Mr. Caldwell digs up characters who become comprehensible only because of the way he writes about them, but that is merely a tribute to his talent. There are odd specimens in the South, but he knows how to bring them to life.

Some of the other stories run as follows:

A drunken husband comes home with a new woman and starts a row, which ends with the two women fighting over him, and his tart observation: "Sometimes it appears to me like the good Lord ought never put more than one woman in the world at a time."

An aged Negro who hates flies gets up out of his coffin to swat the last one that bothers him.

A sharecropper and his pregnant wife are evicted from their miserable shack. She dies in childbirth by the side of the road as the frantic husband comes along with help.

War Adventures In Mongolia

THE MOUNTAINS AND THE STARS. By Valentin Tikhonov. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

HISTORIANS generally seem to agree that the civil war which followed the Russian Revolution of February, 1917, was a vicious affair with little to be said for either side. "The Mountains and the Stars," a historical novel based on the campaign of the White Russian army in Outer Mongolia and Eastern Siberia in 1921, bears out that view.

The central characters are Mishka Mendramin, 13 years old, and his younger brother, Petka. They wanted to be soldiers, so they joined the Cossacks of the Asiatic Cavalry Division under command of Baron Ungern-Sternberg, who was harassing the Reds on the Mongolian border. Their adventures were exciting, often sordid, cruel, almost insane. The Cossacks, with Tibetan and Mongolian allies, were defeated by the Reds. Theirs was a lost cause, made the more hopeless by the irrationality of their commander, who acted like a character from Dostoevsky. At last the regimental officers revolted, deposed Ungern-Sternberg, and led the soldiers into Mongolia to seek peace.

There is much that is well written and forceful in Tikhonov's story. Good description and fast narrative abound; but often Tikhonov's minuteness in describing brutal episodes and viciousness is revolting. He leaves nothing to the imagination. That such detail is not necessary to the author's purpose becomes obvious when he paints equally lurid pictures in a masterly manner with far fewer strokes of the brush. —O. F. Fink.

RAILROADMAN. By Chauncy Del French. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

Henry Clay French became a messenger and call boy on the Hannibal & St. Joe line when he was thirteen, and for almost 57 years thereafter he saw active service as telegrapher, switchman, brakeman, fireman-engineer, conductor and yardmaster—on different lines. This is his story as he told it to his son.

RAIL BOND INDEX PRICE NEAR LOW RECORDED

Marked Weakness Develops Before Congress Adjourns Without Aid Action.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18. — Only limited sections of the bond market last week were beyond range of the depressing influence of another slump in rail loans.

Moving steadily lower for the last month the carriers accelerated the downward pace and measured by the averages they came extremely close to the lowest levels ever recorded.

Although there had been many hints during the last few weeks that the chances of emergency railroad legislation were fading out, the bonds had not shown marked weakness until just before the adjournment of Congress.

Inactive rails recorded the widest losses, some running from 5 to 10 points. Declines were also sharp in many of the more actively traded issues. With the failure of Congress to authorize broadening of the R F C's lending powers there was revival of talk in financail circles that some of the carriers, believed to be hard pressed for funds, might have to put themselves in the care of the courts for reorganization.

Other Losses Not Large.

The general run of industrial and utility bonds of speculative rating followed a downward drift with the rails, but losses were not large.

Brighter portions of the list included the low yield division which continued to derive support from a steady flow of institutional buying. U. S. Governments hardened after a little irregularity in the early sessions.

Investment and underwriting circles were cheered by the promise of another batch of new corporate issues, which it was hoped would keep the capital market reasonably active through the summer months.

Among the tangible developments in that direction was the filing for registration of $85,000,000 Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey debentures and serial notes. The proposed $50,000,000 debenture issue, to run for 15 years, was scheduled to carry a 2¾ per cent coupon rate. Investment quarters were of the opinion this would come close to establishing a record low interest terms for a debenture offering.

Some Rails Up, Index Down.

Belief in trading circles that many secondary rails had reached levels which overdiscounted the unfavorable carrier situation, stimulated buying in the bond market today with the result that a number of the most active gained substantial fractions. B. & O., Illinois Central, Southern Pacific and Southern Railway liens were among the gainers in the active group.

Eight B. & O. issues showed gains for the day. The convertible 4½s, active yesterday, continued in demand today and gained about ½.

Illinois Central 4¾s were up ¼ at 28¾; Southern Pacific 4½s up ⅞ at 33⅝, and Southern Railway 4s ¼ higher at 27½.

The trend did not spread to other medium and higher priced rail liens, however, and the Associated Press index for the day showed the group down once more to a new low since June 1, 1932.

United States Governments were firm with moderate buying of longer term Treasuries recently depressed by switching to shorter maturities. Gains ran to 5-32, and a few losses of 1-32 or 2-32 were confined chiefly to inactive issues.

Industrials and utilities were irregular in unusually quiet trading.

Volume was $2,168,100, the smallest Saturday since May 28, and compared with last Saturday's total of $2,378,825.

Gainers of fractions included Anaconda 4½s at 105, and Loew's 3½s at 97½. Small losers included Goodrich 6s at 87, and International Hydro-Electric 6s at 68⅝. Wilson 4s dropped 1½ to 96½.

The foreign dollar list was firm on the whole. German Government 5½s, Rome 6½s and Tokio 5½s were each up about ½.

WORLD COTTON EXPORTS IN FIRST 8 MONTHS OF YEAR

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported today that world cotton exports during the first eight months of the current season were more than a million bales less than during the comparable period last year.

It said practically all the decrease was due to a drop in British India exports, principally to Japan.

An 8 per cent increase in American exports more than offset, the bureau said, slight declines in shipments from Egypt, Brazil and Argentina. The United States supplied 62 per cent of the world exports, compared with 50 per cent last season, it said.

Argentina exports dropped to 15,000 bales, the smallest on record. Those from British India declined to 1,006,000, said to be the smallest for the eight-month period since the close of the World War. Japan took only 390,000 bales, compared with 1,334,000 bales during the period last season, the bureau said.

Exports from Egypt amounted to 1,306,000 bales, compared with 1,440,000 during the period last season. American exports totaled 4,981,000 bales, compared with 4,596,000 during the period last season.

The United Kingdom was America's best customer, taking 1,484,000 bales, a gain of 483,000 over the period last season. Italy purchased 438,000 bales and Germany 111,000.

COPPER OUTPUT REDUCED

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 18.—International copper producers who are parties to the plan for regulating output outside the United States voted to reduce production from 105 per cent to 95 per cent of agreed basic tonnages. This was the first change in basic tonnages since December.

The cut was decided upon because of lessened demand in the European markets.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Action by foreign copper producers to cut output as reported from London was in line, domestic copper circles said, with the trend in the domestic field.

Recently Kennecott Copper Corporation announced it would suspend operations at all domestic properties for at least a month. Anaconda Copper Mining Co. adopted an equally drastic curtailment program some time ago.

CUT IN PRODUCTION STIMULATES COPPER

International Cartel to Reduce Foreign Output From 105 Per Cent to 95 of Quota.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The copper market received a fresh stimulus Saturday with the announcement of the international Cartel's decision to reduce production of foreign producers from 105 per cent to 95 per cent of basic quotas, representing an estimated cut of about 70,000 to 80,000 tons per year. Export copper was in better demand during the week. The domestic price was unchanged at 9 cents on a routine business.

A sharp rally in tin the latter half of the week following early declines was credited to speculative buying in anticipation that the International Tin Committee at a meeting on Monday would agree on the buffer pool scheme. Trade buying was small at London, but moderate in the United States.

Lead continued unchanged at 4 cents. The buying came principally from trade sources closely connected with the building industry, although demand by battery manufacturers was attributed to expectations of resumption of automobile manufacturing.

Zinc remained quiet and unchanged, with buyers unwilling to anticipate requirements.

Antimony was unchanged, Chinese grade continuing at 14 cents on a small business.

The slight upturn in steel ingot production marked a turning point following many weeks of restricted output. More cheerful trade views were based on prospects of increased business under the Government's spending-lending program and reported possibility of steady automobile factory operations during the summer.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, June 18.—Moderate buying of wheat futures by American and continental houses and a sharp lift in Canadian C. I. F. offers advanced prices in today's market. With trading quiet, closing values were up ⅝@¾d a bushel. A report from the Volga region of Russia indicated shortage of rain was causing deterioration of crops.

Cotton was quiet in absence of outside interest. Early advances were cancelled by local selling and liquidation prompted by improved crop weather in the United States. The market finished unchanged to 1 point lower.

London and Paris markets are closed on Saturday.

K. C. Southern Operating Income.

ORE CONSUMPTION LOW

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., June 18.—New lows for monthly consumption of Lake Superior iron ore and for the number of blast furnaces in operation and a new high for the amount of ore on hand in the Great Lakes lower lakes district were shown today in a report by the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association.

During May 1,711,146 gross tons of ore were burned by furnaces compared with 1,853,658 tons in April and with 5,339,925 tons during May a year ago, one of the all-time high consumption months.

On May 31, 60 of 188 furnaces using Lake Superior ores were in blast, a reduction of four from one month earlier and compared with 138 out of an available 191 one year ago.

Supplies on hand at the lower end of the lakes has been reduced from 33,676,333 tons on May 1 to 33,011,974 tons on June 1. The latter figure is a peak level for any June 1 in history and represents sufficient ore to supply steel mill needs at present operating rate for a year and a half.

Week's Volume of Business on Stock Market Lightest in Nearly 20 Years, Price Index Shade Lower

Final Session Turnover Also Smallest in Like Period—Relief in Wall Street as Congress Goes Home but No Celebration.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—When Congress goes home, it is traditionally an occasion for rejoicing in Wall Street.

Surcease from legislative uncertainty is welcomed in the financial community.

But there was no throwing of hats in the air this week when the Seventy-Fifth Congress ended its session, although there was a feeling of relief.

A financial community depressed and starving for business was in no mood for celebrating. The one thing that will cause celebrating, it was agreed, is conclusive sign of a pick-up in business.

The week's business statistics, particularly on freight movement, electric power use, and steel mill activity, were a little better, but improvement was too slight to have much effect on sentiment, particularly with the usually quiet vacation season at hand.

Financial circles were preoccupied a good part of the week with the question of whether Congress would act on the proposal to liberalize R F C lending to the railroads, a measure designed to stave off further insolvencies.

The turnover of stocks at weekend session and that of week too proved lightest in nearly 20 years.

Slump in Rail Bonds.

Early in the week, when it appeared the measure might be approved, rail bonds recovered, but the next day it seemed definite that it would be lost in the last-minute legislative tangle, and the carrier obligations went into a bad slump, where they stayed.

Wall Street experts generally said the measure was no more than a stop gap, that improvement in the rail revenue situation was needed to provide a better base for the future. A real pickup in heavy industry, with a big movement of such bulky products as steel, lumber and cement, analysts said, would make a big difference in the financial situation of the carriers, save for the hopelessly debt ridden.

Some viewed as hopeful the decision of the I C C to reopen the matter of the eastern roads plea for an increase in passenger fares to 2½ cents a mile, from the present 2-cent rate, although an important school of thought on the matter holds that the roads cannot cope with increasing competition from other modes of travel by boosting their rates.

Crop Movement Follows.

The slump in rail bonds carried them close to the depression lows of 1932, when heavy bank liquidation reduced them to the bottom prices of a generation.

The status of revenues was brought home during the week by several reports for April. Some of the loss figures for that month were: Chicago and Northwestern, $2,144,313; Erie, $1,159,467; Southern, $519,618; Santa Fe, $847,246; Pennsylvania, $659,564; Southern Pacific, $2,576,628.

Indication of bumper crops over much of the country held promise of some betterment during the harvest season, and the recent pickup in building has been viewed as encouraging, although it was evident much more improvement would have to be registered before freight volumes would put the carriers on their feet.

In the meantime, steel, lumber and fuel industries feel the pinch of a slack buying from the railroads.

Better action of the speculative commodity markets was hailed as one of the most encouraging aspects of the week, although few analysts professed to understand just what it meant.

Wheat was again bolstered by reports of crop damage. There was further nebulous "inflation" gossip, which may have led buyers to wonder if the price decline was scraping bottom.

Cut in Steel Price.

What everyone looked for, of course, was indication of a real revival of demand, resulting from depletion of inventories of finished goods, but analysts said it was too early to look for conclusive indications of that.

Also, some said the big stocks of raw material on hand meant that increased demand would probably be slow in making itself felt.

A price move in the other direction attracting attention was the shading of galvanized sheet prices by $3 a ton in the steel industry, which led to considerable speculation as to how successful the steel makers would be in holding their general price schedule.

This was noted particularly, in view of the fact that the steel industry has been a target of anti-monopoly discussions in Washington. Uniformity of steel price schedules and their failure to decline in a slack period such as the present, have been repeatedly cited.

Steel people explain that uniformity of processes leads to uniform costs, that rigidity of wages, and the big overhead in maintaining the expensive plants with their huge capital investments, is adequate explanation.

The $500,000 monopoly inquiry authorized by Congress is expected to go into this and many other matters.

Total stock sales during the week amounted to 1,792,530 shares, compared with 2,218,540 a week ago and 5,107,442 corresponding week a year ago. Sales from Jan. 1 to date were 98,423,158 shares, compared with 223,980,742 a year ago and 253,370,815 two years ago.

20-Year Low Volume Trade.

With coppers showing the way, leading stocks edged forward today in the slowest market session for nearly 20 years.

Traders had a few tid-bits of fairly cheerful news to comfort them, but most refused to be tempted to assume an extensive position pending more definite signs of a break in the lengthy recession.

The list started off slightly higher and then shifted over a narrow range during the remainder of the proceedings. There was an assortment of negligible losers at the close, with a few weak spots in evidence.

With the ticker tape merely creeping throughout the greater part of the proceedings, transfers totaled only 104,530 shares, the smallest turnover since Aug. 3, 1918. The aggregate a week ago was 107,230 shares. The week's volume of 1,792,000 shares also was the smallest in 20 years. The Associated Press average of 60 issues was up .1 of a point at 38.7, but on the week was off .4.

The apathy of the session was shown by the fact only 359 individual stocks were traded. Of these 121 advanced, 108 declined and 130 were unchanged.

A little more cheerfulness was reflected in the coppers which benefitted from the latest foreign curtailment agreement reached in London and was in line with the recent suspensions of important domestic mines for the purpose of bringing output closer to sagging consumption. A lift in export copper prices also was helpful.

Major Steels Higher.

Major steels managed to emerge a trifle higher, although they were sluggish the greater part of the time on forecasts further cuts in quotations for steel products were likely. A lift in the steel scrap price of 50 cents a ton at Pittsburgh was a sustaining influence.

A handful of secondary rail bonds rallied briskly after their late weakness, support appearing for these on the theory they had been oversold even if some roads eventually have to go through the wringer. Carrier stocks also were mildly improved. Mounting freight loadings and improved operating revenues for May was a bolstering factor for the transportation section.

Most gold mines lost their buoyancy of the early part of the week as dollar devaluation talk waned. Despite the continued demand for the yellow metal abroad, both sterling and the French franc were unchanged today in terms of the American money.

Commodities generally provided the brightest market picture of the week, most finishing well ahead. Today wheat yielded 1½ to 2⅛ cents a bushel of its previous advances and corn was ⅛ up to ⅜ lower. Cotton was 35 to 45 cents a bale higher.

Goodrich preferred weakened on the omission of the dividend on this issue, closing off five points at 32, a new low for the year. The common was off ⅝ at 11½.

Day's 15 Most Active Stocks.

Sales, closing price and net change of the 15 most active stocks: General Electric, 4000, 33¼, down ¼; Socony Vac., 2400, 13, unchanged; International Nickel, 2300, 42⅝, up ⅜; Chrysler, 2100, 41⅛, unchanged; General Motors, 2100, 28⅞, down ¼; Bethlehem Steel, 2000, 44¼, up ¼; International Harvester, 1600, 50, down ¾; Greyhound, 1500, 9⅝, up ⅛; Col. WEEK-END CURB TRADE IS LIGHTEST SINCE JULY, 1932

Market Develops a Little Strength Late in the Short Session.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18. — The curb market developed a little strength late in the short session today but gains in most cases were confined to fractions.

Light support buoyed such issues as Niagara Hudson Power, up ⅛ at 7, American Gas & Electric, ⅜ higher at 27⅝, Aluminum Co. ahead ⅛ at 71⅛, and Technicolor, up ⅜ at 22⅝. Others unchanged to a shade higher were Electric Bond & Share, Wright Hargreaves, Lockheed Aircraft and Imperial Oil.

Lake Shore dipped ⅜ to end at 51⅝. American Cynamid "B" lost ¼ at 16⅞ and Carrier Corp., Cities Service and Arkansas Natural Gas slid a trifle lower.

Metal shares were mostly unchanged.

Turnover was the smallest since the week of July 9, 1932, at 27,000 shares, and compare with 29,000 last week.

THE WEEK ON NEW YORK STOCK MARKET—

COMMODITY PRICES IN FURTHER UPTURN

Longest Sustained Advance Since Last Autumn — Wheat Sets Pace.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Commodity prices this week further extended the upturn that began early this month, marking the longest sustained advance since last fall.

Wheat was again the pace-setter. From the low ponit early in June, spot wheat has soared more than 13 cents—or 17 per cent.

Strength in this staple resulted from reports of widespread rust damage and a scramble of shorts to cover. Although the June 1 crop report indicated one of the largest harvests on record, private sources held the recent damage sufficient to cause a substantial reduction in July 1 estimates.

Other grains showed less buoyancy, oats and rye chalking up fractional gains, with corn lower. Cotton also improved further, although without any great vigor.

The run-up lost some of its snap, in the opinion of traders, when major farm commodities failed to duplicate the burst of speed exhibited by wheat.

Index Moves Up.

Thus although cattle and hogs were moderately better on the week, lambs broke sharply enough to offset this increase.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale spot commodity prices moved up to 65.45 per cent of the 1926 average from 64.80 last week and compared with 89.01 a year ago.

Advances among staples included in the index outweighed losses two to one.

Industrial raw materials generally registered rather meager improvement. Tin, rubber, burlap and steel scrap were among the gainers, hides and bituminous coal dipping. The upturn in scrap was technical, the trade held, resulting from efforts of a dealer who had sold ahead to round up sufficient metal to make delivery.

Textiles were mixed, a slight bulge in silk balancing an equally modest dip in wool.

What Index Shows.

Food, however, continued to rise at a fast clip. Eggs, flour, butter and lard were strong on the upside, while sugar and cocoa settled back only moderately.

The index, with its components based on 1926 as 100, compared as follows:

	June 17	Prev. Wk.	Year Ago.
35 Commodities	65.45	64.80	89.01

Major Currencies Little Changed Despite Withdrawal of Capital

Whispers of Possible Currency Devaluation Circulate in Foreign Exchange Markets.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Whispers of possible currency devaluation whistled through foreign exchange markets this week and prompt official denials of the rumors had little effect in stemming a rush to buy gold in the London free market as a hedge against a change in the purchasing power of world monies.

Inflation rumors started a persistent swing away from the dollar while the demand for foreign money centered chiefly in sterling. Sterling balances, however, were quickly converted into gold in most cases and this, together with continental demand, accounted for several days of feverish gold buying in London. Heaviest turnover of the yellow metal for the year—nearly $9,000,000 in a single day—boosted the price over the United States equivalent of $35 an ounce for the first time in months.

Despite the withdrawal of foreign capital, major currencies ended the week showing little change in terms of the dollar.

Sterling was a trifle lower, the French franc was about unchanged—registering only small movement during the week under control guidance and the belga tipped backward.

The Netherlands guilder gave a little ground, while the Swiss franc, showing independent strength, gained slightly.

Underscoring the trans-Atlantic trek of European money from New York was the absence of new engagements of gold abroad for shipment here. Last week the total was $2,684,000.

Major European currencies moved into a quiet and narrow range in dealings today after a week of erratic fluctuations in terms of dollars.

Ending unchanged were the pound sterling, the French franc and the Swiss franc. The belga and guilder each gained .01 of a cent.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Foreign exchange closing rates were as follows: Great Britain in dollars, others in cents: Great Britain, demand 4.97¼, cables 4.97¼, 60 day bills 4.96⅜; France, demand 2.78¾, cables 2.78¾; Italy, demand 5.26¼, cables 5.26¼. Demands: Belgium, 17.00; Germany 40.42, benevolent 20.35, travel 22.85; Holland, 55.48; Norway, 24.98; Sweden, 25.63; Denmark, 22.20; Finland, 2.20; Switzerland, 22.96; Spain, unquoted; Portugal, 4.52; Greece, .91½; Poland, 18.87; Czechoslovakia, 3.48½; Yugoslavia, 2.35; Austria, unquoted; Hungary, 19.85; Rumania, .75; Argentine, 33.13n; Brazil (free), 5.90n; Tokio, 29.00; Shanghai, 18.50; Hongkong, 31.04; Mexico City, 22.00n; Montreal in New York, 99.15⅝; New York in Montreal, 100.84⅜. n—Nominal.

LONDON, June 18.—The United States dollar improved 3-16 of a cent in terms of sterling today. The unit closed 4.97 1-16 to the pound compared with New York's overnight sterling rate of $4.97¼. French francs ended 178.34 to the pound against 178.31 yesterday.

COMMODITY MARKETS

NEW YORK, June 18.—Wheat futures contracts at Chicago slumped. Final prices were 1⅛ to 2⅛ cents a bushel below Friday's finish. Corn closed ⅛ cent higher to ⅜ lower.

Cotton recovered early losses at New York for final gains of 45 to 55 cents a bale.

Cottonseed oil, wool tops and hides futures at New York moved in a groove. Others were closed for the usual summer Saturday holiday.

Chicago livestock prices remained even as receipts held at practically nominal levels.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY CONTINUES RISE

Current Level, However, Is Only Little More Than 2 Pct. Above Depression Low.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The upward surge of industrial activity continued this week, with all major groups chalking up gains.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index, based on latest available data, rose to 67.4 per cent of the 1929-30 average from 66.7 last week and compared with 104.5 a year ago.

The current level, however, was only a little more than 2 per cent above the recession low chalked up a fortnight back.

Freight shipments staged a more-than-seasonal rally from the holiday period. The most important single factor in this increase was the industrial classification—miscellaneous freight — which was sharply higher. Grains were up only moderately, while coal movement slackened.

Automobile output moved up contra-seasonally as scattered reports of retail demand indicated production running well under purchases of new cars.

Necessitous orders were said by the trade to have played an important role in the second consecutive weekly rise in steel mill operations.

Cotton manufacturing maintained the sharply advancing trend of recent weeks. Electric power output also turned up.

COTTON ADVANCES INTO NEW HIGH GROUND FOR MOVEMENT

Unfavorable Weather in Belt and Insect Complaint Cited in Buying.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Cotton advanced into further new high ground for the movement today, influenced by unfavorable weather in the belt and complaints of insect activity in the Southwest. October sold up from 8.32 to 8.43 and closed at 8.42, with final prices 7 to 9 points net higher.

The market opened unchanged to 3 points lower with steady Liverpool cables offset by scattering week-end liquidation. The offerings were small, however, and the market soon responded to trade price-fixing in nearby deliveries and covering, as well as local buying promoted by reports of scattered rains over the entire cotton belt.

Texas advices noting a slight increase in boll weevil infestation created apprehension, especially in view of the forecast for scattered showers over the belt next week.

Commodity Credit Corporation reported 10,735 bales entered the loan during the week, bringing the total thus far to 5,395,842 bales, of which 164,094 have been repossessed by borrowers. The loan program ends at the close of this month. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 24,000 bales, against 27,000 last year and 36,000 two years ago.

HEDGING SALES, PROFIT-TAKING CUT WHEAT LIST

Buying Power Is Limited at Week-end — Reports of Favorable Growing Conditions in Spring Grain Belt.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The wheat pit absorbed enough profit taking and hedging sales today to push prices about two cents a bushel lower.

Buying demand was limited despite plentiful trade news that could be construed as favorable to the purchasing side. Further pessimistic crop news from the Southwest had little effect, however, and was offset by reports of favorable growing conditions in the spring wheat belt.

The decline of the last four days has wiped out more than three of the 15 cents upturn scored since the first of June. Nevertheless, many traders believe the market has discounted crop deterioration in the winter wheat belt reported so far this month. With the wheat pit apparently overbought, profit-taking combined with the early flow of hedging against movement of new wheat contributed to the slow decline throughout the session.

Wheat Closes Down.

Wheat closed 1½ to 2⅛ cents below yesterday's finish, July 76⅞@77⅛, September 77⅞@¾, December 79⅝@¾; corn ⅛ up to ⅜ down, July 57⅜@½, September 58¾@⅞, December 58⅜@½; oats unchanged to ⅜ off, July 26¾; rye 1@1¼ off, July 53⅜; lard 12 to 18 lower.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅝ to one cent higher, reflecting an advance in Canadian offers and dry weather complaints from Russia's Central Volga region. Kansas City and Minneapolis markets, however, were weaker than Chicago, with losses at Minneapolis exceeding three cents in some cases. Clearing and warmer weather was reported southwest and improved weather also was forecast for the coming week. A heavy run of wheat is expected at Southwest markets Monday, and fear of consequent hedging held buying in check.

Export Business Quiet.

Export business was quiet and this discouraged traders who have been watching the narrowing spread between Chicago, Winnipeg and Liverpool quotations. Chicago September wheat is only seven cents below the October Winnipeg quotation and 11 cents below Liverpool.

Corn held steady until just before the close when selling increasing partly in sympathy with wheat action. No export sales were reported but 700,000 bushels cleared by lake for Eastern ports.

Oats showed little change but rye weakened with wheat.

Provisions reflected downturns in grains and hogs.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, June 18.—There were no quotations in grain futures here today.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅝@¾d higher after unchanged to ¼d higher start.

Winnipeg wheat opened unchanged to ½c up and early was ½@⅝c lower. The close was 1⅛@1¾c lower.

Argentine wheat opened ⅜@½c up and corn ⅛@¼c better. The close was ¾@1c higher for wheat and net unchanged to ¾c higher for corn.

Local wheat receipts, which were 18,000 bushels, compared with 19,500 a week ago and 16,500 a year ago, included 10 cars local and 2 through. Corn receipts, which were 27,000 bushels, compared with 15,000 a week ago and 33,000 a year ago, included 14 cars local and 4 through. Oats receipts, which were 8000 bushels, compared with 4000 a week ago and 8000 a year ago, included 4 cars local. Hay receipts were 1 car through.

A BUICK SERIES 40 SPECIAL sedan, carrying three passengers, recently entered a road tunnel in Switzerland, which, through error, had not been blocked to traffic although blasting was in progress inside. The car had passed the middle of the tunnel when the passengers were stunned by an explosion. A block of stone, weighing half a ton or more, fell on the top of the car and smaller stones struck other parts. When the smoke had cleared away and the passengers had recovered from their shock, they found that none of them had been injured. The car, although badly dented, was driven back to Zurich, a distance of 100 miles.

WEATHER CONDITIONS ARE created at will in a new weather tunnel put into operation in the Ford Motor Co.'s engineering laboratories at Dearborn, Mich. It is used in connection with three testing tracks. An engineer can start a 70-mile per hour sleet storm raging at a car running at speeds equivalent to 60, 70 and 80 miles per hour. At will, the temperature around a car may be dropped to 20 below zero or raised to 150 degrees above. Rain, from torrential storms to a drizzle, can be simulated. A special chamber makes possible subjecting cars and parts to temperatures as low as 40 degrees below zero. Simultaneous readings of 100 conditions in various parts of a car may be taken. The tunnel also permits research study of aerodynamic efficiency of various types of body and outside accessories design. All of the tests may be watched through heavy glass panels. The Ford company also has put into use the largest centrifugal cooling machine thus far built in this country. It supplies cooling equivalent to that produced by the melting of 1100 tons of ice a day.

CHILD ADOPTION LAW IN MISSOURI CRITICISED

Four Agencies Deplore Lack of Mandatory Investigation of Families.

The Missouri child adoption law and some of the practices permitted under it are severely attacked in a statement issued yesterday by four St. Louis affiliates of the Child Welfare League of America which are joining in a nation-wide campaign to elevate the standards of child adoption.

The agencies are the St. Louis Children's Aid Society and the Sommers' Children's Welfare Bureau, both connected with United Charities; the Board of Children's Guardians, a municipal agency; and the Methodist Orphans' Home Association, a private agency.

Characterizing the present State law as outmoded, the statement points out that its chief defect is that it does not make mandatory an investigation of the family which proposes to adopt a child and a probationary period before adoption is made final. Grievous mistakes, where children have been sent to families wholly unfit to care for them, have been made because of this, the statement says.

Another flaw in the law, the statement continues is the section pertaining to jurisdiction, with the power to approve adoptions now being vested in the Circuit Court of the judicial district in which the adoption agency is situated. Jurisdiction, the statement says, should be lodged in the court of the district in which the family making the adoption lives, thus providing for easier investigation of the family's fitness.

SUPPLY CONCERN LEASES YARDS ON S. VANDEVENTER

The American Builders' Supply Co. has taken a long-time lease on a tract, 125 by 501 feet at the southwest corner of Vandeventer avenue and De Tonty street, served by the Missouri Pacific Railway. It is a concreted area, with approximately 51,000 square feet.

The improvements consist of a two-story office building and a one-story warehouse building, concrete bins, wagon scales and other equipment necessary in the operation of a building material yard. The entire property will be occupied by the supply concern with the exception of a small area in the rear of the premises, now used by the Seidel Coal and Coke Co.

The lease was made for the account of the Northwestern Trust Co. by the Breitt & Naumer Realty Co.

DEVELOPMENT FOR CLAYTON ROAD AT LINDBERGH BOUL.

Firmin V. Desloge Buys 108 Acres at Southwest Junction of Highways With Subdivision Plans.

BUSINESS CENTER AT INTERSECTION

Property Changes Ownership Four Times in 15 Years in Each Instance at Advance in Price.

By Berry Moore

Establishing an unprecedented record, the 108-acre tract at the southwest corner of Clayton road and Lindbergh boulevard has changed ownership four times during the last 15 years, in each instance at a substantial advance in price.

With plans for its development, Firmin V. Desloge, capitalist, last week purchased the tract at reported valuation of $400,000, from the McPherson Realty and Investment Co., a holding company of which Claude E. Vrooman, real estate operator, is president. Exercising an option, the latter had just acquired the property from H. W. Herwick, real estate operator, Dr. Robert E. Wilson and William H. McClung, retired capitalist, at a considerably lower figure, according to realtors.

Conveys Residence.

As part payment for the tract, Desloge conveyed to the McPherson company his palatial residence, with eight acres of ground, on the south side of Clayton road, west of the North and South road, at a reported valuation of $125,000, and his summer home at Nantucket, Mass., at a valuation of $40,000. The rest of the purchase price was paid in cash. Both transactions were handled by Vrooman, saluted as a past master as an operator in the real estate field.

Composing a syndicate, Herwick, Wilson and McClung purchased the tract in 1925, when it contained 148 acres, from a syndicate headed by Jacob Lashly, for $187,000. The latter had acquired it in June, 1923 from the Leonard-Smith-Guitar Farm Co., for $118,000, verified by the internal revenue stamps on the County House in Deal

Former residence of Firmin V. Desloge on the south side of Clayton road, east of McKnight road, acquired last week by the McPherson Realty and Investment Co., of which Claude E. Vrooman is president. It was given by Desloge in part payment for a 108-acre tract at the southwest corner of Clayton road and Lindbergh boulevard. The deal was handled by Vrooman whose company had just acquired the tract from H. W. Herweck, Dr. Robert. E. Wilson and William H. McClung.

Sites in County Additions Acquired for Pretentious Homes

Dr. A. M. Langenbach, Francis Kane and M. A. Edison Buy Lots in Suburbs for New Residences.

Acquisition of sites in county additions, north and south of Clayton road, for pretentious residences, was a feature of the week in the real estate field.

Dr. Alfred M. Langenbach has purchased an acre site just west of the McKnight road, near Dromara and Ridgewood roads, in the City of Ladue, for a handsome new residence.

Plans are being made for a modern fireproof concrete house of nine rooms and three baths, with spacious sun decks on the east and west exposures. There will be a generous use of glass blocks and floors will be of terrazzo. A built-in fish pond in the reception hall will be an attractive feature. The garage will be of the built-in type.

The site was acquired from Joseph E. Olderworth, through Mary Potter Love, Inc. The purchase price was not disclosed.

Frank R. Kane, manager of sales of the American Steel & Wire Co., has concluded negotiations for the purchase of a lot in Georgian Acres at the southwest corner of Clayton and Geyer roads, with plans for a modern residence.

Facing Clayton road, the lot is situated just east of Geyer. It adjoins the site of the recently completed residence of L. E. Cradell, president of the Simmons Hardware Co.

The transaction was handled by Dnke-Young, Inc., which is marketing this development.

Plans are going forward for a two-story colonial residence for Mark A. Edison, vice-president and treasurer of Edison Stores, Inc. It will stand on a 1.83-acre site on Dromara road, east of the McKnight road.

The lot, recently acquired through the Henry R. Weisels Co., has a frontage of 288 feet on the south side of Dromara and is 300 feet deep. Formerly owned by Clarence H. Howard Jr., it is one of the most atractive sites in this exclusive development.

METROPOLITAN CO. LENDS $70,000 ON SCHOOL BUILDING

The Metropolitan St. Louis Co. has made a loan of $70,000 on the John Burroughs School building and site, at 755 Price road, in the City of Ladue, in St. Louis County. The site comprises 17½ acres. FIRST F H A FINANCED APARTMENT LOCALLY

Real Estate Agency Completes First F H A Loan Here Under Title 210.

The Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. announces the first F H A loan to be made in this territory under the provisions of Title 210. It is for $85,000 and is amortized over a period of 21 years.

The loan is secured by a three-story 18-unit apartment building at the southeast corner of Bemiston and Kingsbury boulevard in Clayton by Jacob Rubin & Sons, builders. The project involves an estimated cost of $125,000 including that of the site.

Designed in the Regency style, the building will be on a pretentious scale. There will be nine suites of five rooms and nine of four rooms, with one and two baths. Floors will be of concrete slab and exterior walls will be damp proof. Copper plumbing will be used throughout the building, to be equipped with a heating system of Thrush design. Kitchens will include all modern appliances. Bathrooms will be of tile with mirrored-doors.

The site has a frontage of 100 feet on Kingsbury, with a depth of 150 feet on Bemiston. Plans for the building were drawn by Saul Rubin.

In placing the loan, the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. represented the Investors Syndicate of Minneapolis, of which L. L. Seaman is local loan correspondent.

The Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Co. has placed F H A loans in St. Louis approximating $2,500,000, principally on moderate priced residences, according to a member of the concern. It has established a branch office in Peoria, Ill., to meet the demand for F H A loans in that section.

COUNTRY-WIDE GAINS SHOWN IN REALTY SALES

Volume of Transactions in Property Increases Consecutively for 3 Months, According to Survey.

The volume of real estate sales over the country for three consecutive months has shown an advance over the preceding month, according to the index prepared for the National Association of Real Estate Boards from week-by-week reports from representative metropolitan areas. The report of Herbert U. Nelson, executive secretary of the association, is as follows:

"The rises have not been spectacular. May, the last month for which data are available, shows a rise of one point over April on a scale that uses the sales volume prevailing in 1926 as 100 per cent. This index (in which seasonal fluctuations are eliminated) shows that voluntary transfers are now taking place at 51 per cent of the 1926 rate. They had mounted as far as 61 per cent at last year's peak, reached in May and continued through June. This was the highest point of real estate sales activity since 1929. They had fallen to 35 per cent of the 1926 rate at their depression low in May of 1933.

"It is the steadiness of the recent climb that is significant.

Residential Building.

"Backing the turn in sales volume is undoubtedly the fact that residential building for May is only 1 per cent nder the volume we had in May of last year (the peak of last year's activity), that real estate earning power as measured by rents has held well during the recession months, with rates for single family dwellings again showing a slight up trend. Paralleling it is a small recent up movement in the volume of real estate financing.

"A survey of our building codes is being made by the United States Bureau of Standards. Questionnaires have been mailed to some 3000 cities and towns with a view of finding out which ones are modernizing their codes, how long the existing codes have been in effect without substantial revision, and the items in the codes that are receiving the most attention in the revision work.

"The whole problem of rewriting building regulations so as to keep necessary standards of safety but at the same time make it possible to take full advantage of what we know today about materials and methods is one of the tough problems that we must meet if we are to lower home building costs. 'Politics' and vested interests block and delay change.

Building Codes.

"Building codes should be built upon scientific understanding of the essentials of building safety. The bureau is laying a continuous foundation for scientific code revision through studies such as those to determine stress resistance of materials. It is co-operating with a wide group of agencies and associations in the building field in the development of a proposed standard building code. The new inquiry will do more than furnish directional data for that work. Action inspires action. Whatever any city has been able to accomplish in rewriting its building law satisfactorily to meet modern possibilities in the saving of home construction costs will become a plow to turn the furrow like modernization in many another community.

"Among other things, it is probable that the survey will shed some light on the effect which the minimum construction standards set by the FHA have had in improving the building code situation. Many small towns and suburban communities have found that the minimum construction standards imposed under the mortgage insurance program have been a very measurable help in bringing about better compliance with their code or improvement of their codes.

LOANS BY F H L BANKS EXCEED REPAYMENTS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Indications of an increasing demand for home-financing funds were seen today in a report of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board showing that advances to member savings and loan associations by the 12 Federal Home Loan Banks during the week ending June 4 exceeded repayments by $230,989.92. Advances totaled $1,230,430 and payments on outstanding loans were $999,440.08.

Officials pointed out that last week was the third consecutive weekly period in which the money placed by the banks in home-financing institutions exceeded that repaid to them. Significance of the trend lies in the fact that it reverses that of the period between Jan. 1 and May 15 when money was being paid back into the 12 banks more rapidly than it was being loaned out.

In other words, increased lending by the banks indicates that its nearly 4000 member institutions are finding the public demand for funds for home purchase and construction is on the up-grade.

The Bank Board's statement showed that during the five years of their existence the 12 Federal Home Loan Banks have made advances to members totaling $432,141,264.06. Of this $186,587,319.13 now is outstanding.

SALES OF PROPERTY WITH TOTAL VALUE OF $93,450

H. A. O'Rourke, Inc. reports the sale of a new 5-room bungalow at 4152 Rosa avenue in West Holly Hills to Edna C. Hilmer. ARMY HAS TWO NEW TYPE OBSERVATION BALLOONS

Engine Can Be Installed for Transfer Under Own Power to Various Positions.

DAYTON, O., June 18.—Expansion of the army's lighter-than-air branch by the addition of two new-type observation balloons was announced today by officers at Wright Field.

The ships, which can be converted within a few minutes from captive units to ones capable of being flown under their own power, are under construction at Akron, and will join two others of the same type recently put into service at Fort Sill, Ok., and Fort Lewis, Wash.

Officers said that on completion of an observation mission—such as the direction of artillery fire—the balloon is hauled to the ground, where its basket is detached and replaced with a small two-place car equipped with an engine.

The helium-filled ship may then be flown to any given destination within modest range. Primarily, the engine is intended to make possible the blimp's return to its base, which, in modern warfare strategy, may be 25 to 30 miles to the rear.

Officers said the balloon's ability to be flown under its own power eliminated problems encountered in the transfer of fold-type craft to another point.

DEVELOPMENT FOR CLAYTON ROAD AT LINDBERGH BOUL.

deed. N. S. Wood, veteran real estate dealer, handled the negotiations in these transactions, both of which were on a cash basis.

The Clayton road residence was purchased by Desloge 14 years ago through Albert T. Terry & Co. It was recently remodeled at a cost of $42,000. It is just west of Berkshire, a development of the Federer Realty Co., and is opposite the 40-acre Crow estate tract on the north side of Clayton road, a short distance east of McKnight road.

The tract acquired by Desloge has a frontage on Clayton of 1500 feet, and on Lindbergh boulevard of 2600 feet. It extends southwardly to the proposed extension of Litzsinger road which will form its south boundary and on which it will have an extensive frontage. Lying just north of the Village of Huntleigh, the tract is in a highly restricted zone. Part of it is used by the Bridlespur Hunt Club for its annual steeplechase races.

Survey Ordered.

Desloge has ordered a survey of the tract, it was stated, having plans, it is understood, for its development as a high class residential section, under the supervision of Edward L. Bakewell, realtor, whose handiwork includes Huntleigh Village. It is understood that the Clayton and Lindbergh corner is to be reserved for a business center, with a group of buildings contemplated on a pretentious scale and in marked contrast to the store building architecture.

Approximately 37 acres of the original tract was acquired several years ago by Howard Godwin, builder, for Huntleigh Downs, a subdivision of 15 lots on Clayton road.

Several offers have been submitted recently for the 35-acre tract at the northeast corner of Clayton road and Lindbergh boulevard, purchased in 1925 by Eugene J. Altheimer, president of the real estate firm of Eugene J. Altheimer, Williams and Calmer, Inc., as a speculative investment, through N. S. Wood. It has a frontage on Clayton of 1000 feet and on Lindbergh of 1660 feet. The northwest corner of Clayton road and Lindbergh boulevard is owned by the St. Louis County school board. It was formerly the site of the Wright School, new located farther west on Clayton road.

RELAY GROUP TO HAVE TEAM IN U. S. MEET

The St. Louis Relay Association will be represented in the National A. A. U. track and field championships at Buffalo, N. Y., July 2-3, by at least six men and possibly 10, according to F. Marvin Plake, athletic director of the local club. Several of the men will compete in both the junior and senior championships, while others will take part only in the relay events the second day.

There are two openings on the 1600-meter relay team, although several local quarter-milers are being considered. Henry Bushyhead, former Missouri University star, and Charles Strusz, middle distance runner from Carbondale Teachers, are assured of places on the team, while Bill Lewis, Negro high school record holder at the distance, may run one of the legs. For the 400-meter relay it appears that Ray Alsbury, Bill Lewis, Henry Bushyhead and Butler Bushyhead will make up the quartet. This same team captured the sprint relay of 880 yards at the recent Ozark championships.

Ray Sears, who competed yesterday in the Princeton Invitational Meet, will run in the 5000-meter senior run. Frank Jennings will be in the junior and senior 10,000-meter event, which will be held simultaneously. Ray Alsbury will run in the 200-meter hurdles, while Bill Lewis will take part in the broad jump and possibly th 200-meter run. Other contestants and events in which they will participate will be decided upon this week-end.

The team will leave June 29 and arrive in Buffalo the day before the meet.

There was a chorus of boos from the Louis partisans as the money changed hands.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA WOMEN'S SUNDAY MAGAZINE RADIO

THIS NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 18.

MANHATTAN'S railroad fans had a delirium-tremendous time of it last week, with enough train and locomotive goings on to make them permanently haunted by Raymond Loewy and Henry Dreyfuss, who designed the new Broadway and Twentieth Century Limiteds, respectively. In addition to all this streamlined pother, there was a party flung by the L. M. & S. Railroad (of England) for Sir Josiah Stamp, and a posse of faithful members of the Railway and Locomotive Historical Society went out to Jersey to claim an ancient camelback for their archives. What with this superabundance of excitement, Ed Hungerford, Sheldon Pennoyer, Gilbert Burck and the other demon rail fans of the town had the screaming meenies before it was over.

LUCIUS BEEBE.

The new Century and Broadway (and the Pennsy raised the Central by putting two other streamliners, the General and the Spirit of St. Louis, in service out of New York) are the first of the really new trains between Gotham and the West. Their advent, quite properly, was the subject of a deal of oratory, editorialization and glass-raising. Rule G doesn't apply for executives. Both trains are really miracles of luxury design, with private suites and baths, inter-car telephone systems, Ritz-like restaurant cars and crafty devices for temperature, humidity and light control everywhere. They each had a trial run, awash with reporters, presidents, designers and photographers, and such heroic doings haven't taken place since they laid that last rail at Promonotory in '69.

● THE RIVALRY between the Central and the Pennsy, a condition of mutually courteous hatred of Hatfield-McCoy, or rather St. Marks-Groton, proportions, is practically dateless. Back in 1902, when the Central put the first Twentieth Century Limited in operation, the Pennsy inaugurated the run of the predecessor of the Broadway the same day and on precisely the same schedule. From then till now they have matched each other's passenger train schedules out of New York with unvarying regularity. If the Pennsy invents a new salad bowl, the Central counters with a Commodore Vanderbilt beef casserole or some such. The Central builds a royal suite on the Century and the Pennsy opens an imperial apartment on the Broadway. It's been just about an even draw for four decades, except, of course, the humiliating year when the Central didn't print any calendars, and all its executives, including even President Williamson, had to reckon the date on calendars which the Pennsy thoughtfully mailed to every officer of the rival road.

Our Bellevue Avenue, Newport, gossip, Harold Seton, writes us concerning the sensation caused in upper-case society circles a generation or so ago, when the late Frederick P. Garrettson, himself very much of a social figure, opened a grocery shop at Newport as a rival to Drury's celebrated biscuit and beefsteak bazaar. Mamie Fish, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, Annie Leary and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt all started buying their pantry supplies from Garrettson, and a great deal of badinage passed over the dinner tables concerning the high-toned origin of the rack of lamb or celery salt.

● IN BOSTON TODAY the most social of all wine merchants is the very dapper Hooper Hooper, a sartorial fashion plate of the Commonwealth Avenue midst and a warden at Emmanuel Church. The story goes that he once, in an urgent emergency, delivered in person a case of Perrier Jouet to Dr. George W. W. Brewster, conveying it to the back door in his own car and handing it up to the houseman himself. He then removed his heavy workingman's gloves, donned a pair of white wash ones, flicked a bit of lint off his morning coat and called at the front door as an old friend of the family. Philadelphia, too, has its very social grocers in the persons of John and Joseph Wagner, who are members of more clubs than you can shake a stick at, but who are regularly at work before the first clerks come on duty in the morning, attired in white coats and wrapping up orders of spice and cheese themselves for the best Rittenhouse Square carriage trade.

One of the ageless anecdotes of the Plaza Hotel concerns a very valued and dignified patron of the house who was so courtly that it was never possible to determine when he had been taken in wine until the commission of some Homeric outrage had actually been achieved. One night, many years ago, he showed up late in the evening and asked for a room for the night. Half an hour later, after he had been, as the management imagined, well put away until morning, he telephoned downstairs in a highly petulant mood, declaring that his bed was awful, that it was vastly uncomfortable, quite unsuited to the occupancy of a gentleman, and had, in fact, collapsed, precipitating him to the floor in a nasty mess of slats, sheets and headboards.

● HORRIFIED, the management sent night porters and maids up to repair the damage and installed a new bed. Half an hour passed before the telephone rang again, with the appalling complaint that the ceiling of the room was slowly coming down, like the crust of a falling souffle of that Edgar Allen Poe room! Even now it was so close to the floor that the Plaza's old and valued patrón was unable to stand upright! Send assistance forthwith, ere he was cruelly crushed to death! Managers and other members of the staff flew to the twentieth, unable to imagine what new catastrophe had overtaken the house, and, sure enough, yells for help were echoing through the transom. It was only after they had burst in, prepared for Heaven knew what scene of carnage, that they found the old gentleman, struggling and howling, still telephoning for help, flat on the floor and entirely underneath the bed.

DEVELOPMENT of CHILD PRODIGY

Mary Christine Dunn's Mental Ability and Talents, Noted Last Year, Are Still Apparent.

By ROY J. HARRIS
OF THE POST-DISPATCH STAFF

A TINY brown-haired girl, demure in a long satin dress and old-fashioned bonnet, blew a kiss to the audience as she finished her song, curtsied gracefully and danced off the stage into the arms of her proud mother.

The crowd applauded vigorously and Mary Christine Dunn, three and a half years old, in her first appearance before an audience, was a success. The gathering was in the auditorium of the Bonne Terre (Mo.) High School and the little girl was the same Mary Christine Dunn who, a little more than a year ago won the attention of the nation as a 28-month-old genius. "The most remarkable child I have ever seen," was what Dr. John P. Nafe, head of the department of psychology at Washington University, said about her.

MARY CHRISTINE DUNN . . . . "OH, HOW I LIKE TO GO UP IN A SWING."

SHE HAS HER HANDS FULL.

Mary has had a variety of experiences in the 14 months since the Post-Dispatch published the first account of the mental tests which gave her an intelligence quotient of 185 and a mental age rating of four to five years. Some of these experiences were good for her, some perhaps not so good, depending on the point of view, and some were doubtless more thrilling than her appearance the other day in the high school auditorium at her dancing teacher's recital. Such as, for example, the trip to Hollywood last summer for screen tests, appearances on the radio and before news reel cameras and innumerable "interviews" with the press and postings for photographs.

BUT for the last nine months Mary's life has followed much the same routine as that of any other little girl her age. This writer, having observed Mary's career to date with more than passing interest, is able to report that she appears to be the same wholesome, unspoiled child as at the first meeting. This despite the fact that during and just after the period when she got so much extraordinary attention, she exhibited the same symptoms of wilfulness, negativism, "spoiling," if you like, as would be found in any other child in the same position.

As her mother, Mrs. Lawrence T. Dunn, put it: "Mary just seemed for a while to go into her shell, but she certainly is herself again now." All of which goes to show—if one may paraphrase the phrase makers—that the child's place is in the home.

Mary's development has been watched by the psychologists at Washington University and new tests were made recently in an effort to gauge her progress. Results of these tests, however, are not being made public, as the psychology department wants to avoid a repetition of what occurred last year after Mary became famous—mothers flocking to the laboratory with their offspring in the hope of winning similar laurels. It may be said that many were tested but few, if any, were chosen as rivals of Mary for the crown of genius.

However, a few hours' visit with Mary Dunn is sufficient to convince anyone of the needlessness, not to say inadequacy, of any formal test in appraising this child's mental ability and talents. The qualities noted last year—motor co-ordination, emotional stability, social sense and responsiveness—are all still there, going to make up the balanced "total" personality praised by the psychologists. Also present are a maturity and general behavior usually found only in older children.

These fundamentals aside, Mary's unquestionable talent for music and dancing remains to amaze anyone familiar with the accomplishments of the average child along these lines. Her parents recently started her in a dancing class and she has had one lesson in music. The child seems fascinated by the piano and when seated before one picks out little tunes of her own invention, not unpleasant to the ear and far removed from the clattering one might expect. Her music teacher at first demurred at taking a pupil so young, said Mrs. Dunn, but after one session with the child expressed amazement at her aptitude and enthusiastically agreed to continue her lessons.

MARY'S dancing skill, acquired in the course of only half a dozen lessons, is a revelation to to the most inexperienced eye. Keepign perfect time, she executes intricate tap steps with a facility which would do credit to a much older and more practiced child. The conservative comment of her dancing teacher, Mrs. John E. Pirtle, is that "Mary has real talent, a true sense of rhythm and is very apt and responsive to training and direction." It took Mary only one hour to learn a waltz-clog step and she "got on very nicely with it," Mrs. Pirtle declared. "Mary was the youngest of the 75 children in the recital and her training had been very brief, but her lovely natural voice, clear enunciation and sweet personality won the audience," the teacher said.

As to Mary's future, her parents are certain of only one thing—that they are not going to "rush" her. Admitting that the attention more or less forced on her last year did no good, they plan to let her develop naturally, with normal parental guidance. The Hollywood venture ended after a week's stay in the film capital and the Dunns have little to say about the trip except that it took them just that week to decide that home rather than Hollywood was the place for Mary, despite the seven-year optional contract she was under. They obtained a release from the contract.

"We plan to send Mary to kindergarten in the fall, although she will then be not quite four," said Mrs. Dunn. "We don't think that will be pushing her, for Mrs. Pirtle, who also has a private kindergarten, says she will be glad to have her. Aside from that, we will be satisfied to have Mary just as our little girl, and I think she will be happy for a long time yet with her dolls and her toys."

"LOOK OUT! HERE I COME."

ON THE FLICKER FRONT

By H. H. NIEMEYER

HOLLYWOOD, June 18.

FOR some reason, maybe because one of the big studios is about to put out a serious drama or two, word had been scattered around rather freely that comedies have seen their best day and that the movie public will have no more of them. Carole Lombard, Claudette Colbert and some other leading lights have declared they are through with comic roles. Well, perhaps THEY are but a newcomer to the American screens isn't and when the cash customers get a glimpse of her and her first Hollywood effort the cry for comedies will come surging back if, indeed, it has ever been threatening to depart.

Danielle Darrieux is the woman in question and her "The Rage of Paris"—called that for no particular reason except to excuse her French accent—which was previewed the other night is a knockout. Darrieux, a beautiful young woman with an amazing photographic personality and a rare sense of comedy, is going to make it tough for the other Hollywood glamour girls, native and imported, from now on. At present she is back in Paris where she is to make two films but she returns to California in October to do another comedy for Universal.

AND STILL ANOTHER comedy-farce hit the screens by way of the preview route last week. This is the Ginger Rogers-Douglas Fairbanks Jr., opus, "Having Wonderful Time." Sure fire and tremendously funny, it climbs into the big-winner class. Pretty broad in dialogue and situations, it is difficult to see just how it got by the censors in the Hays office. There has been a rumor for some time that Hays was getting a little more open minded but he will have to do a lot of explaining for "Having Wonderful Time" to the Parent-Teachers' Associations and other organizations which have been fighting to keep the screen 99 per cent pure. Miss Rogers neither sings nor dances in this uproarious offering but once more proves that she is an actress who doesn't need Fred Astaire to help her along. Young Fairbanks, who shares honors with her, is also Darrieux's co-star in "The Rage of Paris."

—o-o—

WHAT LOOKS STARK and violent on the screen, was probably stark enough while the camera turned. We have no delusions on this score, after having been hit by an arrow in "Robin Hood," though a rather soft-pointed arrow. And there was the hair-raising cattle stampede in "The Texans," in which May Robson acquitted herself with heroism, as did everybody else, while your reporter stood heroically on a distant knoll.

There had to be a stampede at the camp, and this was being filmed at the Paramount ranch. A thousand steers were raked together, and a couple dozen outlaw longhorns from Texas were mixed in, to give them a little deviltry. But they just wouldn't stampede. They were out of the stampeding habit, it seemed. The whole bunch relaxed in happy vacuity, chewing the cud and dreaming. Cowboys fired pistols and waved hats. James Hogan, the director, as tough and supple as a hickory withe, dashed through on a cayuse, and gave yells that would have frightened the life out of a Comanche. That didn't do any good, either. The longhorns with the contented kine, lay as still as hatracks.

Hogan gave up, rolled a cigarette and opined we'd have to wait until 2:30 a. m. Here's some inside dope on the habits of cattle for you. At that hour cattle get up, moved by the same herd impulse that brings the grandstand crowd to its feet at the seventh inning of a baseball game, yawn, then lie down again. It's then that they're good for a stampede.

EVERYBODY lit cigarettes, with a crackling of matches. That did the trick. Two longhorns rose and plunged ahead. Then the whole herd tore earnestly after them, and the stampede was on. Over by the cameras, Joan Bennett got out of her chair, backward. To your reporter it looked like a cruel, instant death for everyone within reach of the hooves. Then Miss Robson, in turban and crinoline, rose from her chair, determinedly shook her parasol, and with a "Shoo, shoo!" checked the leaders in their flight. They stopped so fast that they grounded their front hooves a foot deep in mud. Turbans and parasols were new to them. If ever cattle registered dismay and chagrin, it was those longhorns.

They milled off, half-heartedly, in another direction, and one luck-

Martha Carr

My dear Mrs. Carr:

BEFORE leaving St. Louis for the summer, I want to report to you about the case of Clyde Sweeney of Pierce City, Mo., whom, you will remember, lost his leg and, having to go two miles to school on crutches, asked for a wooden leg.

You will be glad to know that the money has been raised. I got in touch with Miss Alberta Chase of the Missouri Crippled Children's Society, and, through her, with the Social Security group of the vicinity in which the child lives. They had the case investigated and found it most worthy.

The order for the artificial limb was placed on May 20 and will soon be ready for adjustment. No doubt you would like to know from whom the money came and this is the information which I have: Monett Kiwanis Club, $35; Newton County Court, $35; Pierce City Chamber of Commerce, $35; Charles Maginnis, St. Louis, $5; L. Witt, St. Louis, $1; Mrs. J. T. Carlton, Cape Girardeau, $1; anonymous giver, $1; Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, $42; making a total of $155, which is the price of the limb. Yours sincerely,

MRS. H. H. MUCHALL,

President-Director, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs.

I am glad to know of your success and I want to thank you and all those who have so generously co-operated with you, in response to the request made through this column.

Dear Friend:

● I AM UNCERTAIN as to what to do, and shall be guided by your opinion. I am an unmarried girl employed in an office. Last week, I had several photographs taken, and I showed them to my fellow-workers. Ever since then, a married man, also employed here, gives me no rest. He is constantly begging me for one of these pictures of myself, and I am now asking you if it is proper to give one to him.

What worries me, Mrs. Carr, is this: Last summer, my girl friend had her face slapped good and plenty by a wife to whose husband my girl friend had given one of her photographs.

This wife said that her husband was fully supplied with pictures of herself and her children (their children) and that if my girl friend possessed any self-respect that she would give her photographs only to unmarried men.

Now, Mrs. Carr, what do you think?

Respectfully yours, PEGGY.

Both the degree and the type of friendship might decide this. But, without question, it is bad taste if not improper to give your personal photograph to a man whom you know only as your employer or co-worker. If he is married and you know his wife, then you would present it to both if he requested it and you are, all three, good friends. With the experience of your friend, as an example, I think surely you might be forewarned as well as forearmed.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● I HAVE SEVEN CHILDREN, the oldest 24. He is the only one working at present. He makes on an average $25 a week. He gives me $10 and keeps the rest. Now my husband keeps arguing that the boy is supposed to turn in almost all his earnings. He has also said that the boy does not need a car, nor to go to dances, etc. But young folks must have some fun. He doesn't drink, but works all the time. So, will you tell me whether I am doing wrong by letting him keep part of his money, because after all, if he gets married he will need money which I will not be able to give him. Hoping you will help bring back happiness in my home. T. D.

With that many in a family to be cared for, I persume, (although you do not say) your husband must work and provide the main needs. If this is not so, your son should offer more. A car is a luxury, not a necessity, as so many people now seem to think. He could very well go to dances and have moderate pleasures (which of course he should have), but I think your argument does not work out very well, for the reason that, if he indulges himself in a car and too frequent entertainment, there will be little left for the wedding nest egg.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

● YOU have given such splendid advice to others, I know you can help me. Eight years ago, I married my school-day sweetheart, the only boy I ever went out with. We have a lovely daughter, seven years old. We were extremely happy until the last year, when he started drinking. Since then we have had nothing but trouble. He has wrecked our new machine and spent all extra money we have saved.

I have no one to turn to and am so unhappy. I have worked steady for five years and could make my way alone if I had someone to care for my little girl. I would like to board where a child is welcome; or do you think I am wrong in planning to leave? Many thanks if you will advise me what to do. B.

I believe you might try, with the assistance of your family physician and perhaps your church connection, to change your husband and to make him try to recover himself. Your physician is the one to talk to him and, if necessary, give him a little jolt about his future, making him understand the destructive effect on his health and possibly the loss of his family and work, should he continue.

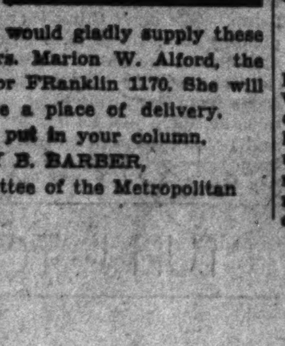
Dear Mrs. Carr:

● FROM JUNE 20 to Aug. 19 the Church Federation of St. Louis will conduct two schools for under-privileged children. One school will be at the Giddings Presbyterian Church, corner of Sarah and Washington boulevard, the other will be at Dickson Center, Twenty-first and Dickson, for Negro children. Many people are giving their time, the entire nine weeks, to this worthy project. But our needs are many—especially for Dickson Center.



Here we need a gas stove, balls, bats, dolls and doll clothes, children's books, toys—particularly two toy dump trucks and scrap books. The girls at Dickson Center wish to sew and cook. We need a sewing machine badly.

These two schools rendered a lasting service in their communities last summer. With unemployment steadily mounting, the need is even greater this year. Many people would gladly supply these things if they knew the urgency of it. Mrs. Marion W. Alford, the supervisor, may be reached at FOrest 2035 or FRanklin 1170. She will gladly arrange to pick up donations or give a place of delivery.

We will be very grateful if this can be put in your column.

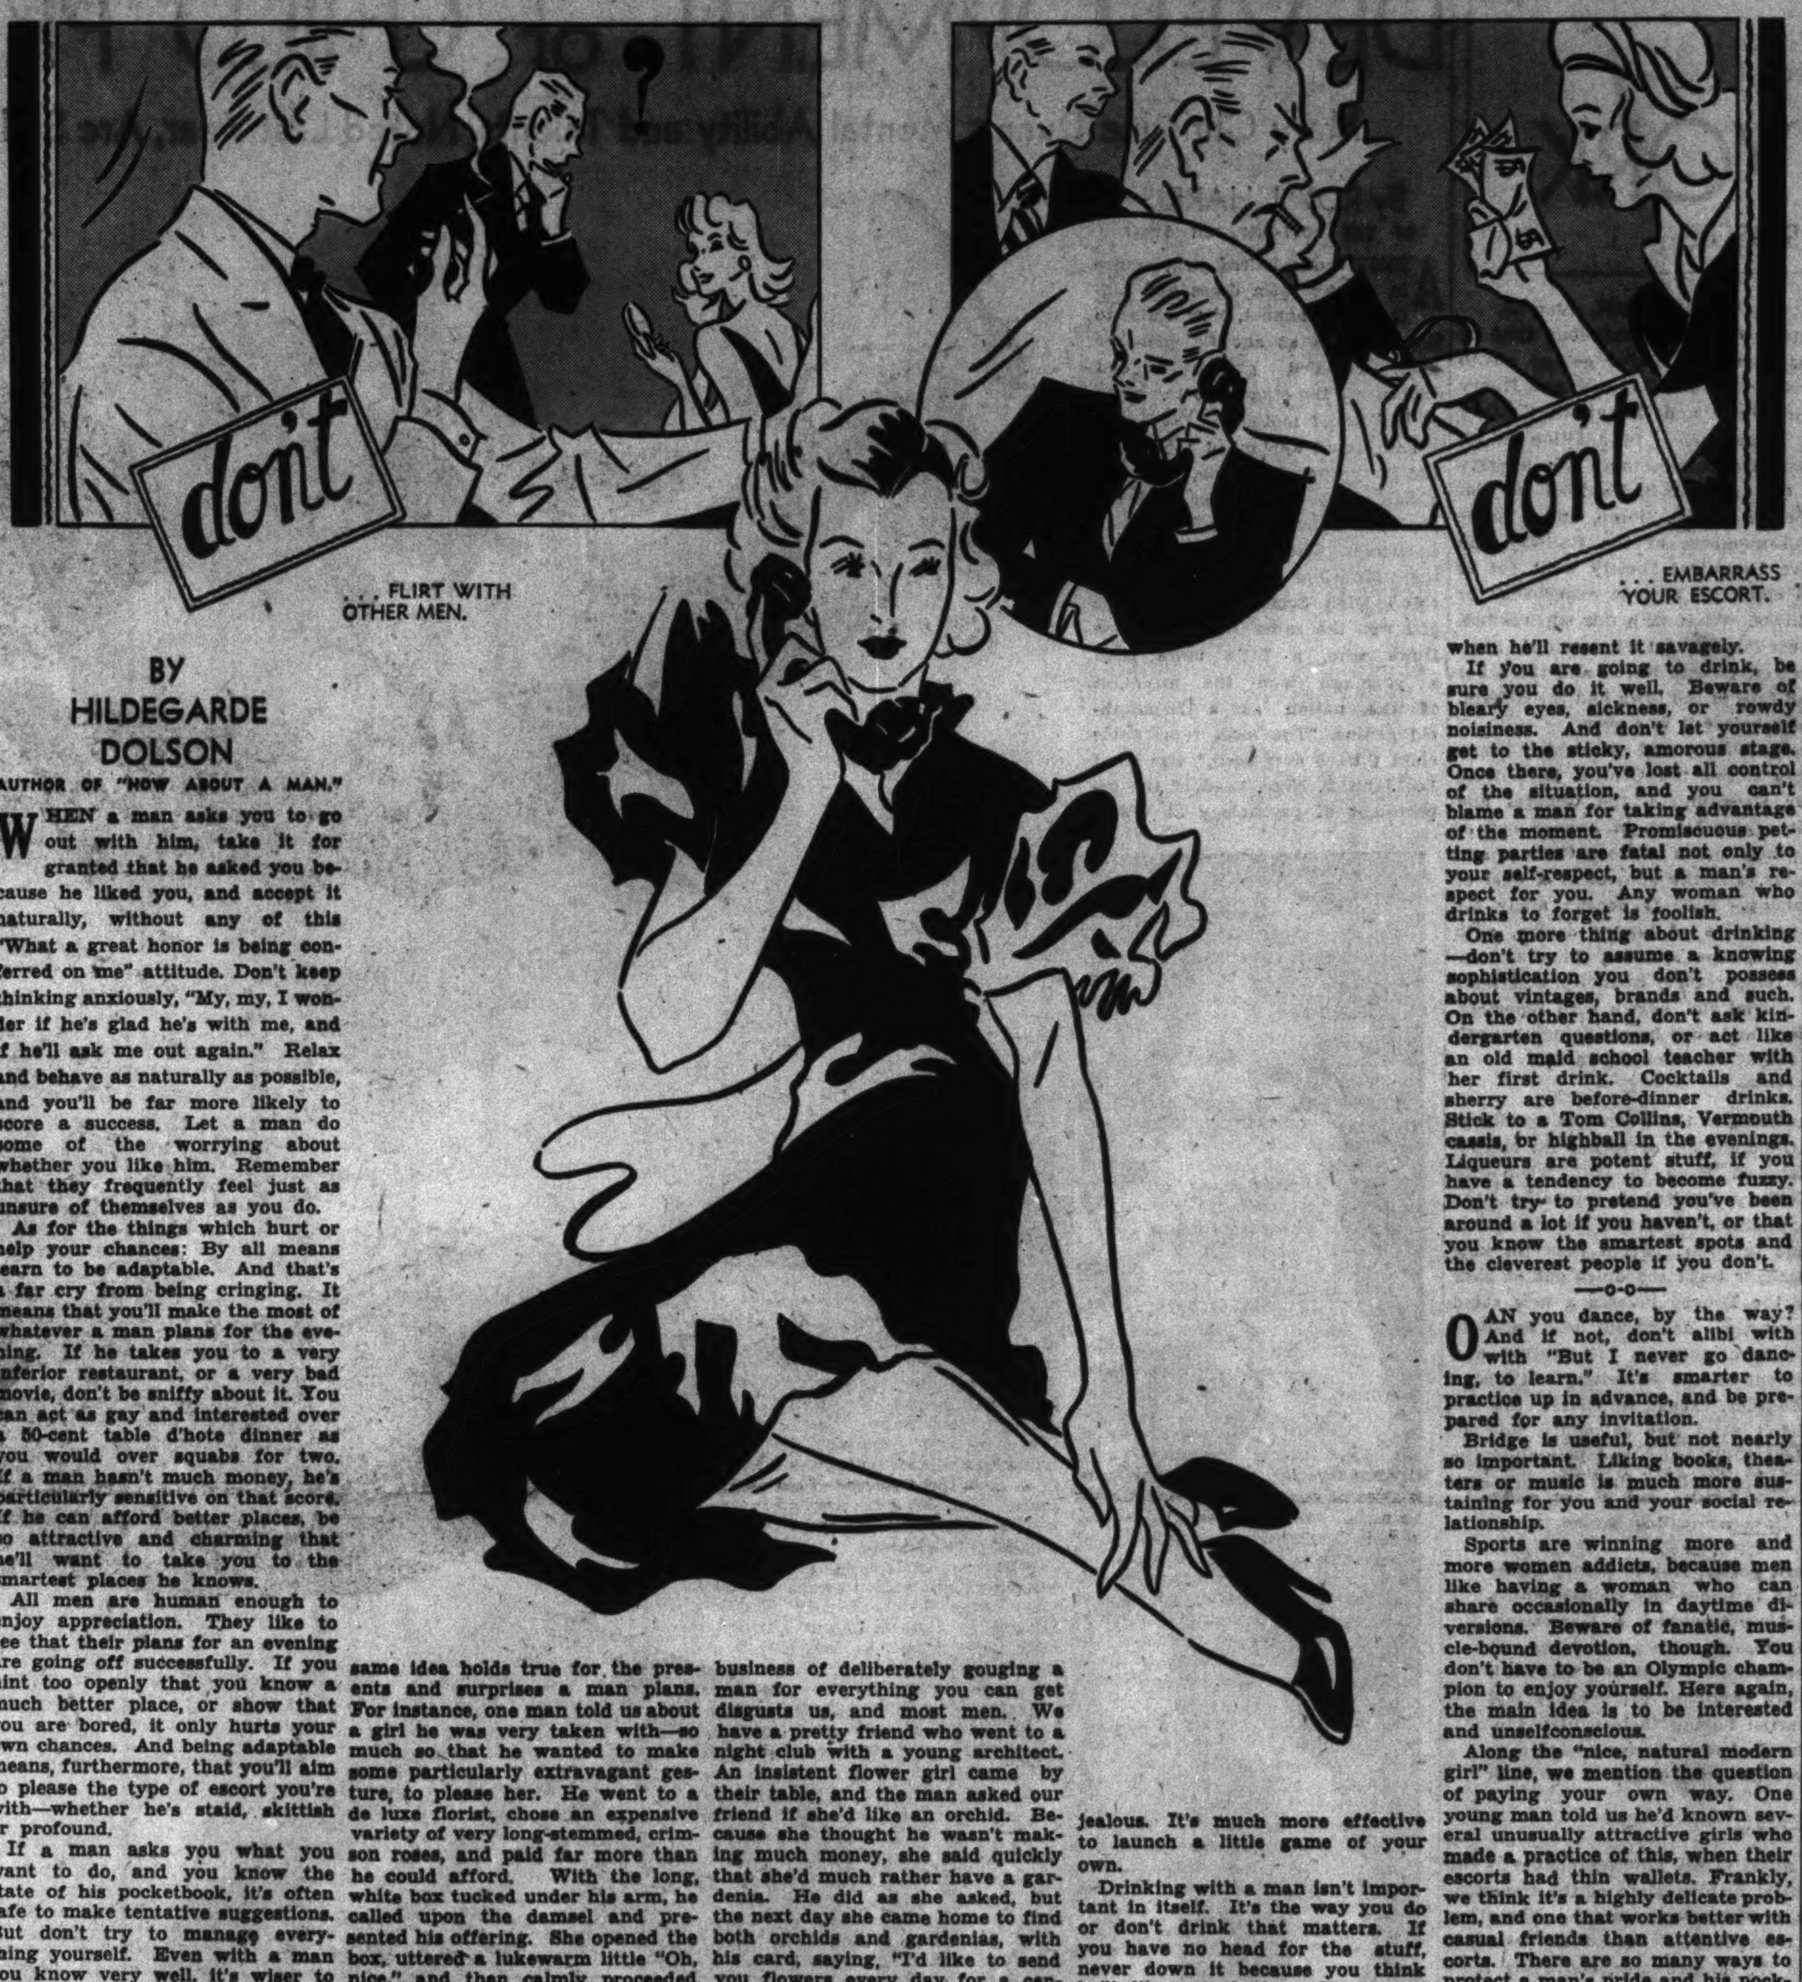
Very truly yours, MARY B. BARBER,

Chairman of the Vacation School Committee of the Metropolitan Church Federation.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

Some DO'S and DON'TS for Girls on Dates

Follow Them, Says Author of "How About a Man," and You'll Increase Your Popularity.



. . . FLIRT WITH OTHER MEN.

. . . EMBARRASS YOUR ESCORT.

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

AUTHOR OF "HOW ABOUT A MAN."

WHEN a man asks you to go out with him, take it for granted that he asked you because he liked you, and accept it naturally, without any of this "What a great honor is being conferred on me" attitude. Don't keep thinking anxiously, "My, my, I wonder if he's glad he's with me, and if he'll ask me out again." Relax and behave as naturally as possible, and you'll be far more likely to score a success. Let a man do some of the worrying about whether you like him. Remember that they frequently feel just as unsure of themselves as you do.

As for the things which hurt or help your chances: By all means learn to be adaptable. And that's a far cry from being cringing. It means that you'll make the most of whatever a man plans for the evening. If he takes you to a very inferior restaurant, or a very bad movie, don't be sniffy about it. You can act as gay and interested over a 50-cent table d'hote dinner as you would over squabs for two. If a man hasn't much money, he's particularly sensitive on that score. If he can afford better places, be so attractive and charming that he'll want to take you to the smartest places he knows.

All men are human enough to enjoy appreciation. They like to see that their plans for an evening are going off successfully. If you hint too openly that you know a much better place, or show that you are bored, it only hurts your own chances. And being adaptable means, furthermore, that you'll aim to please the type of escort you're with—whether he's staid, skittish or profound.

If a man asks you what you want to do, and you know the state of his pocketbook, it's often safe to make tentative suggestions. But don't try to manage everything yourself. Even with a man you know very well, it's wiser to let him feel he's handling the decisions, and doing it very well. If your escort is very young, or unsure of himself, you can help him out subtly, and bolster his confidence. Watch any hen-pecked little husband blossom out with a woman who makes him feel master of the situation, and you'll see a potent example of what we mean.

There are over-exacting, disdainful females who seem to get the moon for the asking. Sometimes they're beautiful enough to get away with that for quite a while. Our own hunch is that most women get farther by sticking to the middle course we're describing. The same idea holds true for the presents and surprises a man plans. For instance, one man told us about a girl he was very taken with—so much so that he wanted to make some particularly extravagant gesture, to please her. He went to a de luxe florist, chose an expensive variety of very long-stemmed, crimson roses, and paid far more than he could afford. With the long, white box tucked under his arm, he called upon the damsel and presented his offering. She opened the box, uttered a lukewarm little "Oh, nice," and then calmly proceeded to cut off a foot of stem, and stick them into a vase. In telling us, he said: "Maybe it was silly of me to bring flowers that wouldn't fit into her vases. But if she filled a waste basket with water, or at least exclaimed how much she hated to cut the stems, I'd have felt fine. It was her complete lack of appreciation that flattened me out. I/got out of that apartment within 10 minutes, and I've never been back since."

We also feel very strongly on the subject of gold-digging. If you know a man has plenty of money, then it's foolish to fuss and worry if he spends it on you. But this business of deliberately gouging a man for everything you can get disgusts us, and most men. We have a pretty friend who went to a night club with a young architect. An insistent flower girl came by their table, and the man asked our friend if she'd like an orchid. Because she thought he wasn't making much money, she said quickly that she'd much rather have a gardenia. He did as she asked, but the next day she came home to find both orchids and gardenias, with his card, saying, "I'd like to send you flowers every day for a century or so, because you were such a darling last night."

ANOTHER thing women often do—trying to make their escorts jealous. Be nice to other men, of course. Any attentions you get from them certainly enhances your charms. But don't flirt so openly that you humiliate your own escort. Only the most spineless man will stand for a woman's making a fool of him in public. If he tries the "roving-eye" act first, then by all means give him a dose of his own medicine. Never make the mistake of showing him you're jealous. It's much more effective to launch a little game of your own.

Drinking with a man isn't important in itself. It's the way you do or don't drink that matters. If you have no head for the stuff, never down it because you think he'll like you better. Plenty of girls who go out five nights a week either drink very little or not at all. Naturally, you shouldn't go in for pursed lips or a conspicuous display of virtue. A casual "No, thanks," or "I'm on the wagon" is enough. The men who keep insisting on your drinking generally aren't worth the bother. If your escort gets very tight, get home as soon as possible, and don't lecture him on the way. Discipline him subtly, not shrewishly, when he's more able to take in what you're saying. And whatever you do don't ever try to trap a man while he's in that vague condition. There's always a sober tomorrow when he'll resent it savagely.

If you are going to drink, be sure you do it well. Beware of bleary eyes, sickness, or rowdy noisiness. And don't let yourself get to the sticky, amorous stage. Once there, you've lost all control of the situation, and you can't blame a man for taking advantage of the moment. Promiscuous petting parties are fatal not only to your self-respect, but a man's respect for you. Any woman who drinks to forget is foolish.

One more thing about drinking—don't try to assume a knowing sophistication you don't possess about vintages, brands and such. On the other hand, don't ask kindergarten questions, or act like an old maid school teacher with her first drink. Cocktails and sherry are before-dinner drinks. Stick to a Tom Collins, Vermouth cassis, or highball in the evenings. Liqueurs are potent stuff, if you have a tendency to become fuzzy. Don't try to pretend you've been around a lot if you haven't, or that you know the smartest spots and the cleverest people if you don't.

CAN you dance, by the way? And if not, don't alibi with with "But I never go dancing, to learn." It's smarter to practice up in advance, and be prepared for any invitation.

Bridge is useful, but not nearly so important. Liking books, theaters or music is much more sustaining for you and your social relationship.

Sports are winning more and more women addicts, because men like having a woman who can share occasionally in daytime diversions. Beware of fanatic, muscle-bound devotion, though. You don't have to be an Olympic champion to enjoy yourself. Here again, the main idea is to be interested and unselfconscious.

Along the "nice, natural modern girl" line, we mention the question of paying your own way. One young man told us he'd known several unusually attractive girls who made a practice of this, when their escorts had thin wallets. Frankly, we think it's a highly delicate problem, and one that works better with casual friends than attentive escorts. There are so many ways to protect a man's pride and his pocketbook without plunking money down on the table. Don't ever save a man's budget at the expense of his pride. Even if he's your own manageable possession, tread lightly and avoid hurting him.

As for the finale of a date—if you're with a new man, suggest going home before he does. That decision should be up to a woman anyway, and it's much better to have him think the evening has been too short than too long. If you want to see him again, be sure to let him know you've enjoyed yourself. As for how you say good-night—be brief (but not curt) about it, with new beaux.

GIRL · ABOUT TOWN

By Dorothy Coleman

THE Bellefontaine street car line is the oldest one in continuous operation in St. Louis and I wanted to see what part of the city it covered, so I boarded a trolley at Primm and Michigan avenues, 7900 south, the southern terminus of the line. The original franchise for the Bellefontaine line was granted by an act of the Legislature Feb. 8, 1864, when the trolleys were horse-drawn. Since then, of course, it has combined with other lines, extended and changed its route. It is now the longest, running a fraction more than 15 miles from the southern terminus to the northwestern at 5700 West Florissant avenue, a distance covered in one hour and 18 minutes except during rush hours.

It was 10:33 when I got on the car in front of the inevitable Loop Cafe. We started north along Michigan avenue, a street wide enough for only a single track so that returning trolleys follow a slightly different route, although through similar neighborhoods. A few blocks from the starting point, an amply-proportioned mother came aboard with two little girls. They were obviously headed for an outing for the mother carried a large picnic basket, bulging under a fresh white tea towel. The children were scrubbed, starched, beribboned and their shoes newly whitened.

WE SWUNG ALONG through an aisle of identical red brick flats, their porchless fronts shaded by well-grown trees, maple and sycamore chiefly, and a few poplars. Houses stood so close to the sidewalk that front lawns could accommodate little other cultivation than the trees. Occasionally a purple clematis creeper, or a pot of tangled petunias, or a precariously-balanced window box, filled with sturdy pink geraniums—and one side-yard, shoulder deep in hollyhocks—gladdened the passing scene.

The scene varies but little the length of the line. The red-brick flat, with its two white stone steps, double doorway of yellow oak, its green shutters, closed almost everywhere, was as prevalent in North St. Louis is in the South. Wherever windows were unshuttered they were hung with lace curtains, the housewife's favorite, from one end of the city to the other. Only a few substantial homes, that might have been called mansions years ago, marked the route, and for the most part they had been desecrated by inappropriate painting, or conversion into furnished apartments, or by the impertinent annexation of a beer parlor sharing a side wall. By far the best-tended places along the route were those taken over for funeral parlors.

WE PROCEEDED west on Wilmington avenue a short distance to East Virginia avenue. An open-air revivalist had stretched his tent on a vacant lot at Osceola and Virginia, announcing that everybody was welcome. Shortly after the trolley turned east on Meramec, it made a stop at the immense yellow brick church of St. Anthony of Padua. Some religious festival had evidently just concluded and a crowd came aboard, even the men carrying Bermuda lilies, which might have been fresh at the start of the service. There was a happy chatter of Italian among the women, many of whom wore ornaments in their dark pierced ears, and a crucifix at their throat.

From Meramec we turned north into California, then east on Geyer avenue, across Jefferson, and north again on Eighteenth street. After a jog on Lafayette we made the City Hospital stop at Grattan street. A man climbed aboard carrying a young boy in his arms, followed by the anxious mother. The man was only doing her a favor and went on back to another seat after settling them near the front entrance, with the words, "Well, I sure hope he gets all right." The boy's great toe on his right foot was bandaged onto a splint. On his other foot he wore no shoe, only a sock, so he couldn't very well hop on that. When they got off way up north, his mother had to carry him, but judging from his spindly legs, I would say he was not much of a load.

ALONG GRATTAN STREET, the slums began, clinging to the skirts of the commercial district. The neat propriety of the red brick flats gave way to slovenliness. Window lights were broken in, unpainted shutters hung at crazy angles, dirty rags patched gaps in screens, dirty children swarmed over yards of hard-packed dirt.

In a minute, however, we turned down Chouteau and into the industrial district, crossing Mill Creek Valley at Fourteenth street, within sight of the Union Station. Across the viaduct, the trolley swung east on Clark, made the stop by the courthouse group and the police station. A gray-haired woman, in a house dress, got on, dabbing at her eyes with a wadded handkerchief. Proceeding north on Ninth,

Cardigans for Vacation Trips

CARDIGANS that are made of very light wool jersey or of downy knitted wool will go into many vacation wardrobes. Some of these are part of twin sweater sets, some are ensembled with shirtwaist frocks, and others are bei gnfeatured as separate sportswear items. The new pastels that have a dusty or a crushed fruit tone are most generally popular.

Next to cardigans as smart wraps to wear over sports dresses or with separate pleated skirts are some striking short sleeved lumber jackets. These have trimmings of matching silk crepe or of grosgrain ribbon. Contrasts of shades are even more popular than the matching ones, there being a decided vogue for the mixing of two pastels—a jacket of one and a skirt or dress of the other.

A Poor Showing

If you are in a group where the people are discussing a topic about which you know nothing, keep as quiet as a mouse and be a good listener. When you get home study up on your subject so that it cannot happen again—but unless cornered, don't try to bluff your way out of the situation,

FASHION FORERUNNERS OF ANOTHER SEASON

LOOK for coats with contrasting yokes, hats so tiny that they seem to belong to dolls instead of to women, long enveloping capes, high hairdresses and elaborately embroidered fabrics when picking fashion trends that are forerunners of another season. The midseason collections in Paris and the newest creations of American designers bring out these style points which will claim some attention in late summer models and be quite pronounced when the autumn arrives.

Also heralded among the style which women will be wanting before so many weeks are skirts that pay little attention to the swing movement of the early summer, old-fashioned emphasis upon ribbon trimming, draped themes for evening wear, more feather headdresses and hat decorations, elaborate jewelry which indicates big money, and a definite emphasis upon very feminine fashions that display pre-war opulence.

The coats which have contrasting yokes are beginning to appear for travel wear and since many of them are made of soft tweed materials are of the type that will carry over into the autumn season. They hang straight from the shoulders with a boxy line or swing freely at the back because of bias cutting. Two shades of one color such as light and dark blue are being used although the true Parisian flair is expressed by such alliances as blue and dark red or bright green and black.

Schiaparelli, who always manages to present some unique ideas in millinery or apparel, is credited with the hats of doll proportions. Since they are small they are worn perched high on the head and give a maximum of attention to coiffures that are brushed up at the back. Trimmed with ribbons, either placed flat or arranged in cocarde formation, these tiny chapeaux offer a diversion from the wide-brimmed models of the current season.

THE LONG, enveloping evening capes which are being worn by some of the best dressed women either extend to the floor or below the knees. There is a swirling movement to these capes which are very circular, obviously to allow plenty of room for the bouffant skirts beneath. Interesting colors are chosen and there is a tendency to adopt reversible themes so that the wrap has a double-duty feature.

The ribbon trimming inclines toward velvet with quaint beading effects having an important place in summer frocks for afternoon and eevning as well as being exploited by the designers who are creating fashions for the next season. Ribbon sashes, bodices that are made of two-toned ribbon, stitched ribbon trimming on capes and coats and a flutter of ribbon at necklines show the tendency toward elaboration.

Feathers not only are being used extensively for hats and capes but for odd little decorations on dresses and suits. Feather birds adorn coat lapels and many of the arresting flowers on evening dresses are made of feathers. Usually the feather ornaments on millinery are discontinued during the summer but the cleverness of the milliners in supplying ribbon-like bands that are made of supple quills as well as flowers assures their continuance on a year-round basis.

Drapery that dates evening dresses as revivals of the pre-war era is variously introduced. Some skirts are draped at the side, some show a flutter of front drapery held in place by bows of ribbon or fabric and others have back panels that are draped into bustle-like silhouettes.

Popularity for Suspender Dress

A SUSPENDER dress that is made of durable cotton is a "must" in most casual summer wardrobes. Some of these dresses are made with divided skirts and others have hemline fullness provided by deep pleat at center front and back. As for materials there is faded blue denim to head the list while peasant linens, printed broadcloths and cotton homespuns are of style importance.

The popularity of the suspender model is due to its versatile features. Not only may it be worn with contrasting guimpes but without any guimpe, the high bib front serving as a bodice, the wide shoulder straps assuring a comfortable fit and the low back guaranteeing a perfect sun tan.

Jewelry Ensembles

Jewelry ensembles of which matching bracelets are an important part are being worn with daytime and with evening costumes. The necklace that is made of frosty looking glass petals in pastel tints is a favorite and is matched by bracelets that are worn on each wrist. Enameled metal belts and bracelets studded with bright stones also are indicative of the trend.

Absorbing Leisure-Time Pursuits Are Weighed in Effort to Find One to Take Place of Collecting Old Boxes.

SOME PERSONS MAKE MONEY BY FOLLOWING THEIR HOBBIES, AS WITNESS THE WOMAN WHO TINTS TURTLES AND SELLS THEM.

READING the other day about the Thibodeaux family of Schriever, La., and their profitable hobby of turtle tinting, reminded me again that I must find a pastime to take the place of my old hobby of collecting empty boxes. Ever since my empty-box collection was branded as a hazard by the fire department I have been considering first one hobby and then another, and in the course of my considerations I have come to the conclusion that what's one man's hobby is another man's headache.

For instance, in my particular case there are these things to consider: (1) The matter of room, since I live in an apartment. (2) The manager of the building, who allows nothing live (like turtles) on the premises. (3) The little item of money, which makes the collecting of such things as Gutenberg Bibles and Ming Porcelain out of the question. (4) Prohibitionist relatives, whose zeal extends even to frowning on such hobbies as collecting beer labels and old whisky bottles. (5) My own slightly off-center personality which makes collecting lapel buttons a more interesting leisure pursuit than philately.

Obviously the matter of room makes many hobbies, such as collecting medieval armor and old sleigh seats, impossible. I have long envied the man up on Cape Cod who not only boasts the world's finest collection of sleigh seats, but also has an estate large enough to house the collection. The man bears to me, sight unseen, the mark of individuality, for who but the most rugged of individualists would even think of collecting sleigh seats? Medieval armor, old autos and cigar store Indians have their lures, especially cigar store Indians which I am told are now selling for around $2000 apiece, depending on condition, age and tribe. But armor, ancient autos and plaster of paris Indians are not for the apartment house hobbyist.

Aside from the space complications, managers of apartment buildings constitute perhaps the next greatest obstacle in the way of my free choice of leisure pursuits. For instance, having given up the idea of collecting sleigh seats I thought I had hit upon the ideal pastime when I read an article on the joys and educational possibilities of raising fungi. But the manager of the apartment building cut short that dream, along with some substitutes I had in mind, namely, indoor bee-raising and the breeding of white mice. The gent in question objected to fungi, bee and mice breeding on the simple grounds that the lease specified no live pets of any kind.

Money is of course an item to be considered in anybody's selection of a hobby. Pennsylvania slipware, jade and death warrants for Salem (Mass.)-witches obviously run into dough. They just naturally have an expensive sound as distinguished from other just-as-interesting-but-not-so-expensive pursuits such as accumulating doorknobs, data on Siamese twins, and decoy ducks. One collection idea which has intrigued me is that of a man who has devoted his life to building up a collection of fishes' earstones, which I can only vaguely describe as something like ichthyic gallstones. You can see that here is a gent who bears the hall-mark of individuality as bravely as does the collector of old sleigh seats. But ichthyic earstones are not for hobbyists hampered by pin-money pocketbooks.

When someone suggested taking snapshots of silly tavern signs—you know, like Ye Old Toddie Shoppe, or Lovie's Liquor Parlor—I thought I had at last found a hobby that would meet all requirements of space, money and individuality, but horror-stricken relatives sprinkled quicklime on that idea before my camera ever clicked a shutter.

"HOW unladylike," they moaned. "And especially when you could collect Currier and Ives lithographs, wallpaper sample books, paper weights or golf tees. Or you could even ask the manager of your apartment if you couldn't have a wee space in the backyard for a pitcher plant garden."

So, there, for the family honor, went another possible hobby.

But enough of my own troubles, which, incidentally, make me all the more envious of folks like the man I know who is building a rathskeller around his collection of old-whisky bottles. They're not just ordinary old whisky bottles—but whisky bottles that have been thrown overboard from ships.

You have to look up to folks who have the ingenuity to think up something out of the ordinary to do or collect; for instance, the New York subway engineer who has four roomsful of mustache cups; the Kansas City man who has 100 pairs of handcuffs; the Massachusetts man who has the world's only collection of authentic death warrants for Salem witches; the New York woman who sold her stamp collection when she found that her assortment of bell pulls was taking up all her available time, and the Iowa man who boasts the world's finest collection of collapsible drinking cups.

Somehow in the face of these unusual hobbies, authorities on how to use your leisure seem to be strangely lacking in imagination. You know the lists these advisers on how-not-to-waste your time send out:

COLLECT:
Flags.
Theater Programs.
Valentines.
Pewter.
Tea Pots.
Samplers.
Spoons.
Butterflies.
Etc.
CRAFTS:
Carpentry.
Printing.
Cooking.
Sewing.
Embroidery.
Etc.
SPORTS:
Walking.
Swimming.
Archery.
Etc.

For folks, who, like myself, haven't been able to get very excited over anything on the approved list, the following substitutes are suggested:

COLLECT:
Old fire buckets.
Fungi.
Lard oil lamps.
Collapsible drinking cups.
Fishes earstones.
Old tavern signs.
Bell pulls.
Antique autos.
Sleigh seats.
Medieval armor.
Elephants—snoots down.
Wishbones of Thanksgiving turkeys, eaten by famous men.
CRAFTS:
Carving cuss words in soap.
Glass blowing.
Turtle tinting.
Making hair bracelets.
MISCELLANEOUS:
Gopher hunting and stuffing.
Study of ancient gypsy languages.
Playing the zither.

But maybe you're saying that your hobby is going to the ball games or the movies and that you can't be bothered collecting fungi or old bell pulls. Well, according to the Leisure League of America, kibitzing is not regarded as a hobby. You've got to do something more substantial in the way of participation than calling the umpire a blind man or buying a ticket to watch Robert Taylor kiss Greta Garbo.

And whether you want a hobby or not, the psychologists say you have to have one "for the sake of contentment of your inner self." And what's more, it has to be a hobby that allows you "psychological freedom." That's why I've about decided to collect lapel buttons.

HERE'S A HOBBY FOR YOU: ONE MAN'S IDEA OF DEEP SEA FISHING.

the trolley crossed Market street, which numerically divides the city north and south. The ride through the downtown district was familiar enough, past such landmarks as the old postoffice.

Comparable to the Grattan avenue section to the south of Market were the poor neighborhoods to the north, along Cass avenue, across Eleventh street, and west on Hebert. Negroes were living side by side with whites. Uneven brick pavement replaced concrete sidewalks. Dirty walls bore obscene chalk scribblings.

Turning north on Thirteenth, then west on Penrose, we emerged again into the security of red-brick flats, St. Louis' counterpart of New York's brownstone fronts. At intervals the residences yielded to shopping districts, as at West Florissant and Warne, after we had made a turn off Penrose to Twentieth and doubled back on East Grand to West Florissant.

O'Fallon Park passed soon on the north, providing glimpses through the trees of boats on lagoons. For several blocks we ran along it and soon after, the trolley made the stop at Hawthorne Gate of Bellefontaine cemetery. A little farther on, we passed its Catholic companion, Calvary Cemetery, separated from Bellefontaine only by the Chain of Rocks highway.

At 5700 west, the trolley reached its northwest terminus and made the loop at 11:50 a. m.

That evening a Bellefontaine car struck and killed a woman crossing the track to her mother's grave in Calvary Cemetery.

Rubber Flowers

Flowers on a bathing suit may seem too fragile for a serious swimmer to consider, but they go into the water with the best of luck because they are made of rubber. You can find a suit that has them attached to the bodice section as though they were a real corsage, or you can get them at the accessories counter and dress up your suit to please your fancy.

Two-in-One Bag

A two-in-one bag that a fastidious traveler will appreciate is among the clever accessories of the summer season. This is a roomy handle bag of pliable leather which has an outside pocket fitted with vanity articles. All of the items necessary for perfect grooming are carried in this pocket, which has a zipper fastening. The bag itself has space for over-night belongings.

PRINCE MIKE ROMANOFF'S career as a movie actor was considerably shorter than his dream of Russian nobility—a dream which has brought him into conflict with the police a good many times. Mike thought up a story called "Ellis Island" for Twentieth Century-Fox and was cast to play himself. Got screen tested and all that sort of thing but as the picture making progressed the studio executives decided that Prince Romanoff didn't look or act like Prince Romanoff at all and relegated him to the side lines. The role remains but when you see "Ellis Island" you will see Gregory Ratoff playing the self-styled Russian Prince. Gregory looks more like Prince Mike than Mike does himself, is the studio explanation. Also, it might be added, he plays the part a lot better.

One Essential Requisite for A Happy Life

Namely, How to Get Along With Other People of Your Acquaintance.

By Elsie Robinson

NEEDED—all over America—courses in personality adjustment. Lessons in human relationship. Practical instruction in the simple essentials of civilized behavior.

Under our present system, a youngster is taught practically everything on earth save the one essential requisite for a happy life—how to get along with other people. Each year sees new novelties added to the curriculum . . . tap dancing, flower arrangement, window trimming, endless devices for enriching one's personal store of information and catching the elusive penny.

But where will you find a class on that most indispensible of all human arts—how and when to keep your mouth shut? Yet it's a safe bet that more careers have been crippled by ignorance on this subject than by all the other handicaps put together.

THINK OF THE various odd eggs whom you know—social domestic and industrial. The people whom everyone dodges at a party or avoids in the office. What's wrong with them? They're smart enough; capable, too. Decent, hard-working, kind-hearted folk, for the most part—desperately eager for popularity and success. Yet they never quite click. Why?

Because they're social misfits. They have never been adjusted to the rest of the human race, and, as a result, they are as out of place in normal human groups as a freshly captured orang-outang.

There's Sam, the Boaster . . . and Gertie, the Gloom . . . Jimmy, the Wisecracker . . . Bob, the Nosey . . . and Tillie, with the nonstop tongue. Also Bert, who uses the slightest statement as grounds for a seven-reel debate . . . or Fred, the Know-It-All Parlor Panics, everyone of them . . . just about as popular as a dose of hives.

And each one of them an arraignment of our educational system. For few, if any of them, would have developed their irritating mannerisms if they had received proper training in their youth.

—o-o—

"DEFENSE MECHANISMS"—that's what psychiatrists call such mannerisms. Psychological cover-ups and compensations for past hurts and humiliations.

Pitiful? Yes? But also powerful pesty—and utterly unnecessary. No one HAS to develop an unpopular "defense mechanism." And no one who is correctly informed and trained WILL develop one. We all have hurts and humiliations. But we all can and should learn how to manage them . . . and how to adjust ourselves harmoniously in spite of them.

And such instruction should be Lesson No. 1 in every human life. No education is worthy of the name unless it has taught—and tested—the student's graciousness, self-control, good sportsmanship and social co-operation. It is not enough to merely observe and give marks on such attributes . . . they should be taught as definitely as math or English lit.

HOW WE ACT is infinitely more important to the other fellow than what we know. You may be a walking encyclopedia, an animated joke book or a record-breaker in your particular line—but if you aren't also a gracious, tactful, self-controlled and comfortable human companion, no one wants you around.

Generally speaking, the 1938 model of Homo Sap is considerably smarter, more capable and better informed than the 1883 output. But in one respect he's gravely lacking, and that is in his manners. We're rapidly becoming the rudest bunch of smarties and showoffs, gabblers, grabbers and bullies the race has ever produced. Our movie manners alone should make the jungle jitterers thank heaven they're stuck to their tails.

No automobile manufacturer would dream of selling a car before it had been tested and perfectly adjusted for smooth action. And no child is fit to face life until he, too, can give a smooth performance.

LET ME SUGGEST

by Josephine Walter

HAVE any of you people who make pilgrimages to New England or the South to study the architecture, or you who haven't but have always longed to, ever made such a tour of St. Louis and its environs? For those of you who haven't, let me tell you a little about where to go and what you will see, for very few of us know the wealth of architectural beauty there is right here in their own home town, or close by.

If the idea of a pilgrimage is bound up in your mind with taking a trip, by all means visit Columbia, Ill. It is all of about 15 miles from the Illinois side of the Municipal Bridge. You take route 67, and you can wear goggles and a linen duster if you desire the complete illusion of a trip to distant parts. And as you drive along, drop from your mind the fact that you are only a short distance from your home town, so that you can obtain the proper perspective of the quaint little village you are about to see:

Columbia is really an exciting town. New England and Southern architecture have already been discovered and appreciated, but it may be from just such a little town as Columbia that Midwest design will finally come to be valued and reproduced. In fact, many of our local architects have been inspired by this type of architecture to design houses based on this precedent. Surely these homes should be as much or more suited to this locale than houses that were originally indigenous to other states.

● NOW A WORD OR TWO about the houses in Columbia. The town itself must have a great sense of local pride, for as you drive down the main street, it presents a well scrubbed, well painted appearance that is a joy to behold. In front of many of the little houses along the main road are little picket fences which impart an impression of quiet and dignity.

My favorite house is one along the main highway, set back from the road behind a beautifully designed iron railing. Some master architect must surely have been born there to design unseen and waste his talents in an obscure town—to paraphrase Gray's immortal line. And yet it will not have been wasted if people go and see and admire his work and possibly be inspired to reproduce some like design.

The house appears to be a one-story affair, symmetrically designed and beautifully proportioned. Up a short flight of steps in the center is a recessed doorway set off by delicately fluted Grecian columns, the door itself being handsomely executed with carved detail. The house is constructed of brick and the whitewashing has a beauty of tone that only age can give. The brick cornice has been worked out with a detail that must be seen to be appreciated. I say the house appears to be a one-story affair, because on the inside one discovers that this is exceedingly deceptive there being not two, but three floors, with many rooms.

● ALTHOUGH this house was my favorite, there are many other exciting houses to be seen in this town. Watch for the quaint little flower urns in the front yards. Gaze at the beauty of many of the roof lines and note, incidentally, that many of these roofs are of the standing-seam variety, usually of tin. Study the detail of the brick work and the execution of the cornices. Be on the lookout for odd little windows tucked up under the roof line. Drive through the back streets until you find a house with a beautiful iron-work porch and grilled balcony.

In addition to the practical value of studying the beauty of these houses for themselves or with the idea of incorporating some of their details into your own house, there is one more item of interest in regard to this town. Lately, I understand, there have been a number of adventuresome young couples who have moved or are contemplating moving to this little town. Now I am not suggesting a wholesale exodus of St. Louisans to Columbia, but for those who are mindful that a depression is upon us, or who want to "get away from it all," this town might offer a solution. Living in such a community might prove economical.

BUT TO GET ON with our pilgrimage. On the way back from this little jaunt, try taking the Davis street ferry, which is along the road and that will land you in St. Louis way down on South Broadway. I never even knew that St. Louis still boasted a ferry boat. You can use your imagination and believe you're crossing a river after a day spent in a New England village.

If, by this time, you have become imbued with the spirit of searching out old houses, wander around South St. Louis after you have landed from your ferry-boat ride. Find the old DeMenil mansion, with its columned porch down which a Scarlett O'Hara might well have walked And the charming little house that I discovered in a little side street, squeezed between two ugly, modern red brick affairs. Go adventuring and find the beauty of things right here in our own vicinity.

Romantic Note in Summer Dresses

"Frothy, Full-Skirted Frocks Have a Way of Renewing Spirit of Youth."

By Kay Daniels

PERHAPS your summer is just beginning, and you are wondering, out of the great melange of styles shown, what to take for yourself. Are you going to let your fancy run free and buy the pretty thing; or be practical and conservative?

We don't pretend to be advisers in this matter. There are too many elements of influence on one side or the other. We can, though, tell you the trend of fashion by choice in smart places, and say, without reservation—do not be afraid of the pretty thing. If you have inhibitions about the wearing of feminine clothes, please cast them aside, and go in for romance while it lasts in dress. These frothy, full-skirted frocks that are so universally popular right now, have a way of renewing the spirit of youth, and there are styles for most any age that are young-looking without being juvenile. Try them while you can, for when the cycle of fashion is finished, you won't dare!

THE FACT that the romantic trend in fashion is far from finished, however, is evidenced by all the formal functions of the season. Country clubs and roof gardens are flowering with summer frocks, and because of the vast number of these full-skirted dresses that are appearing, we nominate this romantic dress as the first fashion success of the season.

The soft sheer dress with the little sleeves, and fabric interest, is a smart compromise between the frothy type and absolutely sleek crepe with its jacket. In this softly flared sheer we have found many stripes to be popular. We counted four one night recently in a single hotel lobby within an hour, all worn by smart women. These were topped by short white coats or fur capes.

In the daytime picture, we have so many successes, first choice is difficult. If we are to take the races and afternoon club meeting as one indication, the printed dress wins by all odds. Printed ensembles that include a dress and long, semi-fitted coat of the same fabric, or the same print, are favored. Dark sheers—either navy or black—are topped by printed or woven jackets in navy and white or black and white, as the dress demands. And in either case, the accessories are dark or all white.

Millinery gives us two extremes, and we see both of them in countless versions worn everywhere. On the one hand, we have our large brimmed hats with the beehive crowns, and even if they do come in $1.98 versions, the finer, expensive straw always looks the money, and the inexpensive hat in the natural straw happens to be one style that can be worn smartly without apology for its price. The other extreme is the small pillbox trimmed or made entirely of flowers. You'll never know how becoming this can be until you've tried it with a printed dress, and veil.

The mere mention of veil conjures a picture of millinery as it is accepted today by young and old alike. Veils are here to stay, if their present success is any indication of popularity.

Handbags are really sensational. The white bag is obviously a leader, but the novelty bag is attracting unusual attention.

DOROTHY STONE, WHO PLAYED THE FEMININE LEAD IN "HOORAY FOR WHAT" MADE A SELECTION OF THIS GOSSAMER SHEER ORGANDIE FROCK WORN WITH COOL, SHEER GLOVES OF FILET NET. THE CHANTILLY LACE PATTERN IS EXQUISITELY DAINTY, AND INCIDENTALLY PROVIDES A LOVELY SETTING FOR FLORAL BOUQUETS, AND THE ANSWER TO THE BRIDESMAID'S DILEMMA. THE GLOVES, IMPORTED FROM CHINA, MISS STONE FINDS SHEER ENOUGH TO STAND THE STEADY STREAM OF FLOOD LIGHTS AND SPOTLIGHTS IN STAGE WORK.

THE DEFT USE OF ROMAN STRIPES FOR AN EFFECT OF SCULPTURED DRAPERY ADDS TO THE TRAILING GRACE OF THE SHEER DINNER AND EVENING DRESS. BRIEF PUFFED SLEEVES, SHIRRED DAINTILY AT THE SHOULDER, ADD AN INFORMAL NOTE CHARMINGLY APPROPRIATE FOR SUMMER, AND THE MODIFIED V-NECK IS DRAPED THROUGH THE BODICE-FRONT AND CAUGHT WITH A JEWELED CLIP. A SOLID COLORED CHIFFON SASH IS LOOPED ABOUT THE WAIST WITH ENDS FALLING SOFTLY TO THE HEM OF THE GOWN.

AT RIGHT—PLAIDS ARE RISING TO FASHION IMPORTANCE FOR BOTH DAY AND EVENING. THIS STRIKING MODEL SUGGESTS A SMART COMBINATION THAT MAY BE EASILY ACHIEVED WITH A COMBINATION OF PLAID TAFFETA AND SHEER BLACK NINON.

Way to Save Flavor When Cooking Fish

Rector Suggests "Paper Bag" Method, Which Also Prevents Odors.

By George Rector

SMALL fish, weighing anywhere from slightly under a pound up to two pounds can be cooked in a certain way that I am sure you will say is the tops. The method, in our language is known as paper bag cookery.

The whole idea of cooking fish in paper is that when the fish is cooked you will find that all the flavor has been retained and that in cooking no fish odors can escape—and also you have no pans to wash. Now, here's the way to do it:

The fish—let's say brook trout, perch, lake bass, mackerel or sea bass—are cleaned, but heads and tails are not cut off the fish. Season inside of fish with a little salt and pepper. You will now cut heavy brown unglazed paper oval shape large enough to envelop the fish. Rub paper on both sides with cooking oil. Fold the paper in the center and lay one fish thereon, bring edges together and fold and crimp them until there is no opening in the paper. Repeat this procedure for each fish.

PLACE THE FISH on the rack in a moderate oven and bake for 20 to 30 minutes, all depending on the size of the fish. A pound size will cook in about 20 minutes. It would be well to open the oven door several times just to see how things are getting on. No doubt you will observe the paper has become scorched, but have no fear that it will catch fire—the cooking oil on the paper prevents that.

In serving the fish place the envelope intact on the plate and let the diner open it. Now watch what happens. The skin of the fish clings to the paper and there you as fine a tasting fish as you ever put into your mouth.

This so-called paper bag cookery need not be confined exclusively to small fish. I have cut slices of halibut, codfish, salmon and swordfish and cooked them in this manner with the same fine results. Just try shad roe sometime cooked this way and I am sure you will like it better than broiled or sauteed.

A nice sauce to serve with it is Sauce Figaro. To one cup of Hollandaise gradually add one-fourth cup of tomato sauce and one tablespoon of finely chopped parsley and mix well.

I DO NOT KNOW how many of my readers would care for calf's head prepared as we did it in Rector's. All I can say is it's worth trying, and you won't be disappointed, either, because it was one of our popular specialties.

Have the butcher cut brain, tongue and meat from a calf's head. The scalp of the head is considered meat. Place all in a large kettle with cold water to cover and let stand for one hour. Drain off water and remove the meat, tongue and brains. Now refill the kettle with water and let the water come to a boil. Add to this boiling water one onion studded with several cloves, one dozen black peppercorns, several outer leaves of celery, a small bunch of parsley, one carrot, sliced and one teaspoon of salt. Put in the kettle the meat only and simmer for a half hour. Then add the tongue and continue simmering for another hour, then add the brains and again let all simmer together — this time for only 20 minutes.

Remove the brains and let them become cool. Remove skin and membranes from the brains and cut in small pieces, to be used in a sauce which I will tell you about in a moment. Now remove the meat and tongue from the hot water in which they were cooked and arrange neatly on a hot platter. The skin and throat cords should be removed from the tongue.

Vinaigrette dressing is invariably served with calf's head. To make it, just add to one cup of French dressing two tablespoons of finely chopped vinegar pickles, one tablespoon of finely chopped chives and if you have no chives use a teaspoon of finely chopped onions and one tablespoon of chopped parsley. Pour the dressing in a small bowl and to it add the brains. Mash and stir until thoroughly mixed. Right now drop in one tablespoon of capers.

Adding the calf's brains to the dressing was a new one on me, until I saw it done right at the table by the maitre d'hotel of that very fine hotel in Cannes, France, the Hotel Majestic.

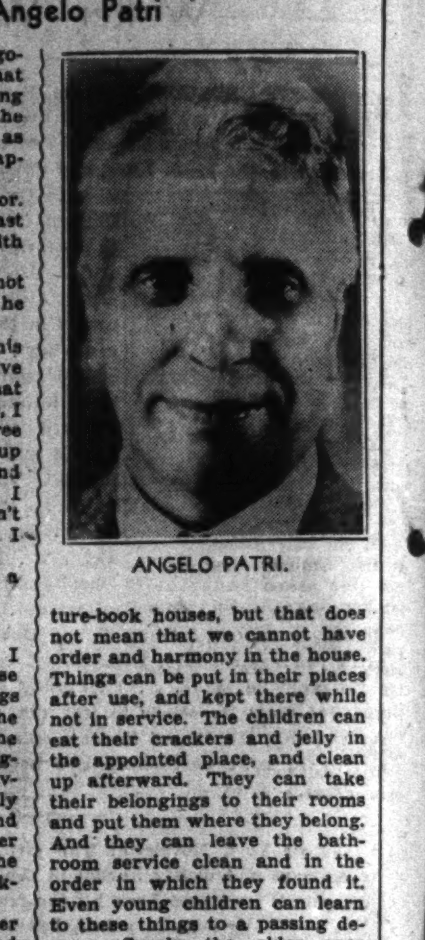
UNTRAINED CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri



ANGELO PATRI.

"HENRY and May are going abroad this fall. What do you think about taking Junior to stay with us for the year. He could go to school as usual, and his mother would appreciate it, I'm sure."

"I wouldn't appreciate Junior. He isn't housebroken. I'm past the age when I can put up with his house ways."

"What do you mean, not house-broken? What does he do? I like him."

"Yes, and I like him. But his mother hasn't taught him to live in a house, and I can't do what she hasn't done. For example, I can't go through this house three times a day and pick things up from where he threw them and put them where they belong. I haven't the energy, and I haven't the time. And, to be plain, I haven't the inclination."

"That's too bad. He's such a nice young man."

—o-o—

"IT IS TOO BAD. When I was over last week the house was a mess. His play togs were lying on the bench in the hall. His shoes were—one by the mat and the other by the dining-room door. His books were everywhere. He had eaten jelly and crackers in the library and the sticky crumbs were all over the place; finger marks on the frames and glasses of the bookcases, just a mess.

"You could track him all over the house by the things he had left behind or the disorder he had made. When he got home from school he threw his hat into the living-room, tossed his books on the stairs and went into the living-room and turned on the radio full force so that I couldn't hear what his mother was saying. 'Let's go to my room. Junior loves this program,' said she and we had to leave our comfortable chairs and sit in her bedroom—she on the bench and I on the small bedroom chair. I went home as soon as I could. I can't stand such ways in a house. I'm too old."

Old or young, who wants to stand it? There are ways of doing things in the house and those ways should be trained into the children. We don't expect picture-book houses, but that does not mean that we cannot have order and harmony in the house. Things can be put in their places after use, and kept there while not in service. The children can eat their crackers and jelly in the appointed place, and clean up afterward. They can take their belongings to their rooms and put them where they belong. And they can leave the bathroom service clean and in the order in which they found it. Even young children can learn to these things to a passing degree. Surely the older ones ought to be able to do them without thinking about them.

ORDER IS a necessity to health, comfort and harmony. There is no reason why children should not be perfectly housebroken in these particulars. People have the right to expect that when children visit in their houses that they respect these ways. Nobody wants to have dirty shoes smearing their cushions. Nobody wants sticky hands daubing furniture and fittings. Nobody wants noisy, selfish children turning a quiet home into a circus. It is not the children's fault that they are this way. They should be trained so that they will not suffer from this misfortune.

Neckline Is Key To Blouse Comfort

WHAT is the secret to blouse appeal? Ask yourself that question. After conducting a little private survey, we find that most women regard the neckline as the key to blouse comfort. "I can't find a flat collar," or, "I simply adore the Vionnet neckline." This interest in necklines isn't by any means a feminine whim of fashion. The choice of the right neckline for one's costume, consistent with becomingness, is one of the important considerations in dress.

Blouses are likely to give us more thought than dress-necklines, because of their association with suit tops and jackets. If the collar is too loose, it may hike up at the back of your suit collar. On the other hand, if you wish the collar to lay flat outside your jacket, make sure it is not cut too high and snug around the back of the neck. Collars with flat points are often becoming to the round face, and the flat rounded collars are very youthful to any face.

One of the newest necklines of the season is the modified Vionnet line, cut high and straight across. The old Vionnet line, or bateau neck, you will remember, slit the neck from shoulder to shoulder. The new one, however, is more becoming, providing a shoulder that is built up to the neck on the sides.

Along the Potomac

By Harlan Miller

WASHINGTON, June 18.

TENDER and touching have been the goodbys uttered among members of Congress and their wives this week. At least a hundred are extremely uncertain whether they will be among those present when the Seventy-sixth Congress convenes next January.

This uncertainty is doubly harassing for the wives. Many of them have become enamored of the Capital's glamour. Others are perplexed about more mundane affairs, such as Junior's schooling or the housing problem.

A few console themselves that the old home town will be restful after a fling at Washington's fleshpots. . . . And at home a former Congressman's wife is apt to be unique, which a Congressman's wife isn't, in the Capital.

—o-o—

An old lady almost wowed the British Embassy last week. She not only asked Lady Lindsay to let her come to the second, or swankier, of the British garden parties celebrating King George's birthday, but also requested that her husband's name be left off the invitation, as he had died not long ago and she wanted to bring another friend.

The Ambassador's wife graciously made both concessions.

—o-o—

● VISITORS from the hinterland take fright easily at Washington's teeming taxicabs, which wheel and circle so dashingly in pursuit of passengers.

"I understand now why Washington street cars travel in squads, even out in the suburbs," said a hinterlander. "It's because they're afraid of the taxicabs."

—o-o—

When Tommy Corcoran's name came up at a White House press conference for the first time this year—the question was about Corcoran's political functions — President Roosevelt laughed it off. Tommy, he intimated, has been used as a bogeyman.

Actually, the secret of Tommy's great prestige, divested of legend and fairy-tale, is that he works 16 hours a day in a town where six hours is nearer the normal work day.

● AT AN EXCLUSIVE Washington club a slightly exhilarated young woman espied a young Japanese at a nearby table.

"You remind me of a young Chinaman I used to know," she said. (Japanese, Chinese, Filipinos and Siamese are often confused by good Americans to whom most Orientals look alike.)

"I am very flattered!" said the Japanese, bowing politely, very low.

CAPITAL CAVIAR: Two-word description of the Washington atmosphere: Transient provincialism. . . . Two young statesmen who returned from a Western flight are complaining that pilots are banking too quickly after taking off, too sharply and too low. . . . The best hors-d'oeuvres I've tasted here are miniature hamburger sandwiches, just one mouthful. . . . Amid all the caviar a Westerner never gets over his weakness for hamburgers.

Potatoes Anna

Potatoes Anna is worth trying sometime. Wash and pare six medium sized potatoes, trimming them into cylinder shape. Cut them in slices one-eighth of an inch thick. You now have rounds of potato slices which should be about one and one-half inches in diameter and one-eighth inch thick. Wash in cold water and dry on a towel. Butter the bottom of a shallow skillet or omelet pan and arrange the potatoes to have the slices overlap each other. The bottom layer becomes the top when the potatoes are turned out, so arrange them nicely, covering the entire bottom of the pan. Spread the layer with softened butter, season each layer with a little salt and pepper and continue to build layers of potatoes and softened butter until about two inches high. Cover pan and cook in moderate oven for one hour. Remove from oven, uncover pan and place a large plate on top, invert pan carefully and there you have a rounded batch of potatoes with a golden browned top.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK -:- -:- -:- By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, June 18.

FRANCES FARMER, whose young loveliness helped "Golden Boy" so much during the past Broadway season, has returned to Hollywood, much against her will, I fear, for she is truly devoted to the old-fashioned theater. The rest of that company has gone to offer the play in London, where Frances' part will be played by Lillian Emerson, an American girl. With Frances went her handsome husband, Leif Erickson, who also plays in pictures. Both these youngsters much prefer the stage—but that movie money sometimes comes in very handy, especially around the first of the month.

AN ASTONISHING re-living of the glorious Old Testament "Book of Ruth" was made here the other day, very simply and very successfully. Anthony Lesich was tossed into jail for passing counterfeit money, and his bail was set at $500. The fake currency was really comic stage money which wouldn't fool a blind man. Then Mrs. Leisch entered the picture. "All right," she said, "where he goes I go—we all go together, even the baby." So she and the 17-day-old infant sat right down in the jail's ante-room, and wouldn't move. Magistrate August Dreyer quickly slashed the bail to $25, and all three Lesiches departed—he with a very fair chance of beating the charge.

WITH THE trans-Atlantic ferry season in full blast, the proud Normandie passied a miracle the other day by unloading, stocking up with humans and supplies, and sailing for France again—all in 15 hours! NO BRANCH of feminine dressing has been so smartened up recently as house clothes—coats and smocks. Those for the current summer are tops to date. They are not only practical, they have much style, and even flatter the figure. In old-time house dresses we didn't even have figures. It must be much pleasanter for Father to get home from business nowadays!

ONE OF OUR most beauteous photographic models, Babs Beckwith, whose real first name is Bethany, is now Mrs. Winthrop Gardiner Jr. The lovely bride is now a member of one of America's most famous clans, who received a royal grant to Gardiner's Island, off Long Island, some 300 years ago. The lovely girl thus shows that the modern camera model is not only able to pluck matrimonially one of the handsomest and most eligible young men about Manhattan, but can move right into history's pages with the same gesture! . . .

Some Untrue Beliefs About Appendicitis

Including One That the Disease Is Caused by Grape or Fruit Seeds.

By
Logan Clendening, M. D.

SUPERSTITIONS regarding appendicitis:

That appendicitis is caused by grape seeds or fruit seeds.

This is an old one that has almost disappeared, and I suppose many people nowadays have lived to mature age without ever having heard it.

I was young and impressionable, however, at the time when appendicitis was being "discovered," which was about 1890-1895, and when the first operations were being done. At that time the idea was widely disseminated that seeds, especially grape seeds, getting into the appendix, would cause appendicitis. I remember quite vividly that for a long while I was ordered to split open the grape in my mouth and get the seeds out (which nearly spoiled my taste for grapes because it makes them bitter).

The idea is not wholly unnatural. A grape seed just about fits into the opening of the appendix and theoretically could easily get in and cause trouble. Besides this, the contents of a diseased appendix often contains a small hard object called a fecalith, which looks a great deal like a grape seed. Appendicitis, however, is not caused by mechanical troubles, but by infection of the wall of the appendix. It is pretty hard to go through the summer without swallowing some fruit seeds and that need not disturb anyone.

THE FACT IS that seeds in the appendix are so uncommon that the surgeon rarely finds one and if he does it becomes a matter of discussion in the hospital. Even so, it is impossible to be certain that the seed was responsible for the inflammation of the appendix.

That appendicitis can be cured by freezing the appendix or heating the appendix, or by oiling the appendix.

The surgeon frequently hears a patient say, "I had an attack of appendicitis once, but the doctor cured it by freezing the appendix." This, of course, means that the doctor treated it by the use of ice packs and the inflammation cleared up by itself.

Another saying is that an attack of appendicitis was cured by heating the appendix. This, of course, means that instead of an ice pack a hot water bag was used. They both act about the same way, contradictory as they are in temperature.

ANOTHER SUPERSTITION about appendicitis, not quite as common as it used to be, is that olive oil will cure a case of appendicitis.

The basis of these beliefs is that an acute attack of appendicitis is not necessarily fatal when no operation is performed. Lots of cases get well and stay well for years. Of the three methods of treatment mentioned, the bad one is olive oil, because the way to treat an attack of acute appendicitis is by rest if surgery is not possible. Anything by mouth stirs it up.

The real danger of these superstitions lies in the fact that the patient is likely to think that his appendicitis is cured forever, just as if he were operated on, when he has been cured of an acute attack. One attack of appendicitis disposes to another, no matter what method of treatment is used, unless the appendix is removed by proper surgery.

Printed Frock

A flower-garden printed frock that looks like a dirndl model one day and a fluffy sash type of costume the next day is made possible by detachable accessories. The dress has a shirred elastic banding to be worn as a girdle as well as a wide sash of the fabric. The elastic girdle gives the dress the look of a dirndl. MATCHING ACCESSORIES FOR SUMMER WARDROBES

MATCHING jackets and hats, turbans and bags and other accessory ensembles are doing their part toward glamorous summer wardrobes. By selecting a vivid color or an ovel printed fabric for these costume accents they may be worn with several different frocks and change the appearance of each.

Schiaparelli's idea of draped turban and bag of the same material is among the clever accessory themes of the season. Star dotted surah silk with the design in white on vivid backgrounds illustrates this trend. The hat has the drapery crossed at the front while the bag is one of those large, crushable models with a fabric handle. Such combinations as fuchsia and white, wine red and white and navy and white are certain to fit into the color scheme of summer fashions.

BAG AND HAT SETS that are made of awning striped cottons look well with white frocks as with those of navy blue. There is a sports emphasis to their appearance which contrasts to the urban quality of the dotted and small patterned surah models. Striped sets consisting of hat and bolero or bag and bolero also are noted in the shops and since striped cottons are playing such an important part in footwear styles, there also is the alternative of allying one of these items with sandals.

Brief bolero jackets and scarfs that are created of colorful prints are interesting additions to white costumes. The polka-dotted theme is featured again in these ensembles, although there are many floral and nautical designs also from which to choose. Ofter the sash is worn wrapped around the head and with clever manipulation can be twisted so that it looks like one of the draped turbans made by an expert milliner.

THOSE WHO LIKE wide-brimmed hats for summer wear will find ensembling possibilities with fabric crowns matched to jackets, belts or kerchiefs. Natural colored rough straw is most successful to combine with rough cottons in vivid shades. Little jackets that are made along cardigan lines or are waist-length and bloused like trim lumberjackets are selected as styles to consider. The jackets, by the way, are worn with contrasting skirts as well as with one-piece dresses.

Bright-colored handbags and matching gloves, footwear and gloves of linen dyed the same shade, and any other alliances that inject gay tones into a costume are popular for summer. Red is regarded as among the most successful accessory shades at present and is being worn with white as well as other colors. A scarlet hue is even more popular than the dark one usually promoted for this season of the year. Corn yellow is another to consider.

Tomorrow You'll Wear—

SATIN at the swimming pools. Three versions of the shimmering beach mode have been shown thus far—i. e. the black satin beach dresses and coats made by Claire Potter, one of our foremost designers, and suggested with yellow accessories. The navy satin sailor slacks and jackets with white. The printed and plain lastex satin swim suits.

Printed rayon satin jersey. In the dark floral prints of small allover design, the bathing suits usually ensembled with short skirts or play suits, are particularly flattering to the complexion and figure.

Chintz dresses—big floral designs—out in the open. You'll see them gardening, beach sunning, and dancing after dark.

Trifari's enameled boutonnieres with printed dresses. Anemones that blend from blue to purplish hues; sprays of lilac, gardenias that look freshly cut; narcissus, and even American Beauty roses; leaves and stems are beautifully set with brilliants.

White linen trimmed with black velvet is the suggestion of both Piquet and Paquin in their recent collections showing summer suits and coats.

Rubber Bathing Suits

Designers of bathing suits are proving that rubber can be as versatile as fabric. You see this demonstrated in the one-piece rubber suits that have flaring skirts over form-fitting foundations.

Varied Prints Available for Summer Garb

Small Motifs and Little Floral Effects Make Appropriate Afternoon Dresses.

WE have always looked with a bit of envy upon the dressmaker who sets about to make a printed dress. It's plain to be seen that the approach to the job is cheerful and easy on the nerves, for here is one instance where there are no trimming problems or small details to worry over.

We might reflect, nevertheless, on the beauty of printed silks, and the variety of prints available for so many different dresses. Silk firms are turning out the most attractive small prints for this season's dresses that we have ever seen, in both monotone and multicolor effects. Small motifs and little floral effects make appropriate afternoon dresses with square or deep V-necklines and perky upstanding shoulders, or they adapt themselves equally well to the tailored two-piece dress that is so popular now for general wear about town.

In connection with the afternoon styles, as we have said before, no trimming is necessary. A good fit, and nicely finished hems or rolled edges will give your dress that expensive look. In the shirt frocks, however, you may buy the jewel-toned studs for the front of the dress, letting the color match the print.

Monotone prints, on the other hand, are always effective when combined with white, but again, care should be taken not to overdo the white touch. Too much of it will spoil the effect. A single white collar, or white flower will suffice. Or omit the white trimmings and wear instead a white hat and gloves.

Black and white prints are sometimes trimmed with black velvet by the exclusive dressmaking trade. A small velvet collar and belt, for example, add a smart touch. Incidentally, the Parisian dressmakers, are adding short black velvet boleros.

DRAMA MOTION PICTURES MUSIC

'White Horse Inn' Rebuilt For the Park

New York Spectacle Is Municipal Opera's Extravaganza of Week.

ANOTHER of the big Center Theater musicals from New York makes its appearance at Municipal Opera tomorrow night when "White Horse Inn" has its first appearance in the city. "White Horse Inn" occupied the Center from Oct. 1, 1936, to April 10, 1937.

"The Great Waltz," first of the Center musicals, all of which are treated as spectacle entertainments and therefore of a type easily adapted to the big stage of the Municipal Theater, opened the 1937 season in Forest Park. "Virginia," most recent of the series, is scheduled for the week of July 4 and there is a strong possibility that "Gentlemen Unafraid," which had its tryout here two weeks ago, will be the Center's show for the coming season. At least the Kern-Hammerstein-Harbach operetta is being rewritten now with that theater in mind.

"White Horse Inn," although new to St. Louis, has a long history. It was originally a German operetta in the '90s and was brought to this country by the Frohmans in 1899. Later the Frohmans produced it in England. Several seasons ago, with a new book by Dr. Hans Muller and music by Ralph Benatzky, it was revived as a musical extravaganza in Berlin. Success followed in Paris, Vienna, London and other cities.

With Municipal Opera's repertory committee interested in it, even before it was brought to the Center, the show was obtained for that production and was staged there at a cost of $500,000. Part of the attraction of the show was its scenic display, with the inside of the theater reconstructed as a Tyrolean village. It was largely because of this feature that the show never was taken on tour.

The full width of the Municipal Theater stage will be used for the construction of an Alpine panorama. Much emphasis is placed, too, on mass effects—the full cast on the stage in colorful peasant costumes and dances of many types, including the characteristic "Schuhplatter." Novelties will be offered in comedy cows and a synthetic rainstorm.

The more successful song numbers are "Your Eyes," "It Would Be Wonderful," "The White Horse Inn" and "I Cannot Live Without Your Love."

THREE of the Center Theater cast will take their original roles here. These are Billy House, rotund comedian, who visited the park previously for "No, No, Nanette"; Tommy Gavin, boy actor, who was here in "Prince of Pilsen" and "Babes in Toyland," and Melissa Mason, comedienne, who is new to Municipal Opera, although she has had long experience in Broadway musicals and on the vaudeville stage.

Al Trahan, eccentric comedian, who won an outstanding triumph in "Louie the 14th" last season, will repeat his famous piano act, as part of the duties of Leopold, the headwaiter in "White Horse Inn." Gladys Baxter, prima donna favorite, returns as Katarina Vogelhuber, proprietor of the inn.

Jack Sheehan is teamed with Miss Mason, Ronald Graham is the romantic young Donald Hutton, English barrister; Joseph Macaulay does a character study of the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria. Other principals are Annamary Dickey, Detmar Poppen, Frederic Persson, Lori Trivers, Earle MacVeigh, Jerry Sloane and Al Downing. A European comedy dance team, Fenwick and Cook, will make its Municipal Opera debut, presenting Bavarian dances.

The plot deals with the comic waiter's love for the beautiful proprietor of White Horse Inn and her devotion to the young lawyer. The celebrated White Horse Inn overlooks one of the many lovely lakes in the Austrian Tyrol.

The lawyer, in turn, loves a visiting manufacturer's daughter and romantic affairs are in a terrible state until the Emperor arrives to stay for the opening of the shooting season. The Emperor's advice to Katarina about marrying in her proper station starts setting things right and leads to a satisfactory conclusion.

Beginning Monday night, June 27, Municipal Opera will revive Jerome Kern's musical triumph, "Roberta," which drew more than 71,000 patrons on its only previous Forest Park presentation, in 1935. Ray Middleton, baritone, will be seen in his original role of John Kent, while Nancy McCord returns to play the part of Stephanie, her 1935 season role. Other members of the notable cast are Fifi D'Orsay, screen comedienne; Jack Durant, Helen Raymond, Walter Long Jr., Amy Revere, Ethel Morrison and Joseph Macaulay. The musical play also will present William Dollar, former East St. Louisan and now principal dancer of the New York Metropolitan Opera, and his partner, Leda Anchutina, Russian ballerina.

'Robin Hood', in Color, Creates Excitement Anew

By Colvin McPherson

WITH much juvenile hand-clapping and cheering, "The Adventures of Robin Hood" flashed into view at the Ambassador Theater on Friday and soon established itself as a great experience for those present. But the film is more than just something for the kids. The earnest workmen at the Warner Bros. studio have done such a fine job, have told their story with such gusto, that the picture can be called one of the year's biggest accomplishments.

Memory of the Douglas Fairbanks version has grown a little dim, even if the impression of it was gained at an impressionable age, but the Technicolor opera of the week seems to have it all over Mr. Fairbanks' very worthy effort. The color itself is a big asset.

The time of 1191 A. D. was a pretty dressy era, for those who could afford it, and "The Adventures of Robin Hood" glitters with the trappings of Norman nobility. Cavalcades riding through the countryside, banquets in the great halls, costly pageants of coronation all give opportunity for the cameras to catch a brilliant display. The very height of glory is reached in an archery contest, wherein Robin Hood is trapped by Sir Guy of Gisbourne and Prince John.

But color would avail very little if the story failed to hold attention. In this respect, the Warners' staff has wrought its greatest miracle. "The Adventures of Robin Hood" proceeds with the ease of an entirely new tale. Most of the well-beloved incidents are there but so deftly fitted into the story that each contributes to the general movement.

The dialogue is spirited, yet in keeping with the characters. The major actions have a good build-up to foreshadow them and having reached a climax, are not cut off bluntly but die out in the rise of some new event. For these attributes, the screen play writers, Norman Reilly Raine and Seton I. Miller, share credit with the two directors, Michael Curtiz and William Keighley.

Like the Fairbanks picture, this one is full of stunts—sword fights, castle-climbing and assaults in which the merry men drop out of trees on Sir Guy's warriors. For once in his screen career, Errol Flynn has a role, as Robin Hood, which can use all his swagger and swash-buckling. He is an excellent brigand, swordsman, chair-tosser, table-upsetter and Romeo.

Other characters are wisely chosen. Basil Rathbone, as Sir Guy, is the arch villain, a man who can sneer and be sneered at, with pleasure. Claude Rains is Prince John, Olivia de Havilland the romantic interest, Maid Marian; Alan Hale as Little John and Eugene Pallette as Friar Tuck are the right idea. Herbert Mundin, Una O'Connor and Ian Hunter are of important support.

Out to the last detail, "The Adventures of Robin Hood" is carefully wrought. The archery contest has the air of a genuine contest and not a bit of Hollywood staging, the killings by shaft or sword are convincing, the big barbecues and feasts during rest periods are appetizing. And for some reason or other, it is dreadfully important that the tyrants shall be overcome and the good King Richard the Lion-Hearted restored to his throne.

Youngsters seemed to approve the second picture at the Ambassador also. It features Bonita Granville, is called "Beloved Brat" and gives examples of how wealthy parents mistreat their children — making them eat spinach and placing them under the care of mean old butlers. Under such brutality, Bonita goes really bad and gets in juvenile court and is taken somewhere and reformed. If you haven't strong sympathies for her, you may think the picture is written in a very obvious manner, directed carelessly and acted rather awkwardly.

Blockade.

THE first Spanish War picture to make drama out of those horrors with which all correspondents, professional and amateur, have been filling their dispatches, has come to Loew's. It is called "Blockade" and concerns itself with only an incident of the war, a fragment of human suffering rather than the conflict which is shouted in print every day.

Hollywood, with its well-known wish not to offend, has been careful to straddle the issue on all previous occasions and has treated the war as only a little red tape hindering Loretta Young or Dorothy Lamour in getting about the country. Now Walter Wanger, who never has hesitated to venture into a new field, films "Blockade" and there is no doubt that the people are resisting oppressors or that the favored side is that of the Loyalists. Even Mr. Wanger doesn't come out and say, "This picture deals with only one slight phase of the Spanish civil war, which is 10,000 times more horrible than even this," but he does move a little nearer that than any predecessor.

"Blockade" introduces Henry Fonda, the poetic peasant, to Madeleine Carroll, the beautiful spy, and they love each other. This plot, it will be seen, has something in common with "The Firefly" (1937 version), and with many another boy-and-girl affair. Ultimately, Henry is a Lieutenant and Madeleine still a spy in the small port of Castlemare, cut off from the rest of Spain. The populace is starving, for the enemy sinks food ships.

The real meat of "Blockade," therefore, is the story of a food ship. Madeleine is to aid in getting it sunk, Henry wants to save it. Madeleine's heart is moved by the sight of starving children and she turns to the side of the oppressed. After enough melodrama, the food ship gets into port.

"Blockade" is not a great picture but it reaches toward greatness. It has a thrilling finish in the arrival of the ship and some glimpses of suffering which, while not enough to make anybody squirm in his seat or give him nightmares, at least make the Spanish war a little more real. William Dieterle's direction hasn't much edge on it and some scenes—Leo Carrillo weeping about his lost sheep or Fonda making his appeal to the audience at the finish—lose their force by being badly handled.

Even in trying to shock, Dieterle has an unhappy habit of putting people up before a camera and letting them show off their emotions as directly as if they were appearing in Class Day exercises.

"Storm in a Teacup," which was "Storm Over Patsy" on Broadway last spring, is Loew's second feature. Made in England, it shows what a stir a smart-aleck reporter causes when he goes into a Scottish city and defends, in print, a poor woman whose dog has been seized for her non-payment of the license fee. Rex Harrison is the reporter, Vivien Leigh the daughter of the Provost, whom Harrison attacks. The matter gets to be of more and more importance until finally the whole country has taken it up.

The picture is a comedy, of course, a satire on the pompousness of public officials. It has a trial scene at the finish which is done as only the British could do it, clowning with their own dignity.

Prison Nurse.

For matinees at least, the St. Louis Theater offers a triple, not a double bill. "Prison Nurse" is a romance of the big house, with some effectiveness in realism. "The Devil's Party" is a mixup about a night-club owner, Victor McLaglen, and a pair of murders, nowhere exciting. "Cherokee Strip" is a Western in which Dick Foran wipes out wickedness in the Indian Territory. This last feature is available only once a day, in the afternoon.

Instead of the revival of "A Farewell to Arms," which is still in the cards, the Missouri Theater is continuing to show "Josette" and "Kidnapped." For three weeks or more, it has been the opinion of this reviewer that the first is a light, but diverting musical comedy and that the second is a poor lot of bosh substituted for a pretty fair story by Robert Louis Stevenson.

"Lenin in October," Russian film, presenting incidents in the life of Vladimir Ilyich Lenin, Soviet leader, in the revolutionary days of 1917, will be shown at the S'Renco Screening Room, 3143 Olive street, at 7:30 p. m. and 9:30 p. m., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, under auspices of the Vanguard Bookshop.

Boris V. Shchukin portrays Lenin, a performance for which he has received the highest award of the Soviet Government, the Order of Lenin. Also represented are Stalin, Trotsky and other revolutionary leaders. Mikhail Romm directed. The picture has the usual superimposed English translation.

Strickland Retained By Washington Group

F. Cowles Strickland, former director of the Little Theater, has been re-engaged by the Washington (D. C.) Civic Theater for the coming season. Last winter was Strickland's first in Washington and the second season for the group.

Beginning last October, Strickland directed "Excursion," "Yellow Jack," "The Distaff Side," "George and Margaret," all of which have been done by the Little Theater here; Paul Green's anti-war play, "Johnny Johnson," and the study of the housing problem, "One-Third of a Nation." The last, which derives its title from an address by President Roosevelt, was described as a "rousing and exciting show" by one reviewer.

A season resume by the same writer, Harry MacArthur, says that production of "Excursion" brought to the attention of the Civic Theater audience that "the group had a director who could reach into a script and pull out all the elusive qualities that were in it."

Civic Theater Casts Second Production

Busily engaged with rehearsals of its first play of the season, "Penny Wise," to open July 6, the Civic Theater of St. Louis has completed the casting of its second production, "Volpone," set for July 20.

Gordon Sommers and John Weaver will play Volpone and Mosca, the two principal characters. Bruce McFarlane, Leo Lederer and Edward Oresman are three rascals who dupe and are duped by Volpone and Mosca; Mary Alice Hart, Robert Karnes, Margaret Mooney, Frank Corley and Stoddard Stanton are other principals.

Little Symphony To Feature Horn Concerto Friday

MOZART'S Horn Concerto, with Edward Murphy as soloist, will be a feature of the Little Symphony's second concert in its series of five, in the Washington University Quadrangle at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening.

Murphy, first horn player of the ensemble, is also principal horn player of the St. Louis Symphony and has lately been conductor of the St. Louis Scholarship Orchestra. Although the French horn of Mozart's day was a much cruder instrument than it is now, the composer was so skillful in his composition that there is no suggestion of monotony or disadvantage in comparison to more recent music.

Other works of note on the program are Handel's Concerto Grosso in D Major and Sibelius' "Pelleas and Melisande" Suite. The Sibelius Suite, written originally as incidental music for Maeterlinck's play, is being performed for the first time in St. Louis. Although Sibelius is classed as a contemporary, the mood and sentiment of this music are those of the romantic era.

Truly contemporary are Paul Hindemith's "Huntsman of the Palatinate" and Quincy Porter's strongly rhythmical "Ukrainian Suite." The concert will be conducted by Hans Lange.

Valentino's Life As Film Subject

Revivals of Rudolph Valentino pictures have proved so successful this summer that one Hollywood producer, Edward Small, has announced he will film "The Life of Rudolph Valentino," a dramatic biography of the screen hero of the 1920s. Signed for the leading role is Jack Dunn, champion ice skater, who strongly resembles photographs of Valentino.

Play Producer Plans a Busy Fall Schedule

Jed Harris, With "Our Town," to Credit Now, Maps Other Conquests.

NEW YORK, June 18.
By the Associated Press.

JED HARRIS, who has been vanishing periodically from the theater since he began producing his record string of hit plays with "Broadway" in 1926, startled Broadway from its summer sleep today with the assurance that he would be "more active than any time in his career come fall and the new season."

The reason for this advance advice of furious activity behind the footlights is not alone inspired by his production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" winning the Pulitzer prize this year. Nor is it brought on by the fear that he must double his activities to support the new yacht he has just bought, he having owned a yacht once before which disgruntled playwrights charged he bought solely for the purpose of hauling their manuscripts out beyond the 12-mile-limit to dump them overboard.

The truth is that this meteoric manager is back again with the vitality and crusading spirit that characterized him during those seasons in the late 1920's when he produced not only "Broadway," but also such hits as "The Royal Family," "The Front Page," "Coquette," "Serena Blandish" and others.

He is not interested in the theater alone now as he used to be. Where, 10 years ago, his conversations were almost exclusively confined to the theater, now he passionately discusses foreign affairs, struggles for free speech, the Spanish situation. Several times he has intervened to assist the return and rehabilitation of American volunteers on the Loyalist front in Spain.

"I am glad to get back into the theater," he said today, "because I think the American theater is the only place left in the world where you still have absolute freedom of speech and the power to make comment without fear or intimidation."

As for the new plays which he will start into rehearsals at the end of this summer, Harris has about a dozen under option and the probability is that he will present about a half dozen of these before next spring.

Just as prolific this fall will be the author of his Pulitzer prize production. "Our Town" is Wilder's first play, although he had won the Pulitzer award once before with his novel, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," in 1928.

It was during this latter moment that Wilder and Harris first met, despite the fact that they had been fellow students at Yale University. The two met on a train coming up from Florida and Harris, after congratulating him for the award for the novel, suggested that he should write a play.

Nothing happened about that until last year when Harris was in London and heard that Wilder was in Switzerland writing a play. The two met in Paris and Harris bought "Our Town" on the strength of the first act.

Now Wilder, wherever he is — the safe bet is that he is on a walking tour—has finished a new play called "The Merchant of Yonkers," and he has two others called "Homage to P. G. Wodehouse" and "The Fifty Dollar Play," which should be in the final stages of revision.

"Our Town" has been playing on Broadway since last Feb. 5 and a safe guess is that it will continue for many more months.

The usual procedure is that a producer with a prize-winning hit like this would immediately start several road companies on tour. But Harris says there will be no performances of the play outside New York until the Broadway engagement is complete.

THERE was a time upon Broadway when actors merely had to complain because many playwrights insisted upon being master amateur parlor comics or drawing room tragedians. Today all that is gradually changing as authors are more and more becoming professional performers, demanding an Equity salary at the stage door and pocketing a playwright's royalties as they pass the box office on their way out.

This movement began several seasons ago, but notable is the example that in the coming week of July 25 Sinclair Lewis will play the role of Doremus Jessup in his own play, "It Can't Happen Here," when it is presented in the Summer Theater at Cohasset, Mass.

This will be the first time that red-headed novelist Lewis has ever been an actor, but if only he hadn't been an amateur performer he might have been playing the leading role in the drama that won the Pulitzer prize this year.

For when producer Jed Harris first read Thornton Wilder's prize drama, "Our Town," his immediate impression was that a man of the type of Lewis should play the commentator part. Not knowing Lewis' desire to be an actor, he wired Frank Craven in Hollywood offering him the part which he is now playing and most satisfactorily so.

Great Plays Broadcasts for Schools Planned

Will Begin in October and Run Into May—Orson Welles' Project—Here and There—Studio Gossip.

AN extension of the NBC's Great Plays series of the past season is planned as an educational project, designed especially for broadcasting during the school year from next October until May. The series will include 28 of the plays recognized as masterpieces. It will follow a chronological order, beginning with the dramas and comedies of the Greek theater and going on through the old miracle and morality plays, those of the Italian school, French, Russian and Scandinavian drama and at least eight plays chosen from the best of the contemporary theater. It is planned to schedule the broadcasts at times best suited to school hours, and students will be invited to analyze each program. The NBC will prepare a study manual giving the background of each play for distribution on request to students and teachers of English and the drama in high schools and universities.

ORSON WELLES, who is to produce a First Person Singular dramatic series on the CBS chain, with the help of the Mercury Theater, starting Monday night, July 11, has named his projected programs to suit the technique he plans to use. Neglected by radio, this technique is admirably suited to it, Welles believes, because it reduces the difficulty of establishing identities of characters and locales through dialogue. "It is uninteresting," he says, "to hear a person say 'Good evening, Jarvis, here it is 5 o'clock in our lovely home in Sussex. Let's all sit before our huge stone fireplace and have tea!' On the other hand, when a person comes on the air and says, 'This happened to me,' you've got to listen. Here we have a character presenting the meat of his story from the outset. The problem of introducing other characters can be handled by the narrator, who also is in a position to weld the various episodes together."

PAUL WHITEMAN'S program will be shifted July 13 from Friday to Wednesday night, at 6:30, replacing Ben Bernie, who will conclude his series July 6. Joe Penner will wind up his series next Sunday. . . . Boake Carter will change his time July 4, moving to the 5:45-6 o'clock spot Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays on the same stations. . . . Tommy Riggs and his Betty Lou will go off Rudy Vallee's program after June 30, with a run since last August to their credit. . . . Francis X. Bushman, star of the silent movies, who now is a radio serial actor in Chicago, is being considered for a film comment program similar to one he broadcast on WGN, Chicago, for five years. . . . The voice of Lucille Manners, soprano of KSD'S Friday night concerts, was heard on two Cincinnati stations at the same time the other day. She was singing in her regular concert on one station while a transcription for which she had talked was being broadcast on the other station. . . .

The Attorney-at-Law serial, with Henry Hunter, of the movies, and Betty Winkler, the radio actress, starring, will replace Fibber McGee for nine weeks, beginning July 5 . . . Grace Allen and George Burns will go off the air Aug. 1 for the remainder of the summer, and will start a CBS net series in the fall with Ray Noble again leading their orchestra. July 4, Glen Gray's orchestra will replace that of Jan Garber on their program . . . Eddie Cantor, whose final broadcast is set for June 27, plans to sail July 6 for Europe. He will return July 27, go to Hollywood about Aug. 5 and return to the air Oct. 3 . . . Irene Beasley, the Southern singer, will write, act and sing on her own program designed for women of the rural communities, starting July 4 on the CBS net . . .

DON AMECHE plans to take an eight-week vacation from radio after the Charlie McCarthy hour broadcast of Sunday, July 3. Edward Arnold, the movie actor, will replace him as master of ceremonies until his return . . . Alice Brady will be Al Jolson's guest Tuesday, June 28 . . . When Edward G. Robinson brings his Big Town programs back to the CBS net after a summer vacation, the cast will be the same as now, with Claire Trevor playing the feminine leads . . . Rachel Carlay, star of KSD's Sunday night Manhattan Merry-Go-Round, was featured in a gala broadcast on WRC, Washington, June 13 . . . The Hollywood Hotel will go off the air until fall after the broadcast of next Friday.

Andre Kostelanetz, whose program starring Grace Moore will be concluded next Wednesday night, plans to sail with his bride, Lily Pons, next Thursday for a vacation concert tour and radio work in South America. He has arranged for three broadcasts on Radio El Mundo, Buenos Aires, on Sundays, July 31 and Aug. 7 and 14, which will be transmitted by short wave and rebroadcast on the CBS net. Miss Pons may sing in the concerts, for which a special orchestra is being assembled in Buenos Aires . . . After a run of 29 weeks, the Court of Missing Heirs series will be suspended for the summer after Sunday night July 3.

A demonstration of the way the 71-year-old volunteer fire company of Milstadt, Ill., answers alarms within a radius of four to six miles from the village will be part of KMOX's farm period next Friday morning, between 5:30 and 7 o'clock. The company, composed of 25 business men, covers fires at all hours with a speedy fire truck of 400-gallons a minute pumping capacity, and is the only one in Southern Illinois which offers fire protection to farmers of its area.

A new Onward Road series at 6:15 p. m. Sundays on KMOX consists of interviews with St. Louis business leaders. Tonight's speaker will be Robert L. Lund.

The Marshall Family programs, at 10:15 p. m. Thursdays on KMOX(will take the family to Little Symphony and Civic Theater performances for the next few broadcasts.

Paul Whiteman's orchestra and the Columbia Symphony Orchestra will be merged under the direction of Whiteman and Howard Barlow for a concert of the late George Gershwin's music which will take the place of Everbody's Music on the CBS net and KMOX Sunday afternoon, July 11. Maxine Sullivan, the blues singer, and Roy Bargy and Walter Gross, the pianist, will be among the soloists.

Philco Features Mystery Remote Control for Sets.

A portable remote control for radio sets, which operates without wires and can be set on a table anywhere in a house, held in one's lap, or carried out onto a lawn or into a garden, was among features of the new 1939 Philco radio sets displayed for dealers by the Artophone Corporation, distributer, at a four-day showing the past week. It is called the "mystery control," and is an exclusive Philco development. It may be used with two new Philco console models, the 55RX and the 116RX, and with a radio-phonograph model called the 116PCS.

The control, which is housed in a small, light box easily held in one hand, will operate only the one set to which it is tuned. It can not affect another set anywhere. It is not necessary that the set be in sight. With a flick of a finger, one can change the set from station to station with choice of any of eight stations, make the volume louder or softer, or turn the set off. There is no limit to the number of times the control box will shift the set back and forth from station to station.

In addition to the sets designed to be operated by this wireless remote control, a complete line of push-button automatic tuning Philcos was shown to the dealers, together with a wholly new line of automatic record-changing radio-phonograph combinations, one of which can be operated with the control box.

There is also a complete line of newly designed Philco battery sets, with some of them push-button tuning.

A new push-button tuning Philco auto set also was announced.

Many Improvements in New RCA-Victor Sets.

Features of the new RCA-Victor radio sets, which were shown to dealers the past week by the Interstate Supply Co., distributer, and will be shown to other dealer groups today at luncheon and dinner meetings at Hotel Chase, include electric tuning for every price range, eighteenth century and console grand cabinets, a noise eliminating aerial system, Victrola push button and a new electrical "magic voice" for improved tone quality. Altogether, 44 improvements are incorporated in the new sets and the numerous types of Victrolas and Victrola radio-phonograph combinations. The push button tuning is speedier than in previous models. Included in the dealer showing were the new RCA-Victor radio tubes.

The noise eliminator device is built into all sets having eight or more tubes. In combination with a new aerial system in sets having 10 or more tubes, it acts to cancel out man-made interference. All of the new foreign-band electric tuning models of six or more tubes have an extra push button control which instantly connects the set for use with a Victrola attachment.

A new automatic record-changing device in the RCA Victrolas handles eight 10-inch or seven 12-inch records or a mixed loading of both sizes if they are perfectly flat and in good condition, and there is also a new turntable drive and a new crystal pickup. There is a complete line of new cabinets, including high fidelity models.

Improvements have been made in many parts of the sets, including new overseas dial, full vision dial, automatic push button tuning, magnetite frequency locking transformers, triple-cone fidelity speakers with dust screens, rubber floated chassis, adjustable selectivity, push-pull audio, air trimmers and other things.

Static-Rejecting Aerial In General Electric Sets

A built-in beam-a-scope aerial, which does away with outside antennas and is designed to shut out man-made static and make reception quiet, is among features of the new General Electric radio sets. Another feature is automatic program preselection, by which one can set up a list of programs for as long as 12 hours in advance on

It will be McCarthy's fifth network description of heavyweight bouts in which Joe Louis has been a principal. In addition to the network broadcasts, the fight will be described by English, Spanish, Portuguese and German announcers for short wave broadcasting by W3XAL, 6.10 megacycles; W2XAD, 9.55 meg.; W8XK, 11.87 meg.; W2XAF, 9.53 meg., and W1XK, 9.57 meg. W3XAL will broadcast for Spanish-speaking countries and W2XAD for Portuguese-speaking regions. The German report will be rebroadcast by the Reichs Rundfunk Gesellschaft. Stations in Cuba, Puerto Rico, Mexico and various South American countries will pick up the short wave broadcasts for rebroadcasting.

TED WEEMS and his orchestra and entertainers, playing locally, are broadcasting on KSD at 11 o'clock every night, except Monday, when they are scheduled at 9:45 and 11:00, and will continue on the same schedule through June 26. His entertainers are Elmo Tanner, whistler and tenor; Perry Como, tenor; Red Ingle, comedian; Parker Gibbs and "Country" Washburn, and 13-year-old Mary Lee, singer.

Tomorrow night's Public Hero No. 1 dramatization will be built around the holdup of a Florida bank, the kidnaping and murder of its cashier and the capture of the robbers.

William Montgomery McGovern, professor of political science at Northwestern University, has titled his Roving Prof talk set for 5:45 p. m. Tuesday on KSD "In a Buddhist Monastery." McGovern managed to explore the Forbidden City, Lhasa, in Tibet, and at one time entered the Buddhist priesthood.

Tommy Dorsey will drop the amateur swing contest feature of his program for Wednesday night's broadcast on KSD, and, instead, will feature typical Dorsey arrangements.

Many golfers are taking part in the qualifying rounds of KSD'S hole-in-one competitions, the finals of which are transcribed Friday evenings for broadcasts by the station at 6 p. m. Saturdays. The qualifying rounds are conducted by KSD at a suburban golf tee. The 10 contestants who come nearest to the cup with their shots are selected as the finalists for the Friday competition. Ted Adams, who represented St. Louis amateurs in the U. S. Open at Denver, and Bob Cochran, former State champion, recently won second place, as did the Fehlig brothers, Vincent, Lou and Gene. Mrs. Doris Spaulding and Miss Georgia Dexheimer have been among the first place winners.

TUESDAY night's Trailing the Highway Patrol dramatization, set for 9:30 on KSD, will be titled The Kenwood Case. It will deal with the kidnaping and murder of Dr. James Davis near Willow Springs, Mo., and the steps through which the Highway Patrol and police decided that the criminal was a local man and brought about his capture, conviction and sentence to death.

The story of the eccentric who believed that he was Norton I, Emperor of the United States and Protector of Mexico, will be dramatized in KSD's Death Valley Days period Friday night. With a white beaver hat for a crown, and a uniform of faded regimentals with tarnished epaulets, he was a familiar character for 23 years in San Francisco, managing to enjoy free transportation, free admission to all places of amusement, free meals and free lodging.

Missouri Baptist Student Union members, returning from the student retreat at Ridgecrest, N. C., will take part in a broadcast from Washington at 2:30 p. m. on KMOX. George Hale, recently graduated from William Jewell College, will deliver a two-minute sermon. Miss Lena Mae Hicks of State Teachers' College, Springfield, will speak on "Christ at Work on My Campus." Miss Nadine Sanders and Norman Nunn of Southwest Baptist College, Bolivar, will sing a duet with Miss Lillian Wilkins of Central College, Fayette, as accompanist. At 7:30 on the WJZ net, Mrs. Edna Eaton Wilson, a farmer's wife at Ripley, Ok., adjudged by a rural magazine to be the best country newspaper correspondent of 1938, will be interviewed.

Tuesday, at 7:30 p. m. on the WJZ net, "A More Perfect Union," a play dealing with the critical days in the formulating of the Federal Constitution, will be part of a broadcast including an address by Arthur T. Vanderbilt, president of the American Bar Association, and a pick-up at a combination tercentenary and Ratification day observance at Exeter, N. H. A new radio game, called Quiz, is set to start at 8 p. m. on KWK and the Mutual net.

Wednesday, in addition to the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling fight at 8 p. m., on KSD and other stations, the Cavalcade program will dramatize the landing of the first Swedish settlers in Delaware. Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel of Iowa has promised to play himself in a Josh Higgins of Finchville program at 8:30 a. m. Joe Du Mond, who plays Josh Higgins, a character which he brought into radio on WMT, Waterloo, Ia., Nov. 19, 1928, and the Governor, speaking in the executive offices of the Iowa Statehouse, will discuss progress on the Josh Higgins Park, which was dedicated last August at Finchford, Ia.

Thursday, at 8 p. m. on the WJZ net, Paul Green's "In Abraham's Bosom" will be the Pulitzer Prize play performed. Frank Wilson, the original Porgy in Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," who also played Moses in "Green Pastures," will have the leading part of Abe Cranie. one model and know that the set will tune them in at the exact time, keep them on whether for 15, 30 or 60 minutes, turn the set off when they are ended, at the right time tune in another program on another station, or continue on the first station or switch to another. In nother model, there is provision for setting up a preselected list of programs for as many as 24 or 48 or even 72 hours in advance.

Still another feature is keyboard tuning, in which depressible keys are used instead of push buttons, operating much as do the keys of a piano.

One model, called the Radioforte, is designed for quality reception of programs from one's favorite stations. It has only the keyboard tuning, is free of knobs and gadgets, and comes in a large lowboy cabinet. A keyboard tuning remote control, which operates through a long, ribbon-like extension cord, may be used with the Radioforte and two other models.

The beam-a-scope aerial consists of a self-contained acceptor circuit completely enclosed by a rejector winding or shield. So it receives only the electromagnetic radiations from a station and is shielded against the electrostatic part and all sorts of man-made static and other interference.

The new General Electric line includes sets ranging from four-tube AC-DC models, auto sets and battery and two-volt sets to large console models with fidelity controls, multi-vision louvre dials, new dynamic speakers and other improvements.

Stewart-Warner Sets Showings for Dealers.

A showing of the new Stewart-Warner radio sets to dealers will be held at the Witte Hardware Co., distributer, tomorrow and every day through Friday. Similar meetings will be held by the Witte Co. as follows: In the Abraham Lincoln Hotel, Springfield, Ill., June 27 and 28; in the Emerson Hotel, Mount Vernon, Ill., June 30 and July 1; in the Marquette Hotel, Cape Girardeau, Mo., July 5 and 6, and in the Missouri Hotel, Jefferson City, July 8 and 9. The new Stewart-Warners are in conventional and "magic keyboard" tuning types, in compact, console and armchair models.

STUDENTS of the South High School, Columbus, O., won the CBS network's competition for junior and senior high school broadcast productions, which was concluded with a radio program last Saturday. Their entry was a playlet, "The Price We Pay," which told the story of a young husband, who, returning from a hunting trip, left his loaded gun in a hall, thereby being responsible for the death of one of his children. "It's a Matter of Life and Death," produced by students of the high school at Burlington, Ia., won second place. Third prize went to students of the Eugene High School, Portland, Ore., for their "Along the Oregon Trail," based on an incident in the history of the Old West. Fourth place went to students of the Flathead County School, Kalispell, Mont., for their "Edgar Allen Poe," based on that author's "The Fall of the House of Usher." Programs entered could include music, drama, talks and entertainment of any kind, but must not be entirely musical. Casts were limited to 60 actors and musicians, of whom not more than 20 could have speaking roles.

One of this writer's radio thrills came last Thursday night when Raymond Johnson did his monologue on Rudy Vallee's program in the sketch, "Steel," written by Arch Oboler. The actor, hitherto known only to the studios as a Chicago serial player of marked talent, more than made good in the chance that Vallee gave him, overshadowing memories of many radio efforts by actors whose names are household words.

A GERMAN radio company is reported to have been given a contract by the Greek Government to build a 10,000-watt short wave station at Athens with aerials directed toward this country and Australia where there are many Greek immigrants. The German firm's contract provides that it operate the station for the next 25 years and receive all revenue from it.

A two-hour broadcast from London, set for Saturday morning, July 2, on the Mutual net, will cover the All-England tennis championships, the Oxford-Cambridge cricket match and the King's Cup, 1000-mile air race over a 50-mile circuit.

A Reverence day broadcast, marking the 150th anniversary of the Ratification of the Federal Constitution and the evacuation of Valley Forge by George Washington and his soldiers, is set for 1:45 today on the Mutual. It will include addresses by Supreme Court Justice Stone and Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania and music by the Marine Band.

Early morning hours talks will make up the One Man's Family broadcast Wednesday evening on KSD, with most of the Barbours in hilarious mood, but with Claudia and Nicky seriously discussing the latter's future and the possibility of his entering Father Barbour's firm, and Father and Mother Barbour deeply concerned over Clifford.

Two new Turkish short wave stations, at Ankara, are expected to go on the air late next month. Their call letters will be TAO and their frequencies 9.46 and 15.19 megacycles.

PLP, at Bandoeng, Java, has extended its schedule so that it broadcasts on 11.00 meg. from 5 to 9 p. m., 9:30 p. m. to 1 a. m. and 3:30 to 9:30 a. m.

While the established French short wave stations continue on their regular channels, several new French transmitters are testing on a number of frequencies—TBP11 on 9.57 meg., TPB7 on 11.85, TPA3 on 11.90, TPB6 on 15.13, TPA2 on 15.24 and TPB3 on 17.76.

"Muggles," supposedly gifted with the ability to make himself invisible, who suddenly appears on the floor of the Senate clad only in red flannels, will be the center of Friday night's First Nighter broadcast of Anthony Wayne's comedy, "Oh, Say Can You See."

On and after July 7, the Thursday evening Toronto Promenade concerts played at the University of Toronto will be moved to KSD and the WEAF network.

A NEW method of radio transmission and reception, which is applicable mainly to the short waves but minimizes the effects of static, man-made interference and fading, was described the past week by Murray G. Crosby, of the RCA laboratories, at a convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers. Crosby, who has been working on the system developed for ten years, said that the method, wihch he called phase modulation, required special receiving sets. Its use is likely to be confined to commercial communications, at least for years to come, for adoption of it for short wave broadcasting would necessitate scrapping millions of sets and reconstruction of hundreds of costly stations.

Garden Setting For Fashionable June Wedding

AN ALTAR of white flowers was built under an open marquee on the south lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Randolph's home in the St. Louis Country Club grounds for the wedding late yesterday afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. Raldolph's elder daughter, Miss Ruth Caroline, and John Lamb Gillis. A high wall of cedars screened the setting from the winding road, and tall trees dotted the green lawn stretching out at either side.

The bridal party emerged from the front door of the house and walked down a white-carpeted aisle of ribbons to the altar—Easter lilies and larkspur massed across the greenery. Mgr. John P. Spencer of St. Roch's Church performed the ceremony.

Four yellow-clad bridesmaids, a maid of honor in delphinium blue, and Kenneth Lemoine Green III, carrying the ring on a flower-trimmed pillow, preceded Mr. Randolph and his daughter in the procession.

The maids—Miss Virginia Garesche, Miss Kathleen Wallace, Miss Patricia Thompson and Mrs. Frederic B. Swarts—wore jonquil-tinted marquisette over heavy matching taffeta. Wide, flaring floor-length skirts were gored to fit over the hips, with the point of each gore set high on the bodices to achieve a high-waisted effect. Sleeves were puffed short and very full, and necklines were cut square. Taffeta buttons marked the back of each gown to the waist. Miss Irene Randolph, the bride's sister, as maid of honor, was in the delphinium blue, similarly made. Each attendant wore a hairbraid hat tinted to match her gown, called a cape hat because of the unusually wide brim. Matching chiffon scarfs banded the crowns and hung in streamers to the ground. The bouquets were of all-white larkspur.

Rose point lace acquired years ago by Mrs. Randolph's mother, the late Mrs. William F. Niedringhaus, and worn on Mrs. Randolph's wedding gown, adorned the costume of yesterday's bride. The gown itself was empire in style, made of ivory satin with bands of pearls, also from Mrs. Randolph's wedding dress, edging the square neck and short, puffed sleeves. The lace almost covered the long train. The bride's veil, worn with a shorter modesty veil, was secured to a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Randolph and Mrs. John D. Gillis, the bridegroom's mother, both wore blue, with orchid corsages, and garden hats.

Mr. Gillis was attended by his brother, James Gillis of New York, as best man, and by the following ushers: William F. N. Randolph, the bride's brother; Arthur A. Dunn Jr., Charles Sommer Jr., J. Boyd Ware, Arnold Ransome White, Tullius C. Tupper Jr., James Bleakley of Louisville, Ky., and David Burnham of New York.

The receiving line, headed by the parents of the principals, formed in front of the altar to receive guests after the service. Later the wedding party and additional friends were seated at a long oval table set in a tree-bordered clearing on the north side of the house. Pottery bowls were filled with gardenias, lilies of the valley and larkspur for centerpieces, with white candles in branched silver candelabra were arranged at intervals down the table length. The entire garden was lighted after sundown by flood lights in the trees. A string orchestra played.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Elizabeth Lamb of Moorhead, Minn., the bridegroom's aunt, and Miss Suzanne Gillis, his cousin, of Denver, Colo.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Gillis will live at 7908 Bonhomme avenue, Clayton.

The bride is related to several of St. Louis' well-known families. She is a great-granddaughter of the late Benjamin O'Fallon. She made her debut during the season of 1933-34 at a Thanksgiving eve ball at the St. Louis Country Club and was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball that year. She was educated at Mary Institute and Oldfields School, Baltimore. Mr. Gillis is a graduate of Washington University.

Joseph Desloge to Entertain.

Joseph Desloge has issued invitations for a reception to be given at his home, Vouziers, Florissant, late Sunday afternoon, June 26, in honor of Miss Delphine Polk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Julius Polk, and her fiance, Calvin F. Gatch. The marriage of Miss Polk and Mr. Gatch will take place Wednesday, July 6, at the Polk home, Taille de Noyer, Old Florissant road, Ferguson, at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Elizabeth Gross Is Married to Richard Burg

Bride Wears Mother's Wedding Gown in Ceremony at St. Joseph's Church—Two Sisters Are Attendants.

MISS SOPHIA ELIZABETH GROSS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hazlett Gross, was married to Richard Oscar Burg at St. Joseph's Church, Clayton, by the Rev. Francis J. O'Hern, S. J., at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. White gladiolas and larkspur filled two large urns on the altar and the chancel was banked with palms and ferns.

Mr. Gross gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown, fashioned on empire lines of heavy bridal satin. The bodice was pleated below the square neckline and the sleeves were leg o' mutton, extending just below the elbow. The skirt, falling straight in front, was slashed above the hemline to show cream-colored chiffon. Chiffon also edged the hem of the gown and the medium length train. Heirloom rose point lace fell full-length from a tiny coronet of orange blossoms. Gardenias were arranged on a satin prayer book which the bride carried instead of a bouquet.

Miss Peggy Gross attended her sister as maid of honor and Miss Martha, a younger sister, was bridesmaid. Their gowns of cornflower blue tulle over matching taffeta were modeled after that of the bride. With high necklines both front and back, each was made with short, puffed sleeves and a very full skirt. Both wore bonnet-shaped pleated blue tulle hats with a row of tiny ruching framing the face and a narrow band of taffeta under the chin. They carried small, old-fashioned nosegays of yellow daisies and blue cornflowers.

Thomas Ritter was best man. Horatio Nelson Spencer Jr. and Selden M. Spencer were groomsmen. All of them, as well as the bridegroom, were members of Beta Theta Pi fraternity at Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., from which Mr. Burg was graduated. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Burg, 3207 Copelin avenue.

Mrs. Gross was gowned in light printed chiffon, designed with a shirred bodice and flaring skirt, with which she wore a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Burg's frock was turquoise chiffon combined with maize accessories and a corsage of yellow tea roses.

Breakfast was served at the Gross home on the Warson road after the wedding. A table in the garden was arranged for the bridal party, with the wedding cake as centerpiece. Two cornucopias spilled white spring flowers at either side. Other guests were served in buffet style from the dining room. The living room mantel was banked with larkspur, gladiolas and Easter lilies, combined with greenery.

The pair departed on a wedding trip of unannounced destination. They will select their home on their return.

Mrs. Burg is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo E. Anderson and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gross. She is the sister of Mrs. S. Raymond Kinsella, Mrs. Lee Langan, Robert H. Gross Jr. of Santa Fe, N. M., and John E. Gross of Chicago. She was graduated from the Convent of the Sacred Heart, St. Charles.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, June 18.

THE latest bridegroom of the presidential Roosevelts, John Roosevelt, not only is the baby of the family, but is the only one of the children of President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt who is a native of Washington, having been born here when his father was Assistant Secretary of the Navy under Secretary Josephus Daniels. He used to be part of the family group walking to school or work, Franklin D. Roosevelt swinging along, by his daughter Anna, now Mrs. John Boettiger; James Roosevelt; Elliott, and little Franklin and John.

Often Mr. Roosevelt would stop in order to receive the salutes of the lads of the Junior Marine Corps of the Woman's Naval Service lined up in front of their headquarters—Theodorus Bailey Myers Mason House at 1606 Twentieth street, N. W.

The forthcoming return from Europe of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and his bride recalls the careers of other young Cabinet hotsesses in recent administrations.

There was the former Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, who was Miss Eleanor Wilson, daughter of President and Mrs. Wilson before her marriage to the then Secretary of the Treasury, as the fourteenth White House bride.

Then there was Ailsa Mellon, now Mrs. David Bruce of Baltimore, when her father entered President Harding's Cabinet.

Another outstanding hostess of the Cabinet circle was Mrs. Patrick Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War in the Hoover administration.

Mrs. James J. Davis was a young Cabinet matron when she first came. She followed Miss Agnes Hart Wilson, wife of the Secretary of Labor in the Wilson administration, in that post. Miss Wilson was hostess for her ill mother. Mrs. Davis served as Cabinet hostess through three administrations.

MISS HELEN ALMA REITH, who makes her home with her brother, and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Reith, 120 West Woodbine avenue, Kirkwood, and Samuel Milton Taft of St. Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Dr. Robert Kevin officiated at the marriage service, which was preceded by songs by Miss Bobbie Price of Columbia, with John Holscher at the organ.

Mr. Reith gave his sister in marriage. She wore a redingote model of white lace over satin, the skirt flaring into a fan-shaped train. A short veil was held in place by a small lace cap and the bridal bouquet was of white gladioli and baby's breath tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Charles Northcutt was matron of honor and Miss Emma Lou Lennox and Miss June Rieth, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of chiffon over taffeta made simply with square necklines, short puffed sleeves and circular floor-length skirts. The matron of honor was in aqua blue trimmed with touches of peach chiffon, and the bridesmaids wore peach with aqua blue trimming. They carried bouquets of peach gladioli and wore several of the single blossoms in their hair.

Edward Rieth, brother of the bride, was best man for Mr. Taft. Frank Bittner and William Taft, brother of the bridegroom, were groomsmen.

After the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rieth, 823 Evans avenue. On the return from the honeymoon, Mr. Taft and his bride will live at 824 Cleveland avenue, Kirkwood. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rieth. LUTHERANS TO HOLD MASS SERVICE TODAY

Special Trains to Bring 4000 for Commemorative Rally at Auditorium.

Special trains will bring 4000 Lutherans from seven cities to St. Louis for a mass service in the Municipal Auditorium convention hall this afternoon commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the arrival in Missouri of the Saxon immigrants who founded the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and Other States.

Joining the visitors in the audience will be many members of the church in the St. Louis area and the 1000 delegates who are attending the 10-day triennial convention of the synod here. The total attendance at the service, which will begin at 3 o'clock, is expected to be 15,000.

The principal speaker will be the Rev. John W. Behnken of Chicago, who as president of the synod is head of the church's 900,000 adult members. His subject will be "The Challenge of the Future."

The Rev. Alfred Doerffler, pastor of the Pilgrim Lutheran Church of St. Louis, will be chaplain in the service. A chorus of 1000 St. Louis Lutherans will sing "Abide, O Dearest Jesus" under the direction of Walter Wismar, organist of Holy Cross Lutheran Church.

In addition to the churchmen coming by train from Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Fort Wayne, Ind., Kansas City and Omaha, Lutherans from neighboring Missouri and Illinois communities will visit St. Louis for the service.

Pastors attending the convention, which began last Wednesday, will preach this morning in the 50 St. Louis churches affiliated with the synod.

Yesterday, after a brief business session in the Auditorium Opera House, most of the delegates went to Altenburg, 100 miles south of St. Louis in Perry County, for a special commemorative service at the log cabin which was the home of Concordia Seminary when it was founded in 1839 by a group of Saxon immigrants who settled there.

Preparation of a new hymn book was discussed yesterday, the convention directing the committee engaged in compiling it to issue advance copies to pastors and teachers for criticism. The work was started in 1929.

A young people's service to be held at the auditorium at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening was announced. The Rev. Arthur Brunn of Brooklyn, N. Y., president of the Atlantic district of the synod, will speak, and the St. Louis Lutheran A Cappella Choir will sing.

STRANGE FORMATIONS IN NATIONAL PARKS

Architectural and Sculptural Effects Found in Bryce and Zion Canyons.

Some of the most interesting and fantastic rock formations in the West are found in a comparatively small area which is now Zion and Bryce Canyon National Park. While the formations in Zion tend to the architectural, those in Bryce are definitely sculptural.

One of the most unusual formations in Zion is called the Temple of Sinawava whose walls rise to a height of 2000 feet. This great natural temple was named after Sinawava, the Coyote, a legendary character among the Paiute Indians. It is complete even to an altar, a great mass of rock in the center of the natural ampitheater.

From the Temple of Sinawva one proceeds to the "Narrows," a spectacular gorge with perpendicular rock walls that rise to a height of half a mile in some spots. The foot trail winds along the Canyon floor only a few feet from the Virgin River, a swift stream responsible for cutting the canyon. Here one finds an amazing variety of plants from desert plants to those found in areas of lower Canada. One walks beneath a bower of trees, ash, box elder, cottonwood and others. Along the trail is the sacred Datura, a night blooming flower which is characteristic of the Canyon. Occasionally a deer will scamper off to rocky heights to look curiously down on the visitor from his point of vantage. It is estimated that there are more than 500 deer in this park with about 150 living on the Canyon floor.

Along the trail one comes upon great natural amphitheaters where the columbine and moss on the walls give the appearance of the hanging gardens of old.

Sculptures in Bryce.

Wind and sand have been responsible for the many curious sculptural effects in Bryce Canyon National Park and the entire area has been peopled with a stone race of other times. One of these groups is the "Temple of Osiris and the Priest." Shadows and sunlight outline clearly the figure of the priest with softly falling robe. Behind him rises a turreted temple.

Another stone sculpture which attracts visitors is the "Happy Family." Here on a stone ledge is the family group consisting of husband, wife and baby, two older children, a dog, and the inevitable mother-in-law. The mother-in-law, wide-hipped and ample-bosomed, easily dominates the situation.

Wall Street is another of the wonders of this silent city. This is a narrow roadway which meanders between towering perpendicular walls upon which the sunlight falls but seldom. This panoram lacks only the windows, the scurrying thousands and the noise of subway and stock ticker.

The man in the barber chair, as fantastic as the aforementioned, sits waiting for some prehistoric barber who will snip his limestone locks; but the barber has gone to lunch, or so the natives say.

There are great natural bridges, cathedrals, and a valley of One Thousand Castles, these monuments the patient work of ages of sand laden winds and water.

WESTERN ROUND-UPS ARE SPONTANEOUS AFFAIRS

Western rodeos and round-ups are fundamentally spontaneous affairs to enable argumentative cowhands to prove to everybody's satisfaction that they are better or worse ropers, bronco-busters or bulldoggers than hands from neighboring ranches.

While some so-called professionals travel from one round-up to another in pursuit of cash and merchandise prizes, most participants are wranglers from nearby ranches, and the crowds are composed largely of friends and acquaintances who believe "Curley" from Bar X is better than "Slim" from the Cross Bones ranch, or vice versa.

Easterners who attend such affairs as the Cody Stampede, July 4-6, or the Sheridan Rodeo, July 18-20, are quick to observe the difference between these indigenous Wyoming rodeos and the professional spectacles sometimes presented. Most of the spectators know not only the human contestants, but the animals as well. Some of the most avid spectators are ranchers whose "hands" are in the contests, and "dudes" who have come in to cheer on their favorite guide or wrangler.

Among the "native rodeos this summer are those at Gillette, Wyo., July 2-4; Cheyenne, Wyo., July 26-30; Custer, S. D., July 27-28; Deadwood, S. D., August 4-6; Billings, Mont., Aug. 8-13; Burwell, Neb., Aug. 9-12; Akron, Colo., Aug. 17-19; Casper, Wyo., Aug. 16-18; Colorado Springs, Aug. 19-21; Trinidad, Colo., Aug. 23-25, and Thermopolis, Wyo., Sept. 4-5.

Nova Scotia in Scotland.

The parade ground in front of Edinburgh Castle, in Scotland, is legally a part of Nova Scotia. It was so declared in the reign of Charles I so that newly made Nova Scotian baronets could "take possession" of their lands on Nova Scotian territory.

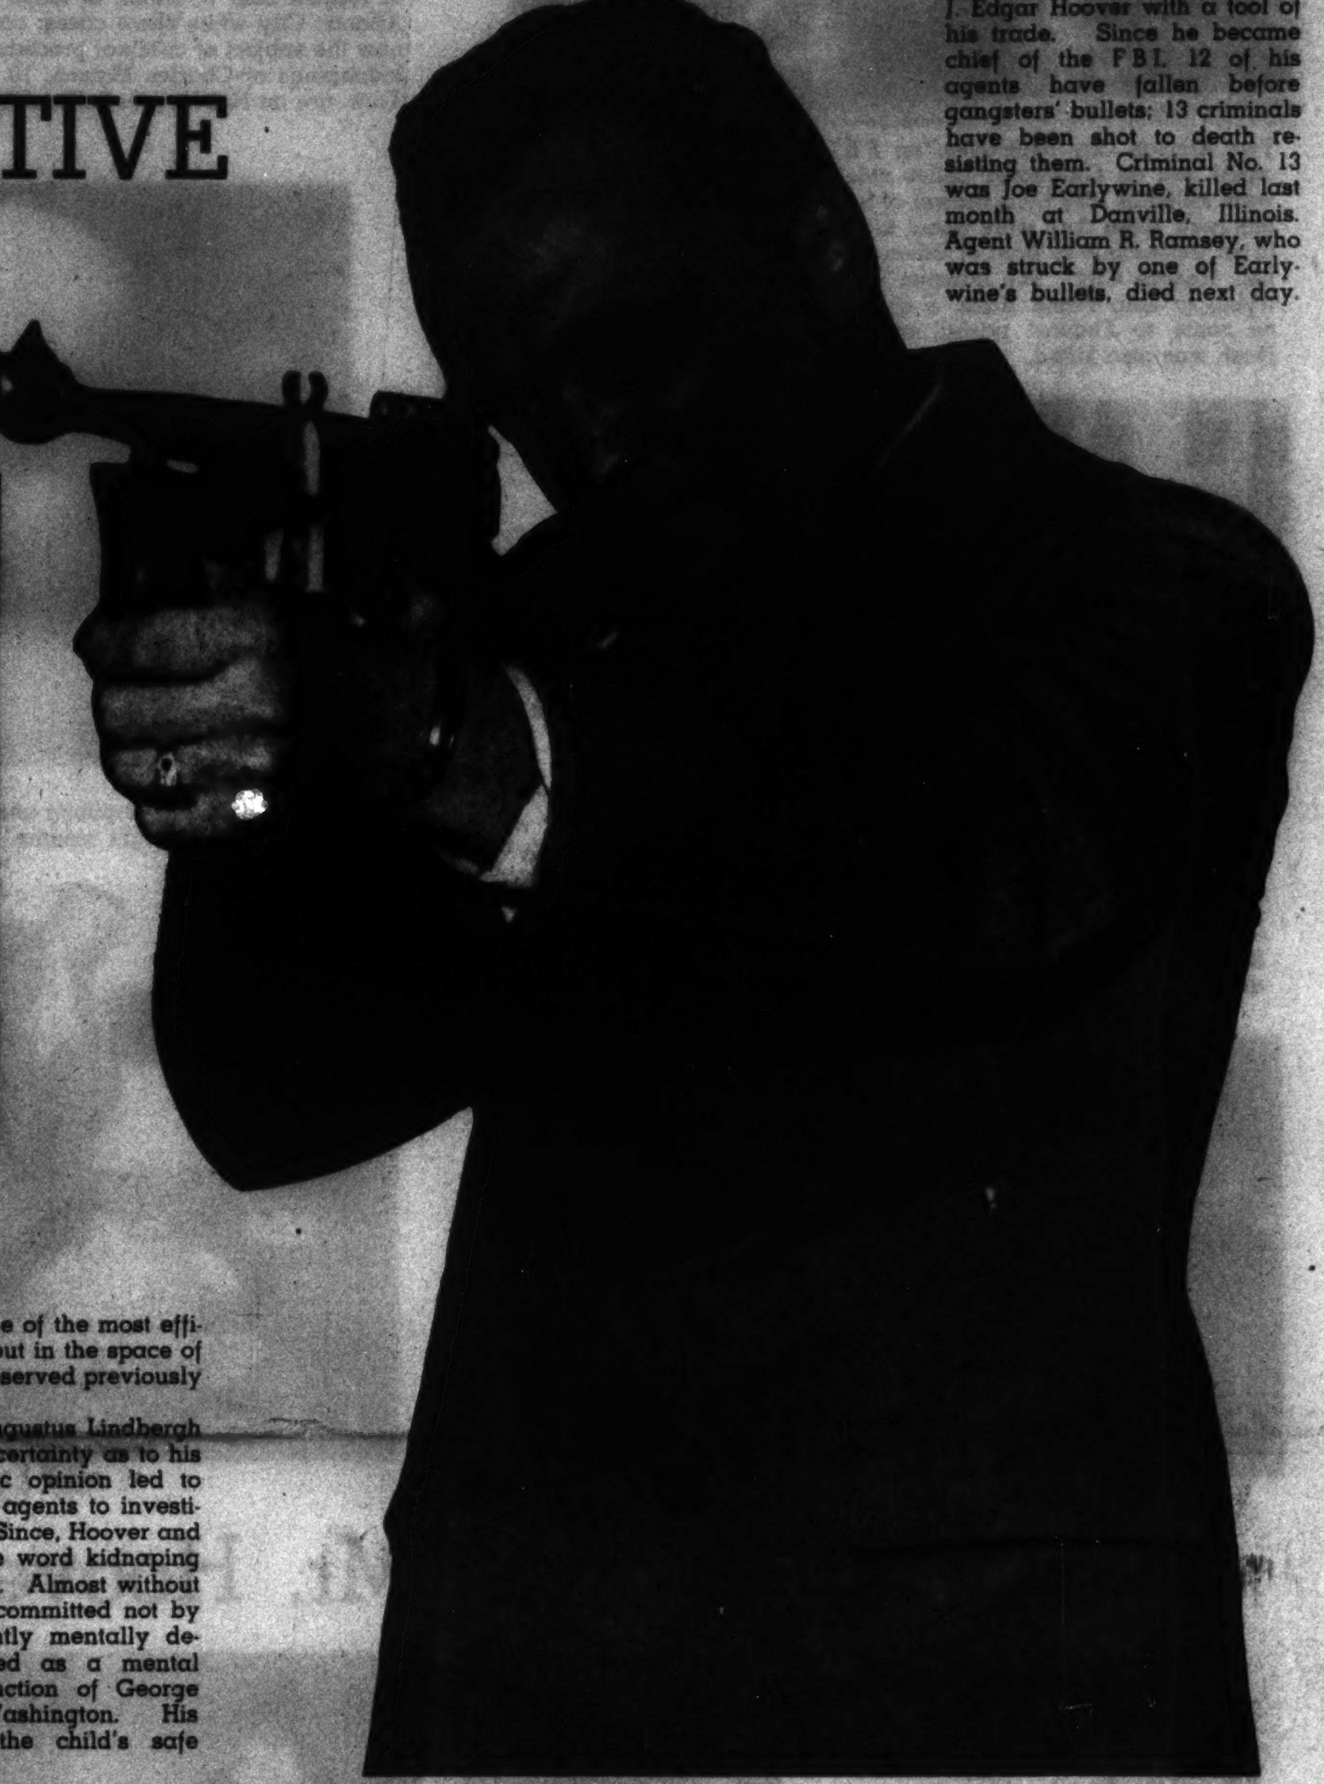
AMERICA'S No. 1 DETECTIVE Gets His Man Again

What the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Under J. Edgar Hoover, Has Accomplished



J. Edgar Hoover with a tool of his trade. Since he became chief of the F B I, 12 of his agents have fallen before gangsters' bullets; 13 criminals have been shot to death resisting them. Criminal No. 13 was Joe Earlywine, killed last month at Danville, Illinois. Agent William R. Ramsey, who was struck by one of Earlywine's bullets, died next day.

The 5-year-old son of James Bailey Cash, Princeton, Florida, was stolen from his bed May 28. His body was found June 9 after Cash delivered $10,000 ransom. Franklin Pierce McCall, former neighbor, led investigators to the body, turned over the ransom. He pleaded guilty (above) to the kidnaping and was sentenced to death Thursday. He said the child died when gags were adjusted.

THE longest arm of the law in the United States stretched this month into the Southeast corner of the country and jerked to justice the kidnaper of 5-year-old James Bailey Cash Jr., found dead in a thicket near his home at Princeton, Florida, 12 days after he had been snatched from his bed and had died in the clutch of his abductor. That restraining arm, which came to rest on the shoulder of Franklin Pierce McCall, 21, who Tuesday pleaded guilty of kidnaping, not guilty of murder, was guided by America's No. 1 Detective J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the United States Department of Justice.

Master psychologist, it was Hoover who utilized national publicity to create a sane public perspective of crime. He transferred hoodlums from "glamour boys" of a reckless prohibition age to "public enemies," and now, thanks to his debunking, they are only "public rats," fit only for extermination. It was a kidnaping that made F B I the nation's most powerful antidote for crime. It was Hoover's success in apprehending kidnapers that made his bureau not only one of the most efficient organisations of its kind in the world, but in the space of a few years gave it all the romantic flavor reserved previously for internationally celebrated Scotland Yard.

Soon after the body of little Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., was found in 1932, ending anguished uncertainty as to his treatment by the kidnaper, revolted public opinion led to passage of the Cochran Act, enabling F B I agents to investigate after a victim was absent seven days. Since, Hoover and his 675 lawyer-detectives have removed the word kidnaping from the lexicon of the professional criminal. Almost without exception, these atrocious crimes now are committed not by gangsters, but by amateurs, not infrequently mentally deficient. Such was William Mahan, treated as a mental case after 60-year sentence for the abduction of George Weyerhaeuser, 9, in 1935, at Tacoma, Washington. His associates also were imprisoned, after the child's safe return.

McCall on his way to the courtroom for hearing on his plea of guilty to the charge of kidnaping James Bailey Cash Jr.

George, 9-year-old son of J. P. Weyerhaeuser, wealthy Tacoma lumber man, was returned safely in June, 1935, after eight days in the hands of kidnapers. His father paid a ransom of $200,000 when he received a letter in an envelope bearing a rough tracing of his son's signature. Mr. and Mrs. Harmon M. Waley (at bottom) were convicted with William Mahan.

Robert Kenyon (above), Howell County, Missouri, farm hand, sentenced to die in the Missouri Penitentiary's lethal chamber at Jefferson City, for the murder of Dr. James C. B. Davis (right), of Willow Springs. Kenyon, 23, was trapped after he lured the physician from his office, January, 1937, with a fake sick call. He then shot him to death while the physician attempted to write a check to purchase his freedom.

America's No. 1 Detective—

HOOVER'S triumphs are not limited to kidnapings. An incomplete list in which he got his man, dead or alive, includes: Al Brady gang of murderers and bank robbers; Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd and his band; Kansas City Union Station massacre; John Dillinger and his outlaw associates; the Irish O'Malley Missouri-Illinois hoodlums; Hugh Gant and Alva Hunt, Southeastern bank robbers; Leavenworth Penitentiary prison break; Osage Indian (Oklahoma) murder cases; Tri-State Killer Gang of 20 members; Ross kidnaping at Chicago; arrests of such notorious fugitive desperadoes as Alvin Karpis, Harry Campbell, Harry Brunette, all wanted for a variety of crime; detection of slick law breakers like Otto Wagner, "the misery chiseler," who wrote fake ransom notes in 20 kidnaping cases; Gabriel Zigoretto (Bla-Bla the Black Man), head of an international auto theft ring; he captured the kidnapers of August Luer of Alton; of Alice Stoll at Louisville. He investigated Atlantic City white slave cases; conditions in Harlan County, Kentucky, now the subject of criminal procedure in United States District Court. The kidnapings of Charles Matson, 10, Tacoma, and Peter Levine, 12, New York, are on Hoover's unfinished business list.

Two Kansas City detectives, an F B I agent and an Oklahoma police chief, were killed in 1933 by a shower of bullets fired when they were about to get in an automobile in front of Union Station, Kansas City. The gunmen were trying to help Frank Nash, a convict en route to Federal prison, escape. Nash was also killed.

Five kidnapers of Alton banker, August Luer, returning to jail from court at Edwardsville where they received prison sentences.

For kidnaping William A. Hamm, wealthy St. Paul brewer, Alvin Karpis (above), who had a fleeting moment as Public Enemy No. 1, went to the penitentiary for life. Others of the deadly Barker-Karpis gang are in custody or dead.

Adam Richetti, under death sentence for the Union Station massacre. Other known participants have been killed in flight.

Most publicized public enemy: John Dillinger. (Above) Dillinger at eight months. (Below) Dillinger at 32.

John H. Seadlund headed for the electric chair for kidnaping Charles S. Ross, Chicago. He murdered Ross, then killed a conspirator to "hog" $50,000 ransom, which was recovered.

The kidnaper of Mrs. Berry V. Stoll. Thomas H. Robinson Jr. is serving life sentence.

Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, a hunted criminal for years until shot to death in 1934, cutting another No. 1 from the Public Enemy list.

A bank robber in chains. Harry Brunette is in prison for life for abducting a New York State trooper in making an escape.

Death for James Dalhover, last of the Brady gang. He was captured when Al Brady and C. L. Shaffer were shot to death, at Bangor, Maine, by F B I agents. Dalhover's execution for killing an Indiana State trooper, has been postponed.

America's No. 1 Detective in childhood.

Public speaking.

JOHN EDGAR HOOVER was born 43 years ago at Washington, D. C., earned diplomas there at Central High School and in law at George Washington University, where he is now a trustee. He joined the Department of Justice in 1917, was appointed special assistant to the Attorney-General in 1919, from 1921 was Assistant Director of the Bureau of Investigation until 1924 when he became director. Among other honors, including college degrees, he received the Royal Order of the Crown of Rumania for promotion of international police collaboration. He has direct charge of 1600 employes, disbursement of about $6,000,000 annually, for detecting violations of United States statutes, compiling crime statistics and operating the Technical Laboratory of the bureau, where scientific aids—writing analysis, examination of blood, hair, cloth, soils and bullets, decoding of cryptographic messages—have been developed to an astonishing degree of efficiency.

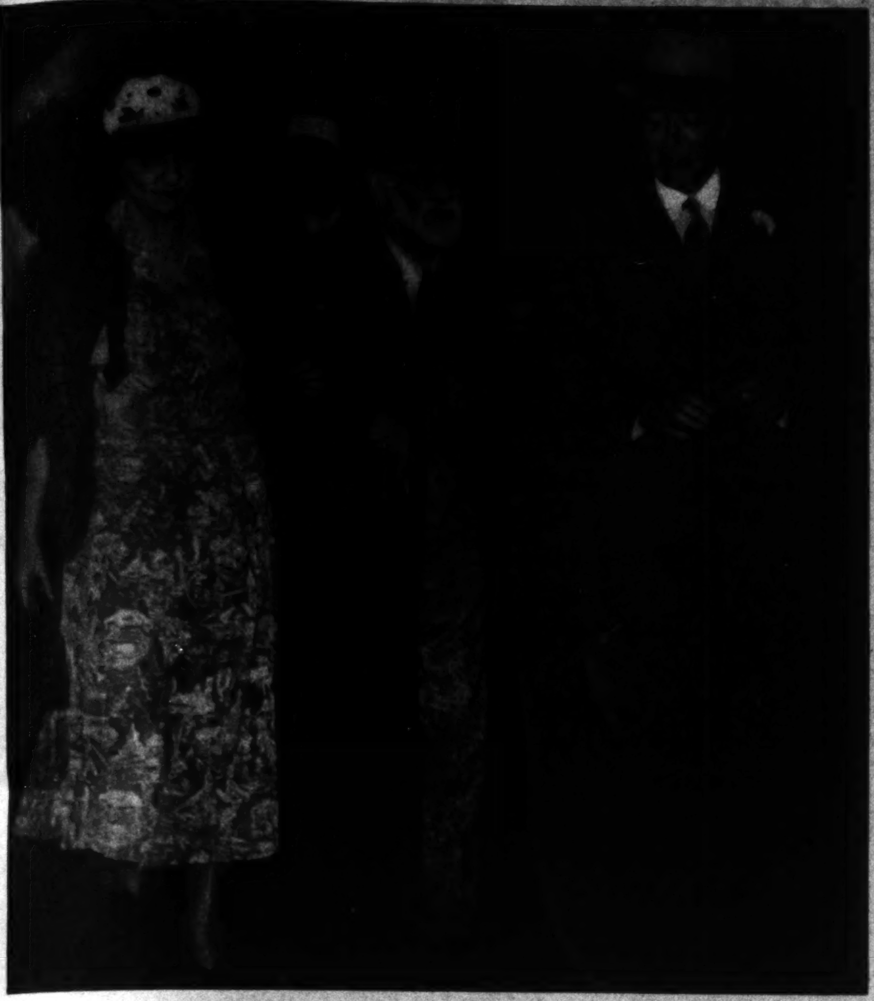
Ransomed From the Nazis



Dr. Sigmund Freud arriving in Paris June 5 on his way to London. With him are Princess Marie of Greece and American Ambassador William C. Bullitt, who welcomed him.

Aged Father of Psychoanalysis Finds Refuge in London

EIGHT years ago Germany awarded her greatest scientific and literary prize to Professor Sigmund Freud of Vienna in recognition of his great contributions to the world's knowledge of psychology. Today Freud is living quietly in a rented house in London because he is a Jew. Friends, in effect, had to ransom him from Nazi Austrian authorities.

The 82-year-old father of psychoanalysis hopes to complete a book intended to show how the Bible reflected the subconscious yearnings and fears of the people of antiquity. Although he was allowed to take his manuscript with him, the Nazis confiscated his money and property in Vienna, where he had lived since he was 4 years old and where a street had been renamed in his honor seven years ago. Ever since the Anschluss of March 13 he had remained in seclusion, dreading insults if he emerged because he is a Jew.

Freud's most famous contribution to the science of the mind, psychoanalysis, is a method of analyzing the content and mechanism of a person's mental life in order to treat him for such disorders as hysteria, abormal fears and obsessions. By dream analysis and similar devices, the patient is aided in discovering and reliving his unconscious memories. This aids him in adjusting his mental conflicts.

The three fundamentals are: 1. An unconscious mind exists and has a big influence on consciousness. 2. The mind is split into layers, due to conflict between various sets of mental forces. 3. There is sexuality even in infancy and it influences development of character.

It is recognized that Freud has given a powerful impetus to psychology. His work has also influenced education, art, literature and criminology. But the Nazis were primarily interested in his Jewishness, not his contributions.

The world famous psychologist on his arrival in London June 6, in search of peace and quiet.

ALL-TIME NO-HIT RECORD

FOR a baseball pitcher to shut out his opponents without a hit is enough to win him a place in the Hall of Fame. But for a pitcher to do it twice in one season was unheard of, until Wednesday night when Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati Reds' lefthander, not only won his second hitless game of the season, but his second such game in a row. He thereby broke all major league pitching records and did it in his first full year in the majors.

The 23-year-old pitcher had shut out the Boston Bees only four days earlier when he repeated the performance against Brooklyn Wednesday night before a crowd of 38,748 persons. Vander Meer also broke Dazzy Vance's National League record for consecutive hitless innings, setting a new total of 18 1/3. Vander Meer walked eight Dodgers, but each time pitched his way out of trouble. He struck out seven.

Born in Paterson, New Jersey, he got his start in a church league near his home. Pitching no-hit, no-run games is no novelty to him. Five years ago on the sand lots of Paterson he pitched five of them in a season.

Extremist Treatment for the Extremities

Color photos by Clint Murphy of the Post-Dispatch Staff

The pedicurist's tools. She must be artist as well as beautician. With the fine brushes, held in one hand, she has painted the flower design using pigments contained in bottles in her other hand.

WITH flowers the season's mode in feminine decoration, co-operation between stylists and pedicurists, has made it possible for women of extreme fashion to thus adorn themselves, literally from head to toe. Up-to-the-minute coiffures, as any casual observer is aware, have been conceived with an eye to floral trimmings. Modes in manicures permit experimentalists to carry the design to fingernails. Now timely toenails permit extremists to complete the pattern.

The fad originated in the radical East where stylists vie to supply new sensations. It was borne to Hollywood where it spread like a plague along the Southern California Coast where feet and legs in varying degrees of bareness are appropriate during most of the four seasons. Recently Mid-Western Chicago has seen on beach and dance floor the spectacular results of the pedicurist's art. Even conservative St. Louis has several shops in which experts brightly discolor toenails, using a variety of flora and fauna patterns and colors to blend, match or contrast with attire.

Blue finger nails, painted in preparation for an evening in a blue dinner dress of the same shade. Toenails of the identical brilliant blue will adorn the toes.

A manicure and pedicure to match, the handwork of a downtown St. Louis pedicurist, who says the demand is increasing.

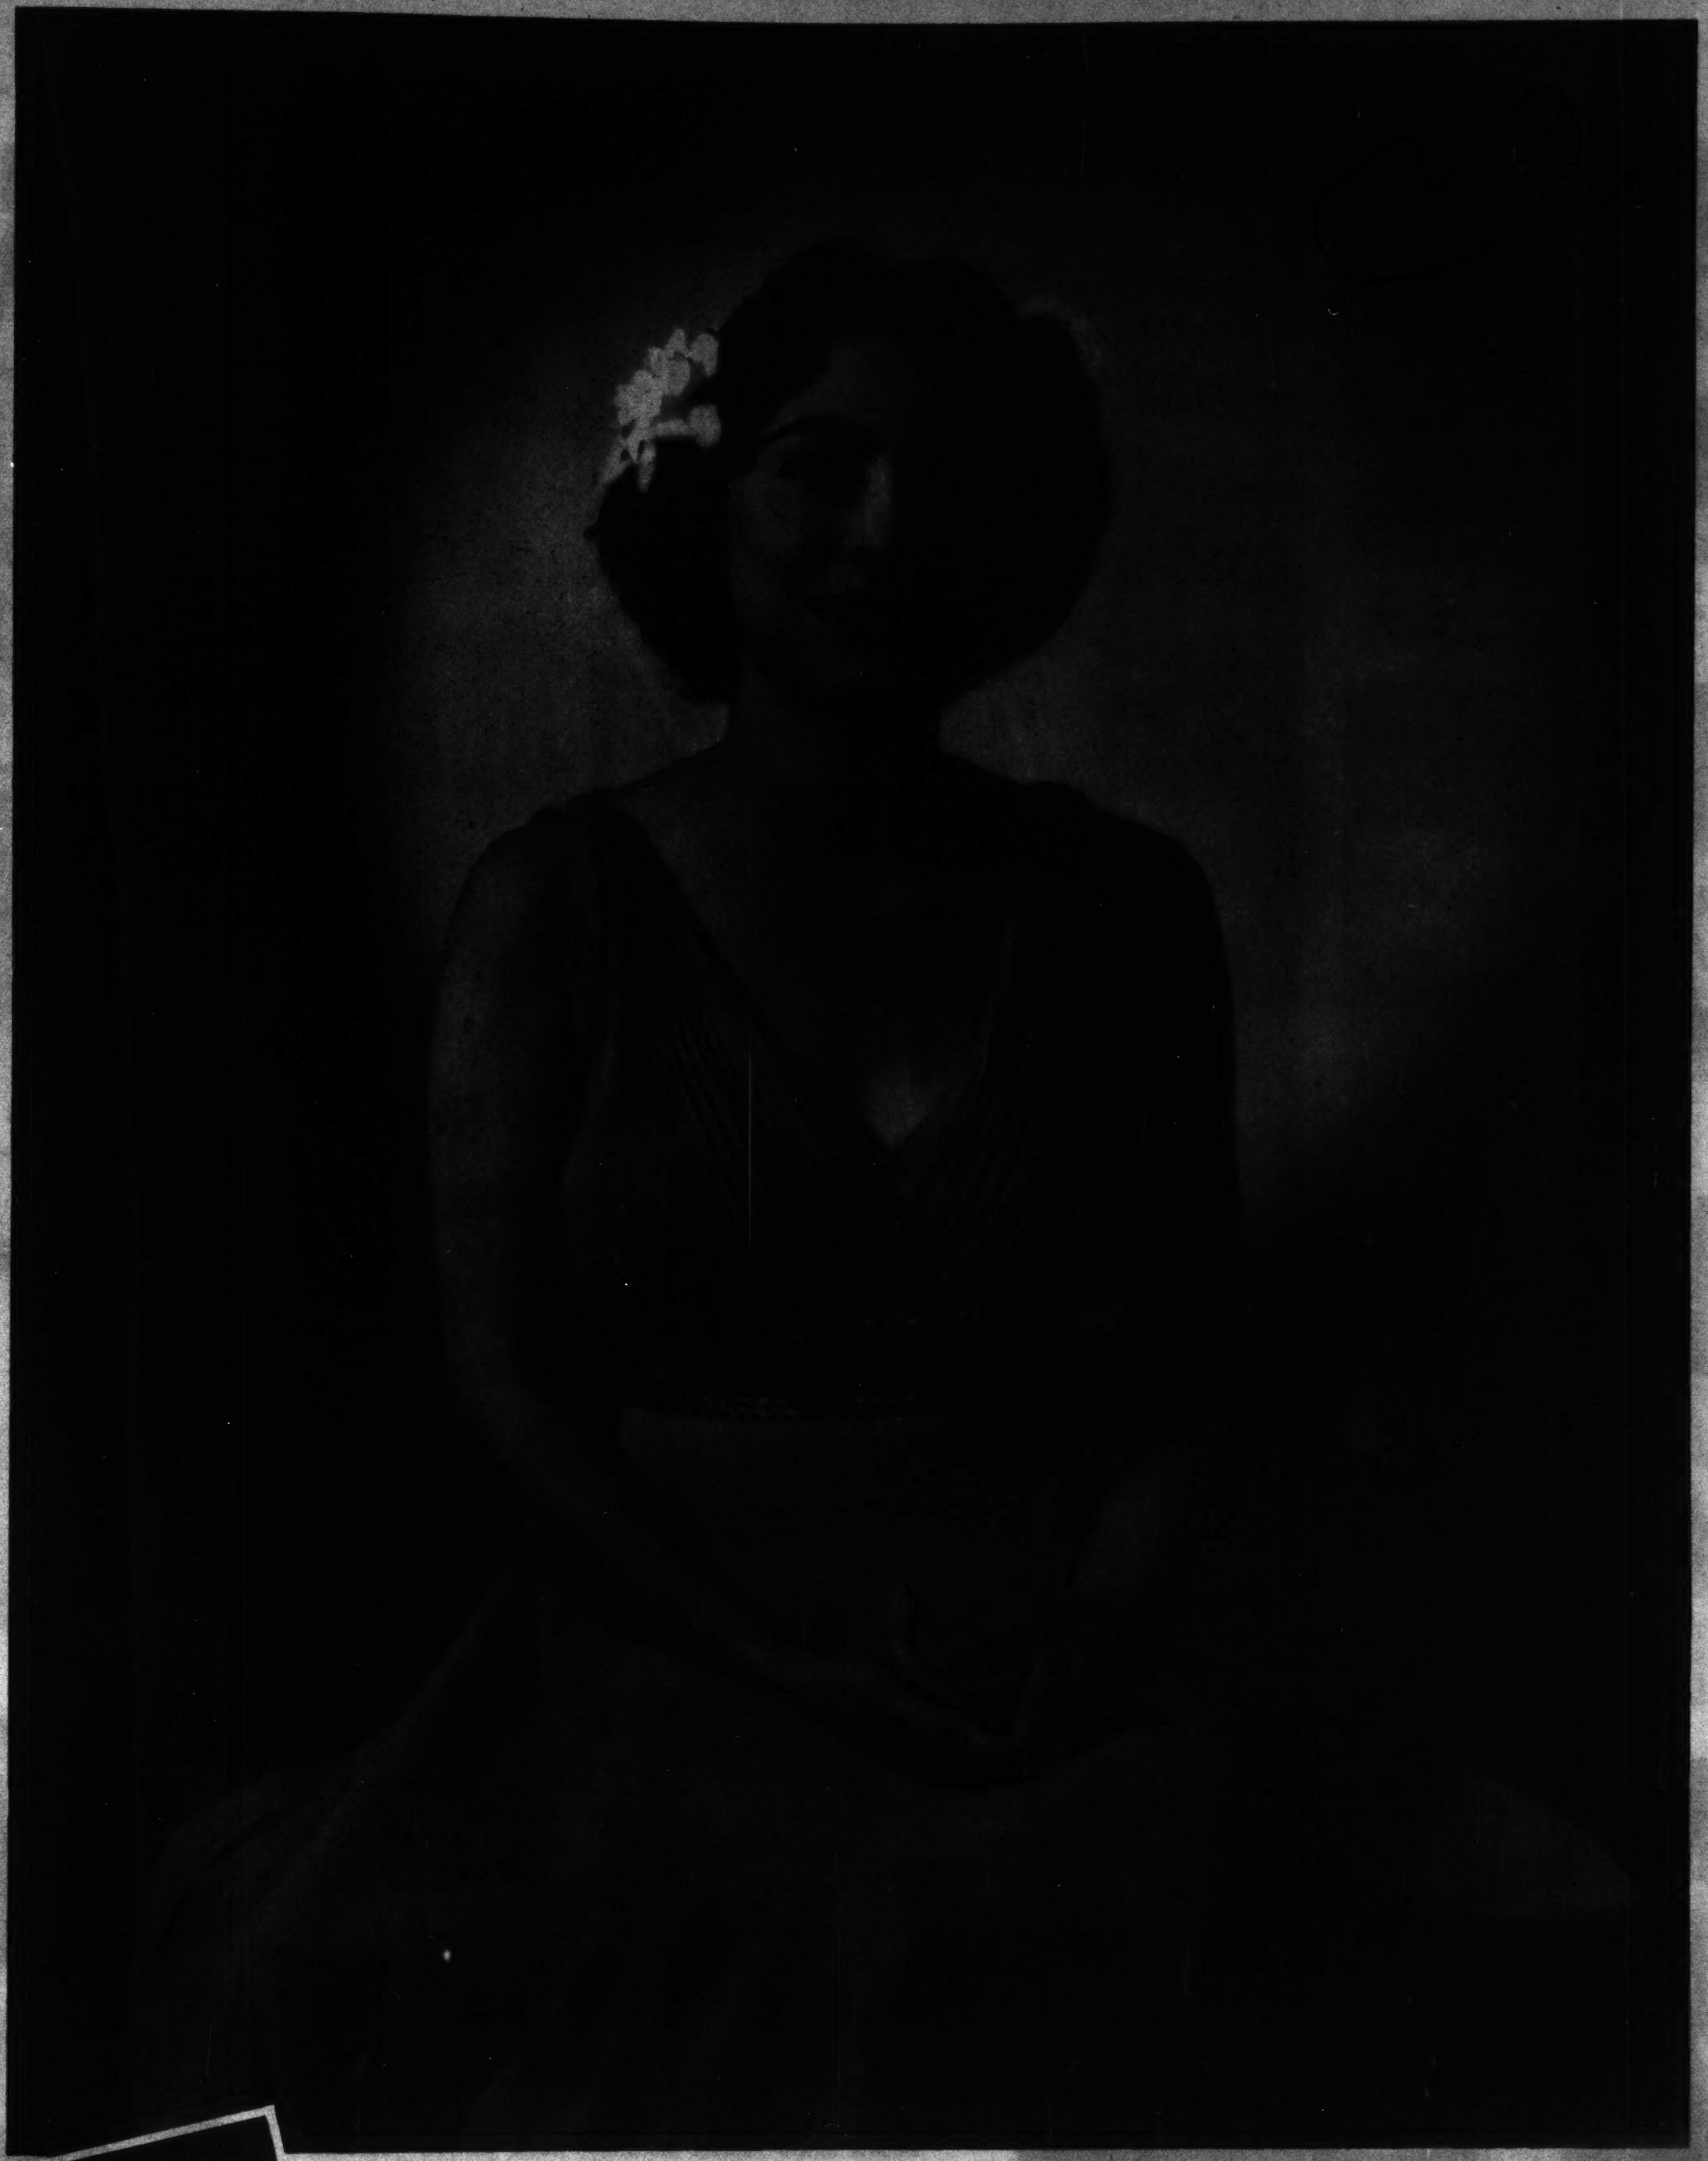
Bride of The Week



Portrait studies of the former Miss Randolph by Jules Pierlow.

Mrs. John Lamb Gillis

UNTIL her marriage yesterday afternoon she was Miss Ruth Caroline Randolph, a 1933 debutante and Veiled Prophet's maid of honor. The ceremony took place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Randolph, in the St. Louis Country Club Grounds. Gillis is a son of Mrs. John D. Gillis of 5867 Nina place, and a graduate of Washington University. The bride is related to such prominent families as the Niedringhauses and Orthweins of St. Louis and the Randolphs of Virginia. Her maid of honor was her younger sister, Miss Irene. Gillis' brother, James, an actor who appeared in "Brother Rat" here last season, was best man.

IN AN impressive, centuries-old ceremony at St. Louis Cathedral, 19 priests and 32 subdeacons were ordained June 11. For the priests, whose average age is 25, the ceremony meant the culmination of 12 years of preparation. The subdeacons have had 11 years' training and next year they will be ordained priests.

In preparing for the priesthood, a boy must first complete elementary school. Then he spends two years at Cathedral Latin School, 4244 Washington boulevard, where the emphasis is on classical studies. The next six years are spent at Junior Seminary, 7300 Weil avenue. The last third of that course is devoted exclusively to philosophy. Finally the student enters Kenrick Seminary, where for four years he studies theology.

Following their ordination, most of the young priests last Sunday celebrated their first solemn mass in their own parish churches. Sixteen of the 19 priests will serve in the St. Louis archdiocese.

How an Army Bomber Literally Was Blown to Pieces

AN ARMY bomber carrying three officers and five enlisted men of the Air Corps left Chanute Field at Rantoul, Illinois, at 9:20 a. m. June 10, on what was to have been a non-stop flight to Lowry Field, Denver. The pilots had received a weather report of thunderstorms in parts of Illinois with clear weather beyond.

Thirty minutes after the takeoff, the radio operator in the bomber reported the plane was above the overcast at 3000 feet, adding, "It sure looks beautiful up here." But at 10:05 he reported, "We are in a thunderstorm; the noise is terrific, wait a minute." There was no further communication. The plane crashed within a few minutes. It is thought that structural failure, resulting from buffeting by exceptionally rough air currents, caused the crash. The eight soldiers were killed.

ST. LOUIS' FIGHT ON CANCER

AN INCONSPICUOUS building on the northeast corner of Washington boulevard and Theresa avenue, hardly noticed by passing motorists, is Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, the only free private cancer hospital in the United States. It is also the only hospital west of the Mississippi devoted solely to treatment of cancer and allied diseases.

There the attack on cancer proceeds along three fronts: Irradiation by radium and X-ray and removal by surgery. Total number of cancer sufferers saved annually by surgery and irradiation in this country is about 20,000, Dr. Fred Taussig of the hospital staff estimated. With proper treatment, he said, the present rate of cures can be more than doubled, adding that present methods of surgery and radiation are far from having reached the full development of their usefulness.

They Call Her 'O-LAMP'

AT 17, Olympe Bradna from France is regarded as one of the most promising movie personalities in Hollywood, not only inspiring studio publicity writers to a profusion of lush adjectives, but eliciting substantial praise from film reviewers. An important step in her upward progress was taken recently when she was given her first star billing—in "Stolen Heaven." Despite her name—"O-Lamp" is the way she pronounces it—and her nativity, this brown-eyed, dark-haired girl with the heart-shaped face, is not exactly a French importation. Daughter of French vaudeville performers, she came to America several years ago with a French theatrical troupe, let the rest of the company go home without her, and was dancing in a New York night club when George Raft—so her studio says—spotted her as movie material and convinced Olympe and her parents that Hollywood was the proper place for her. After her first minor role, the studio began grooming her for stardom.

BOYS TOWN NEBR.

WHITE or black, Catholic, Jew or Protestant, boys are just boys to Father Edward J. Flanagan. That's why Boys Town, Nebraska, is on the map.

The priest 25 years ago inaugurated a "Workingman's Hotel" at Omaha, Nebraska, a refuge for down-and-outers. Four years as their angel, taught him that most of his "bums," ex-convicts, narcotic addicts, drunkards, began life as homeless waifs or spent formative years in unfit homes.

"In 1917 I had a dream," said Father Flanagan. He dreamed of a home for friendless, misdirected boys, some already on the road to reformatory, penitentiary, or doomed, perhaps, to spend declining years in a "workingman's hotel." He borrowed money to rent an old house at Twenty-fifth and Dodge streets and forthwith took charge of five boys—two newsboys who slept at the hotel, three "incorrigibles" from Juvenile Court. Soon the house was jammed with boys.

Pounding pavements by day, Father Flanagan obtained donations to support his project; at night he mothered the lads, sweeping, washing, cooking, finding time to administer to spiritual and intellectual needs. The first Christmas dinner was chiefly from a gift barrel of sauerkraut. In a few years there were larger donations, then larger quarters. In 1920, the farm that became the site of Boys Town was purchased on Lincoln Highway, 11 miles west of Omaha.

Ten years later, Father Flanagan's dream came true.

In the center of 320 acres of rich Nebraska prairie stands the materialization—11 brick buildings housing schools, workshops, play rooms—an incorporated city of 250 population. Of the total, 202 are from 6 to 18 years old, youths salvaged from orphanage, reform school or sordid surroundings.

Under the careful supervision of the priest, they literally run the town. Public officials, Mayor and Commissioners of Health, Parks, Public Welfare, Fire, Police and Public Works, are elected for six-month terms. They perform actual duties. The Mayor allots tasks to each citizen and in that way the laundry, farming, housekeeping, cooking, and serving is done at minimum expense.

Earnest, kindly nuns preside in classrooms; experts in manual trades instruct in the workshops, preparing graduates for adult years. From Father Flanagan's home, 4476 sons have gone into the world.

Father Flanagan this week is in Hollywood, assisting production of a film glorifying the fulfillment of his vision. Spencer Tracy will impersonate him. Mickey Rooney, boy star, will play the part of one of Boys Town's citizens.

About 500 applicants are turned away each year at Boys Town. Occasionally through the archway, there creeps a lad "tagged" only with the name of the place. There was Jimmy, 11, who walked in on his uppers. "You gotta take me, Father. I got no mother . . . my old man's a drunk." Father Flanagan was about to tell him the city was full, when the lad added, tearfully: "I haven't eaten since last night, but it's all right now I'm here." And for him the priest made room as he has for others, wanted by no one else.

PHILADELPHIA.

IN PHILADELPHIA, where old things are cherished and the past is kept alive, the ancient sport of falconry still flourishes. The Peregrine Club here is one of the few formally-organized falconry clubs in the Western world. Founded by Dr. Robert Stabler, instructor in zoology at the University of Pennsylvania, it has 15 members, headed by President Hampton L. Carson, a graduate student of zoology at the university, who find recreation in the complex and exacting activities attending the hunting of game with trained hawks.

This sport, which originally had utilitarian value as a method of getting food, was practiced in Asia many centuries before the Christian era, probably as early as 2000 B. C. It enjoyed its greatest popularity in Western Europe from the thirteenth to the seventeenth century, in which period no aristocratic establishment was complete without its professional falconer. In certain Asiatic regions and in Northern Africa hawking still is a popular pastime, while a small number of devotees keep it from becoming extinct in Europe. Only a few enthusiasts are to be found in the United States, most of them operating in informal groups.

All the members of the Peregrine Club have at least one hunting hawk, a highly prized variety of which is the American peregrine falcon, or duck hawk. Following the counsel of Dr. Stabler, before acquiring their hawks they made a study of birds in general, then learned about the equipment and archaic terminology of falconry, how to care for the winged hunters, how to train them and how to handle them in the field.

A falcon may be bought from a dealer, captured in a trap or taken from its nest before it is old enough to fly. A peregrine taken thus from the nest is called an eyas. A male, which is smaller and less powerful than a female, is a tiersal; falconers consciously speak only of the female as a falcon. The nests are found high on rocky cliffs.

Much time and patience are required for training a hawk; judicious use of food is an essential of this schooling—as it is with practically all animal training. The bird is taught to perch quietly on the hand of its master while awaiting the moment for action; to soar into the air when released; to pounce swiftly on its prey; to return to its master on signal.

A leather hood screens the hawk's vision, preventing it from taking off prematurely, when it is taken into the field. It wears leg bands to which a leash may be attached. The hand on which it sits is protected from the bird's sharp claws by a heavy glove or gantlet.

The cult of hawking includes elaborate procedures as to diet, housing and grooming, designed to keep the birds in proper condition. A falcon in good hunting trim is supposed to be able to swoop down toward its quarry at a speed of 200 miles an hour. When it strikes the prey—usually, in this country, a bird or rabbit—its savage instinct inspires it to devastating use of claws and beak.

Despite their fierceness, falcons often become attached to their owners. And their owners develop considerable fondness for and pride in their birds. A falcon owned by Dr. Stabler wears a hood sentimentally ornamented with feathers from a deceased favorite hunter of his, a bird which was shot by a man whose pigeon it killed.

The United States Closes in on an Espionage Ring Engaged in Discovering This Country's Naval and Aerial Defense Secrets.

NEW YORK.

THE greatest peacetime spy hunt in the history of the United States is under way because of the discovery of a well organized, if fumbling, group of espionage agents, believed to have been retained by "a foreign power" to gather our naval and aerial defense secrets and particularly the plans of our newest aircraft, among the best in the world.

Today from New England to the Pacific Northwest, from the Great Lakes to the Mexican border, Federal agents are pursuing the tangled skeins of a plot that seemed simple enough when it was uncovered in February but has developed into an extended investigation that may reach many unexpected places before it is concluded. Already three persons are under arrest as spies, two have been branded as spies after their escapes from the country and more than a dozen material witnesses are under high bond.

Although prosecuting officials studiously avoid mentioning the offending country by name, virtually all of those under arrest or questioned are of Germanic origin and two of the alleged spies fled to Germany in German ships. The numerous indictments expected from the Federal grand jury which has been conducting the inquiry probably will name the country and may cause a strained international situation.

The press, less reticent than the United States Attorney's office, has been referring to the ring as a German espionage arm. In official circles the ring's primary objects are considered to have been the Panama Canal and New York harbor defense plans, plans of army planes, and destroyers.

Under strict censorship from Washington neither United States Attorney Lamar Hardy nor J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation will comment but intimations are that Germany—if that is the country—became impressed with the superiority of American aircraft when planes this country considered obsolescent were flown in Spain with remarkable effect against the latest type Italian and German ships. The plan to steal American blue prints followed.

The recent air maneuvers were conducted against a coalition of two European and one Asiatic Power. If such an amalgamation were to become a belligerent reality the Panama Canal would assume prime importance in shifting battleships. Thus the Panama Canal defense plans would be essential to the enemy coalition. New York, as the chief commercial center of the nation, would be the first point of attack on the Eastern seaboard. This would explain interest in metropolitan fortifications.

A BIT of stupidity brought the existence of the ring to light. Gunther Gustave Rumrich, 27 years old, a former United States Army sergeant who deserted, telephoned the passport bureau and asked for 50 blanks in the name of an Undersecretary of State. Naturally so unusual a request caused an investigation and he was arrested. Then Erich Glaser, 26, a soldier at Mitchel Field, army air headquarters, was taken into custody along with Johanna Hofmann, 26, a hairdresser on the North German Lloyd luxury liner Europa. They were charged with violating a World War statute against transmitting information relating to the defenses of the United States. All pleaded not guilty and were held in $25,000 bail each.

That was in February. A month later Otto Hermann Voss, a German mechanic in the Seversky Aircraft plant, which makes many army planes, was arrested as a material witness and bail of $10,000 was set.

Then sensation followed sensation. It was said that Colonel H. W. T. Eglin of the army had been marked for death in a fantastic plot to lure him to a hotel room and rob him of mobilization plans. Rumrich said the plot had been formulated in Germany, but that the originator later told him to delay action.

The investigation suffered a severe setback when Dr. Ignatz T. Griebl, former head of the pro-Nazi Friends of New Germany and an officer in the United States Medical Reserve, was revealed to have boarded the Bremen secretly for Germany. At Cherbourg agents of the French Surete Generale went aboard at the direction of United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt to ask Dr. Griebl to return to America, but Captain Adolf Ahrens of the Bremen refused to permit them to talk to him. So Griebl is now practicing in Germany.

Not long afterward Werner Gudenberg, also a key witness, was discovered aboard the outward bound liner Hamburg and he too reached the haven of Germany. Extradition treaties do not cover their cases.

When the Bremen returned to this country Captain Ahrens and certain members of his crew were summoned before the grand jury. Johan Kleiber, second radio officer and Wilhelm Boehnke, Nazi party representative on the ship, were held in bond of $15,000 each and Johann Hart and Walter Otto were held in $5000 each—all as material witnesses.

Captain Henrich Lorenz of the German freighter Chemnitz and Captain Franz Friske of the freighter Hindenburg also came into the material witness net along with Lutz Leisewitz, a department manager of the North German Lloyd Lines.

One material witness regarded as of more importance than some others was Christian Danielson, a one-armed draftsman for the Bath Iron Works of Bath, Maine, where our new destroyers have been built. Rumors have been current that plans for these ships were lost or stolen. He is held in $10,000 bail.

Among the women before the grand jury at one time or another was Kate Moog Busch, a trained nurse, Mrs. Maria Griebl, wife of the fugitive and a "mystery blonde." Mrs. Griebl was held as a material witness after she sought to rejoin her husband.

Federal Agent Leon Turrov has done most of the direct investigation.

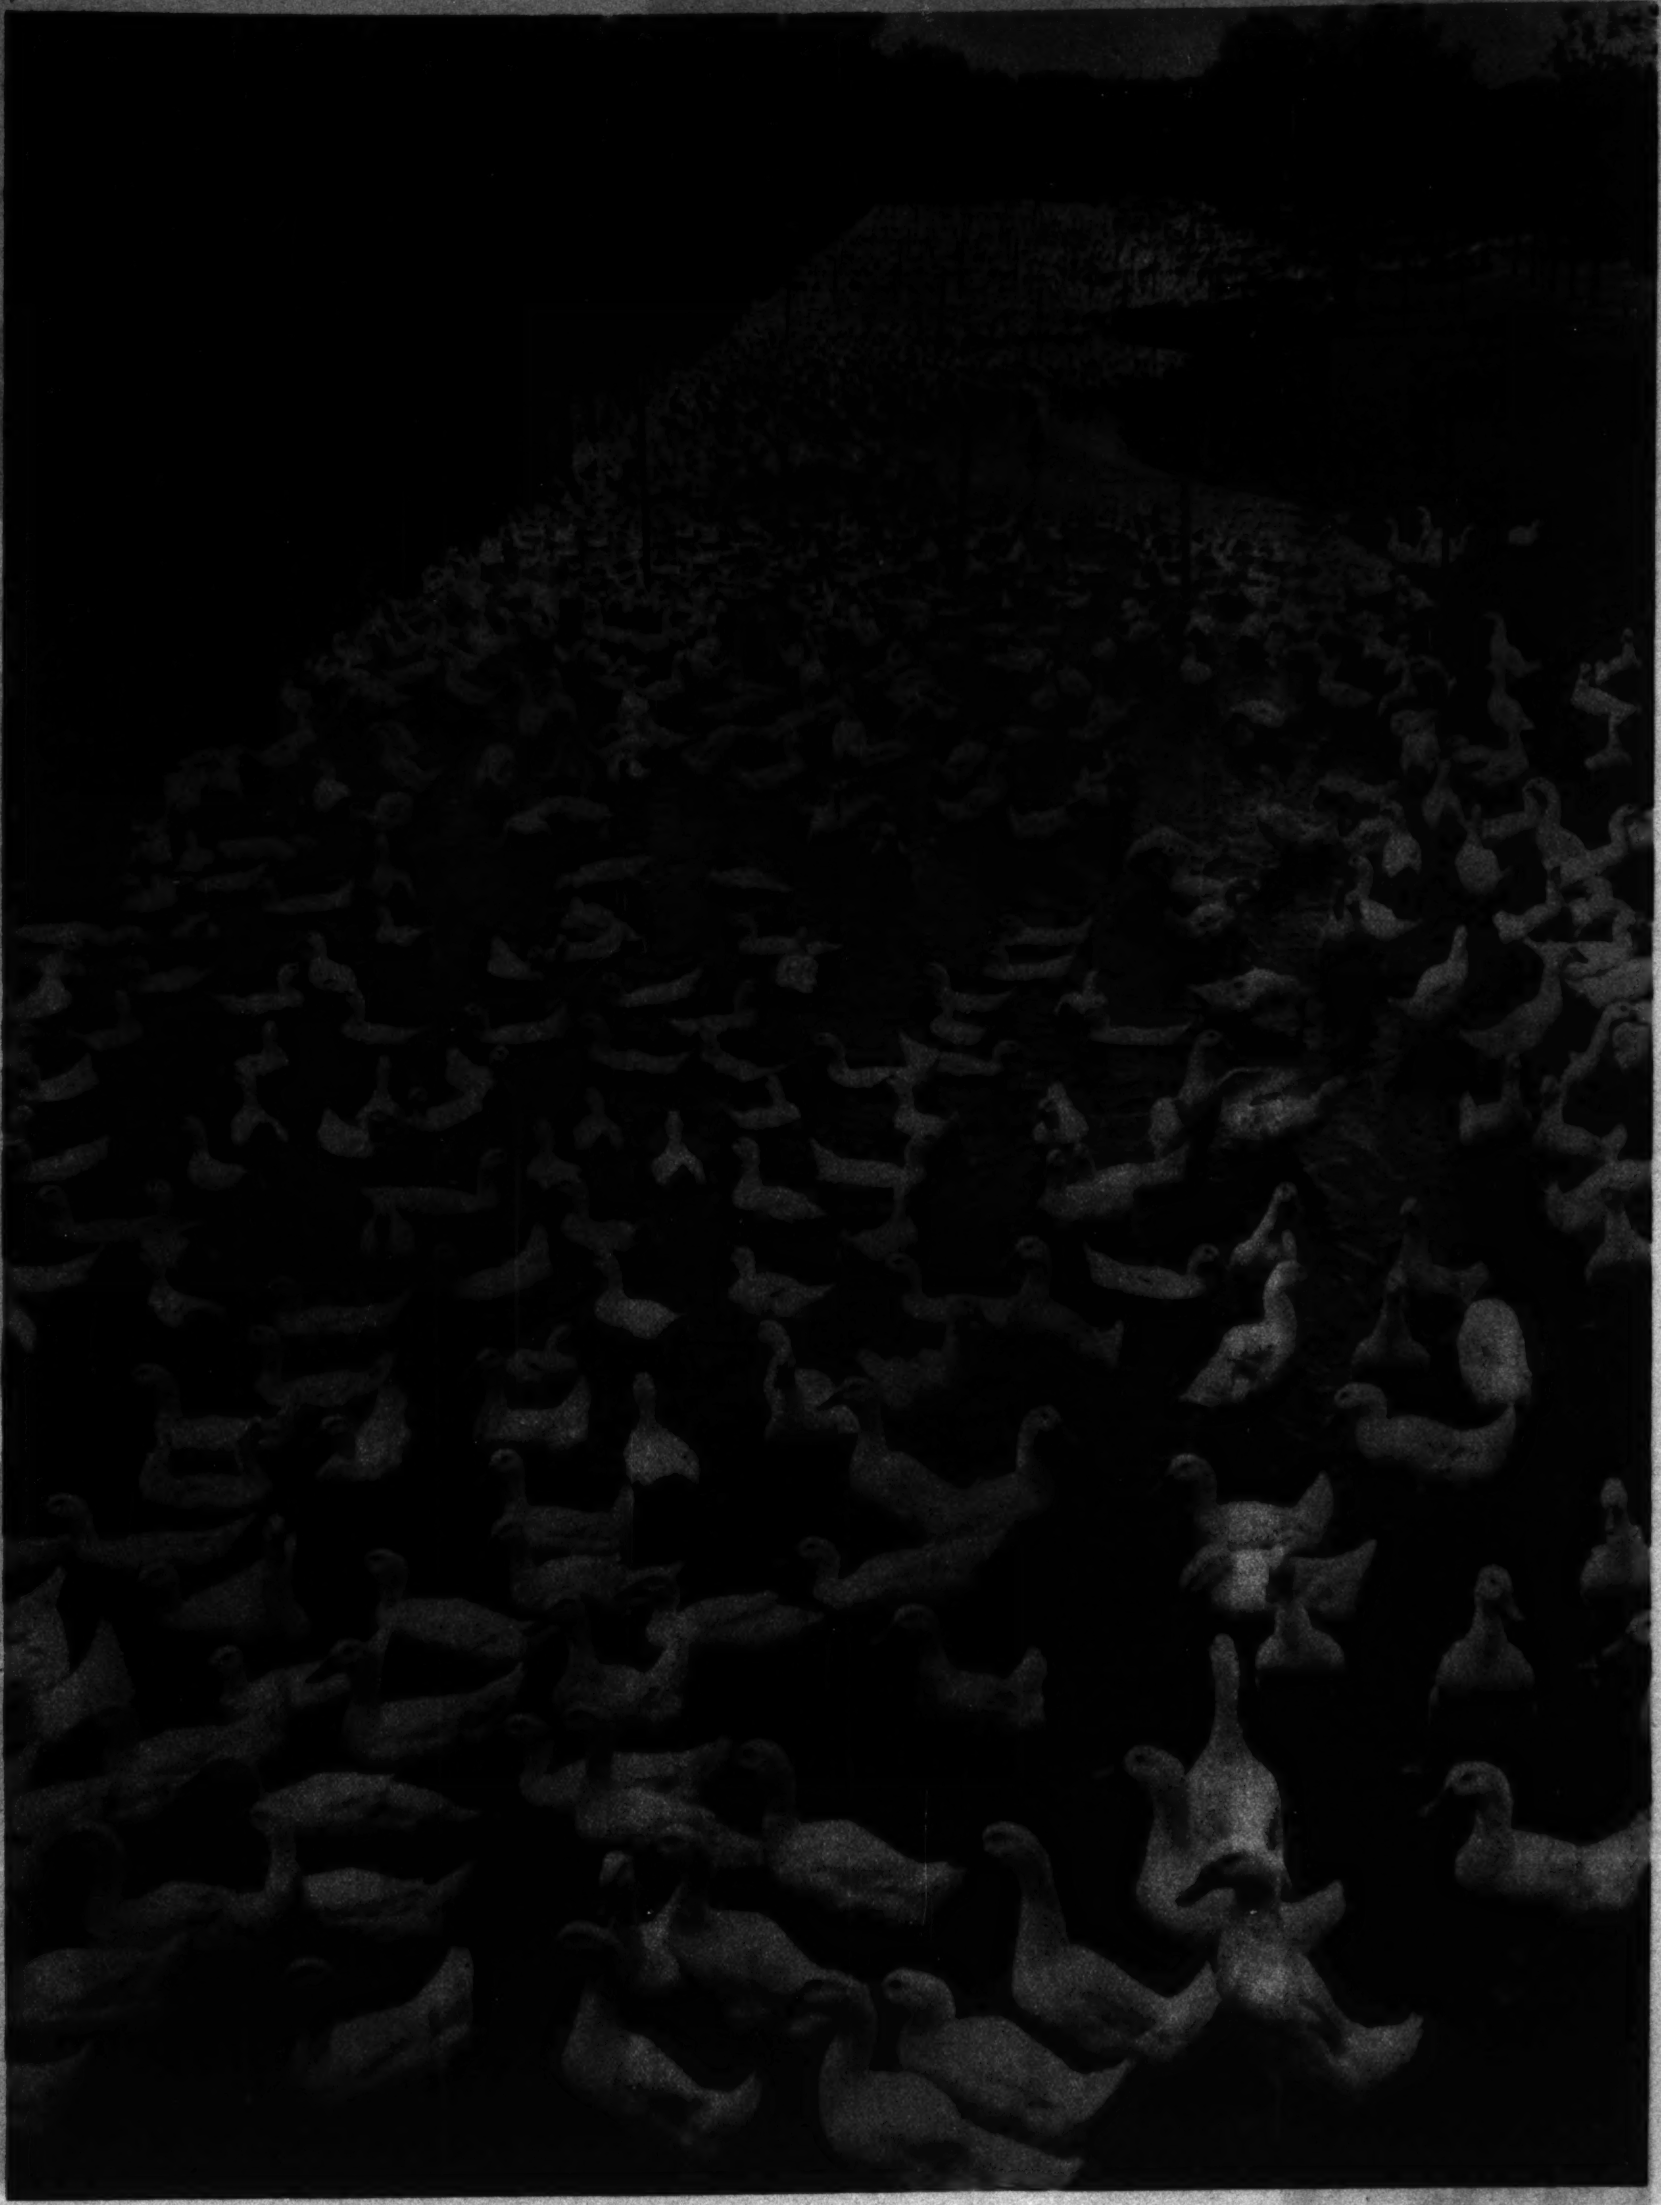
DUCKS and DRAKES

Short but Luxurious Lives on an Illinois Farm.

LIFE for a duck on a commercial duck farm is luxurious, but short. These photographs were taken at the Camp Creek Farm, Monticello, Illinois. There the ducks, after being hatched, are kept in carefully heated houses until they become four weeks old. Then they are driven to ponds where they are well fed in a systematic fattening process for four more weeks. Then they are either sold or killed.

Young ducks, marketed at 8 to 12 weeks old, are known to the trade as "green ducks," because of their tender flesh. They usually weigh from four and one-half to six pounds each. The adult drake usually weighs nine pounds, and the adult female, eight. The creamy white Pekin duck, imported from China in 1873, is the only one of the four standard domestic breeds raised on a large scale. Traditional capital of the duck farming industry is on Long Island. Annual turnovers of 100,000 young ducks are not uncommon on large farms. Ducks are used only for meat in this country, but in England and Holland, large numbers of duck eggs are sold for food.



Rapid growth of the fowls is shown by this two-and-one-half-hour-old duckling perched on the back of an 8-week-old-duck. Right, a view of the 15,000 Pekin ducks from 4 to 8 weeks old on the march at the Camp Creek ponds.

WHAT ONE CAN BUY FOR $5.38

The Controversy Over the Cost of Feeding a Family.

Mrs. Theresa Plank and her daughter buying a chicken at Soulard Market.

TWO weeks ago PICTURES presented the case of a typical St. Louis family on relief, John and Anna Windle and their four small children. Then readers began writing to the Post-Dispatch, some expressing sympathy for the family, others condemning the relief system and many suggesting that $8.75 a week for food is enough for a family of six. The Windles have found it is not, even with occasional windfalls from the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation.

Mrs. Theresa Plank of 2015A Maury avenue, a cook, said she was astonished at the "needlessly distressing diet" of the Windles. "I will feed my family of three adults, including myself, for less and we have meals as good, if not better than any well-to-do family," she declared. She then listed food purchases at $5.27 which she said would last for a week or more.

In a postscript Mrs. Plank offered to take a Post-Dispatch reporter and photographer on a shopping trip to demonstrate how and what she buys. The invitation was accepted.

During the shopping tour June 11, in which Mrs. Plank and her daughter bought at two markets, she spent $5.38. But the purchases did not include such things as flour, sugar, tea, coffee or milk. Then Mrs. Plank and her daughter, Effie, who is also keenly interested in food buying, prepared a food budget for the week. When they finished they found their total food bill for three adults for the week was $9.22. For the relief family of six persons, including three children and an infant, the food allowance was only $8.75.

Mrs. Plank not only spends more money on food than relief families, but she enjoys certain advantages helpful in food planning. She has an electric refrigerator in which she can store foods; the relief family doesn't even have an ice box. She can shop anywhere she pleases, whereas a family on relief must shop in one store. Mrs. Plank has an automobile in which she can drive in search of bargains. Few reliefers have automobiles and those who have cannot use them on shopping tours.

In the demonstration shopping trip, Mrs. Plank first visited a market at Seventh street and Lucas avenue, where she bought: Two-thirds pound calf liver, 45 cents; five pork chops, 23 cents; pound and a fraction of sirloin steak, 34 cents; pound of salt pork, 15 cents; two pounds lamb, 24 cents; loaf of bread, 10 cents, and pound of butter substitute, 19 cents.

At Soulard Market, she made these purchases: Five-pound spring chicken, $1.15; four ears corn, 15 cents; two bunches carrots, five cents; two bunches beets, five cents; three pounds peas, 15 cents; three pounds string beans, 10 cents; one and one-half pounds spinach, five cents; two cantaloupes, 25 cents; quart raspberries, 15 cents; two bunches radishes, five cents; dozen eggs, 20 cents; pound unsalted butter, 30 cents; four bunches green onions, five cents; three pounds tomatoes, 15 cents; two eggplants, 15 cents; three bunches rhubarb, 10 cents; half pound butter beans, 15 cents; pineapple, 15 cents; six bananas, 10 cents; celery, 10 cents. Mrs. Plank also had to pay eight cents in taxes.

In addition Mrs. Plank once a month spends 50 cents for 10 pounds of flour, an equal amount for 10 pounds of sugar, 13 cents a day for milk, 25 cents a month for tea and 40 cents a month for coffee. Occasionally, too, she buys such things as tapioca, cocoa, gelatine, baking powder and chocolate.

Since Mrs. Plank's letter was published, many have taken issue with her and other critics of the relief family's food buying. "Mrs. Plank's constructive criticism is not very constructive," said one. "If you fed this family of six on $8.75 a week they would all be in a hospital for malnutrition," said another.

Recently she began rehearsing the musicians, including those shown in action on this page, who were carefully selected in a series of auditions held throughout the winter months.

Ensemble playing presents its difficulties even when skilled instrumentalists attempt only the less complicated Beethoven overtures, excerpts from operas, tone poems and Mozart symphonies. Progress of one rehearsal is reflected in the series of photographs showing Conductor Gordon, baton in hand, leading the infant organization over early hurdles.

Formed a year and a half ago, the unit drills with horses rented from a riding stable. Each ride costs a scout $1. OXOL THE QUICK-ACTION BLEACH

THE PIN WITHIN

A Typical Operation Made Possible by the Bronchoscope Whose Inventor, Dr. Chevalier Jackson, Has Now Retired.

IN THE photographs on this page an operation for the removal of a safety pin is shown. This type of life saving procedure was made possible by the invention of the bronchoscope by Dr. Chevalier Jackson of Philadelphia 40 years ago. Last week he announced his retirement. He will spend the rest of his life campaigning to keep foreign objects out of throats and lungs.

Dr. Jackson said the spread of clinics and development of trained technicians for removing obstructions from the esophagus and bronchial tubes made his active services no longer needed. "The chief cause of people getting bones stuck in their throats and lungs is hasty, gluttonous eating," he added, in parting.

1. This young woman swallowed an open safety pin. X-rays showed it was lodged in her chest cavity. Details of the removal of the pin are shown in succeeding pictures.

2. The bronchoscope, a long, narrow tube, approaching the open pin. Illumination of the chest cavity is furnished by a tiny light bulb in the tube. Through fluoroscopes on the patient's chest and side, assistants watch and direct the operator.

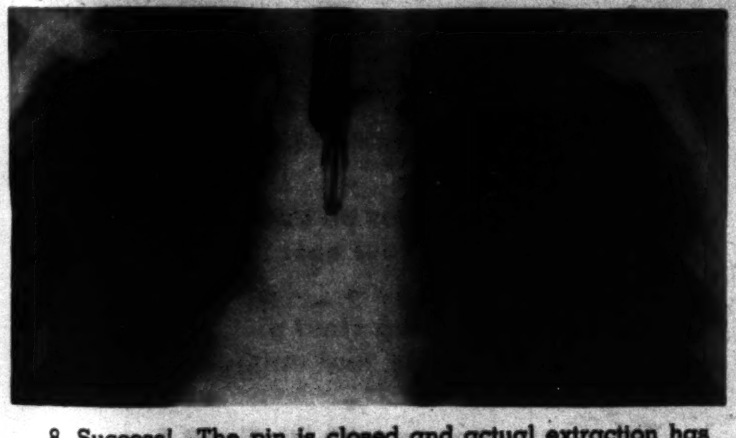
3. Photograph taken through the front of the chest showing the tube close to the pin. The patient is conscious throughout, no anesthetic being used because natural breathing is desired.

4. From the end of the bronchoscope emerge the tendrils of the tongs, advancing on the safety pin. They are controlled by flexible cable and can be turned in any direction, opened and closed by the surgeon.

5. Prongs have engaged the pin and the surgeon has opened them with the controlling handles at the other end. The sharp point of the pin must now be dislodged from the tissues.

6. The point of the pin is freed, after a painstaking turning movement.

7. The center prong of the forceps has been moved to engage the spring eye of the pin and to help prevent the pin from turning as the side prongs begin the artful gripping necessary to close it.



8. Success! The pin is closed and actual extraction has started. By the barest fraction of an inch at a time, the pin is drawn into the tube of the bronchoscope.

10. Showing no ill effects, the patient looks over the pin that caused all the trouble.

Old Gold CIGARETTES

OLD GOLD has never posed as a panacea for human ails. But it does go a long way to give you the very "tops" in cool and mellow smoking enjoyment.

Let's take the packaging for example. It may seem a small thing, but the foil in the Old Gold cup package is aluminum foil. It's pure, snug-fitting, less porous. A swell ally to Old Gold's double Cellophane in keeping Old Gold tobaccos fresh and wholesome.

That extra Cellophane jacket, by the way, opens at the bottom of the pack; supplying a double-seal. That's why you can't buy, beg or borrow a stale Old Gold. In any climate, Old Golds keep EVER-FRESH!

Of course, the better package wouldn't mean much if it weren't for Old Gold's better tobacco. But it IS better tobacco; selected for exceptional smoothness and flavor. Then aged extra long in the wood to give it a rare and double-mellow charm.
